SHANGHAI MENACED, TROOPS TEAR UP RAILROAD TRACKS

Reports Indicate Civil Governor of Chekiang Has Betrayed Marshal Sun.

By the Associated Press.

SHANGHAI, Oct. 16.—Fearing an attack upon Shanghai, troops tonight tore up railroad tracks 10 miles south of the city at Hsiang Chwang station.

Communications with Hangchow, although badly hampered, indicate that Hsai Chao, civil governor of Chekiang Province, has betrayed Marshal Sun Chuan-Fang, overlord of China's five Eastern provinces, and has declared Chekiang province independent.

Reports state that Hsai Chao has seized the salt, wine and tobacco monopoly bureau from Sun's representatives, together with the administrative powers of Hangchow.

ROBBERS FLEE WITH $2000 FROM BUCKNER, MO., BANK

Depository, Across Street Closed While Cashier Went to Lunch, Is Not Entered.

BUCKNER, Mo., Oct. 16.—Two robbers today entered the Bank of Buckner here, shoved J. P. Botts, the cashier, into the vault, and escaped with $2000 in currency. Only two men entered the bank, but witnesses said two or three others waited outside in a car.

In May, 1923, the Bank of Buckner and the Farmers' Bank were held up at the same time. Today the Farmers' Bank, which is just across the street from the Bank of Buckner, was closed while the cashier was at lunch. Police here believe that fact saved it from being robbed, too.

QUEEN MARIE NOT BOTHERED BY ROW ABOUT ITINERARY

SITS IN THE SUN CROCHETING A CAP

Entertains Newspaper Men at Concert Aboard the Leviathan—To Return to Europe Dec. 20.

By the Associated Press.

ON BOARD THE S. S. LEVIATHAN, Oct. 16.—Queen Marie of Rumania is not in the least perturbed by the various reports of squabbling over arrangements for her tour of the United States, and indications are that she will do exactly what she desires after landing in New York Monday.

The Queen passed much of her time today sitting in the sun on the promenade deck, crocheting a cap to hold her shingled hair in place. She lunched in the public dining room, Mrs. Gloria Vanderbilt being at Capt. Hartley's table with the royal party. At 6 o'clock in the evening there was a private concert at which Pavil Ludikar, Czech baritone of the Metropolitan Opera, sang. Newspaper correspondents were the Queen's guests.

Queen Marie expressed regret that the voyage was drawing to a close, as she said she had enjoyed every minute of it. She said she would return to Europe on the Leviathan, if possible, about Dec. 20.

Princess Ileana and Prince Nicholas had a busy day playing deck tennis with Prince Hohenlohe and other members of the royal party.

Queen Travels Amid Profusion of Flowers and Beautiful Things.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

ON BOARD THE S. S. LEVIATHAN, Oct. 16.—Queen Marie of Rumania lunched in the public dining room today as usual. Mrs. Reginald Vanderbilt was her guest. The Queen wore a plain cloth gown of plum color with a simple white collar. Her jewels were three strings of pearls around her neck and the ever present bracelet to which is attached the key to her diary.

The correspondent today explored the royal suite and the Queen's boudoir. In her sleeping room is a double bed covered with a hand-made cream-colored Russian lace spread with Russian double eagle crests. This is the Queen's personal property. At the side of the bed is a table with an ancient bronze, a silver vase and a string of large filigree and amber beads.

All about are little jeweled boxes, brocades, silken shawls and rich fabrics and little knick knacks which the Queen always carries with her. She is fond of beautiful things and to make sure of beautiful surroundings she always carries her decorations with her.

On her dressing table are framed photographs of her daughters, Elizabetha and Mignon, and also one of her baby. Mirca, whose death during the war was a terrible blow. On the dressing table are silver perfume bottles and accessories, but they are not very elaborate.

At the time of the correspondent's visit there were 17 sports hats of different colors on the bed awaiting brushing. All the small closets held numerous gowns, from the plainest to superbly gorgeous evening frocks of gold, silver, flame and purpole, and many in shades of blue. There was a dressing gown of azure and gold, the neck bordered with fur.

In the sitting room a shelf was lined with beautiful glasses. Also there were jade cigarette case and an immense brass vase filled with roses. Everywhere there were flowers and framed pictures of the royal family.

Princess Ileana's Room.

In Princess Ileana's room, adjoining, two silver icons hang above the bed with other religious pictures in enamel and silver. The bedspread is of rose and blue silk batik. The toilet articles are of silver. A little fireplace with artificial fire gives a cozy appearance to the room.

The room of Prince Nicholas is plain. In it were several empty bottles, original contents not known. There were five cans of tobacco, pipes, cigarette cases and other paraphernalia dear to the heart of man. On a table was a vial of perfume—not unsual with Latins. The closets were filled with suits for all occasions and—and a vast array of striped suspenders.

INDIANA AWAITS 3 DEVELOPMENTS IN KU KLUX ROW

Meeting of Reed Committee, Resumption of Grand Jury Inquiry, and State G. O. P. Gathering.

PARTY MAY TRY TO OUST CHAIRMAN

Clyde Walb Accused of "Gross Political Stupidity" in Handling of Present Situation.

By PAUL Y. ANDERSON,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Oct. 16.—The Indiana political scandal resulting from the secret marriage of the Ku Klux Klan to the Republican party, and from the sudden appearance of some of the offspring, continued tonight to interest and appall the State.

The interest was focused almost entirely upon the three following events, all scheduled for Monday morning:

The meeting in Chicago of the United States Senate Committee headed by Senator James A. Reed, at which the committee will decide whether it will investigate the Indiana mess after finishing with the Illinois mess.

Resumption of the Marion County grand jury's investigation of corruption charges against public officials, which will be marked by a continuance of Prosecutor Will Remy's efforts to obtain evidence of corruption in the State Legislature in 1925.

A meeting here of the Republican State Committee, at which an attempt may be made to oust Chairman Clyde Walb, on the ground that he has been guilty of "gross political stupidity" in his handling of the present situation.

Hope and Fear Follow Reed.

Of the three, the meeting of the Reed committee was anticipated with more hope and fear—hope on the part of those who have been pressing for an open inquiry into the corruption charges, and fear on the part of Republican candidates and office-holders whose chances in the November election might be destroyed by such an inquiry.

However, the grand jury's action is arousing considerable uneasiness, and that uneasiness is shared by both sides. When the grand jury convened last week, those responsible for the corruption charges openly forecast a speedy "whitewash." They are still uneasy, but have begun to show more faith in the Prosecutor's intentions. On the other hand, some of those who originally were loudest in their demands that the whole matter be left to the grand jury, are beginning to eye its activity with misgivings. Nobody seems entirely satisfied except Prosecutor Remy.

The meeting of the Republican State Committee may develop into a dog fight, with some of the candidates openly repudiating the leaders of the organization and electing to strike out alone, or the party linen may be discreetly washed and the wounds tightly bandaged for the sake of the common political welfare. Some knives were being whetted over the week-end, however, and the situation is serious.

Might Beat G. O. P. Ticket.

Senator Reed has said publicly that the decision of his committee with regard to Indiana would be determined by the evidence it might receive. The decision, however, might have vast political consequences. In fact, many informed observers say that if Reed comes to Indiana, all, or nearly all, of the candidates on the Republican state ticket will be defeated. They base this opinion on their knowledge of what the facts are, and on their belief that Reed would succeed in disclosing these facts.

Yet if the Reed committee comes it will be largely because of a statement made this week by Walb. The Reed committee is empowered to investigate Senatorial primary and election campaigns, not to unearth corruption in local Government.

Walb, by publicly declaring that a "conspiracy of international bankers" was pouring money into Indiana to defeat Senators James E. Watson and Arthur Robinson because they had supported the World Court, raised an issue which the Reed committee can hardly avoid. Such a situation as Walb alleged is precisely the sort of thing the Reed committee is empowered to investigate.

Can't Tell Where It Will End.

Once such investigations start, however, they usually cover a lot of territory before they end. An inquiry that begins with a Sena-

PUBLIC UTILITIES IN STATE ASSESSED AT $475,720,765

DOES NOT INCLUDE COMPANIES' LANDS

Will Bring Total Assessment of All Property in Missouri to About $4,835,000,000.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Oct. 16.—The final assessed valuation of public utility property in Missouri, for 1926 taxes, was fixed by the State Board of Equalization today at $475,720,765, exclusive of lands, buildings and certain other items of utility property that are assessed locally. This is an increase of $18,401,756 over the assessment of public utility property last year.

These figures for the utilities, the last class of property to be taken up by the State Tax Commission and Board of Equalization will bring the assessed valuation of all taxable property in Missouri up to a grand total of approximately $4,835,000,000 for 1926 taxes.

Assessments of merchants and manufacturers, which are made by local assessors, form the last item making up the grand total. They have not been reported to the State yet, but were estimated by the board at $254,000,000.

Where Increase Fails.

The total of $4,835,000,000 for the State is an increase of approximately $129,000,000 over the total assessment last year. As has been the case for several years, the increase falls almost entirely on city and town real estate and the public utilities.

The Board of Equalization last spring reduced the assessments of farm lands $11,204,000 for 1926 taxes, and increased city and town real estate $115,402,340. This increase, coupled with the increase on utilities and personal property, and a higher assessment on private cars operated on railroads, such as tank cars, make up the net increase of approximately $129,000,000.

These increases will net the State only about $155,000 in additional State taxes, at the State rate of 12 cents on the $100 assessed valuation, and only $64,500 of this will go into the general revenue. However, the property on which the increases were made will pay approximately $2,000,000 in additional taxes to municipalities, counties and school districts.

The average local tax rate over State is slightly more than $1.50 in the $100 assessed valuation.

The Utility Assessments.

In fixing the utility assessments at $475,720,765, the Board of Equalization lopped $9,105,152 from the increases recommended to the board by the State Tax Commission.

The final figures fixed by the board were as follows: 60 steam railroads and terminals, $286,290,019; 15 street railways, $68,431,246; 16 bridge companies, $7,237,501; 4 telegraph companies, $6,566,922; 367 telephone companies, $37,558,875; 3 pipe line companies, $16,173,780; 128 electric light and power and transmission line companies, $53,462,422.

The United Railways Co., of St. Louis, was assessed at $47,144,102, and the Missouri Electrical Railroad Co., a subsidiary, at $782,406, a reduction for the two companies of $55,417, from last year.

Assessment of the Southwestern Bell Telephone Co., was placed at $22,034,350, an increase of $2,940,396 over last year. About half of the company's property is in St. Louis.

Light Company Levies.

The Union Electric Light and Power Co., of St. Louis was assessed at $21,527,785, an increase of $4,076,771 over last year.

The electric department of the Laclede Gas Light Co., assessed before the state board this year for the first time, was assessed at $2,500,000. The Electric property previously was included in the local assessment of the company in St. Louis but its portion of that assessment was estimated at $1,500,000.

Assessment of the Terminal Railroad Association of St. Louis was $13,827,640 the same as last year. Assessments of five subsidiary companies of the Terminal Railroad Association totaled $5,434,682.

The board fixed the assessment of the St. Charles-St. Louis bridge Co., owner of the bridge at $473,884, an increase of $100,000 over last year.

Scientist Says Smoking Tends to Steady a Man

Experiments Show Tobacco-Users Probably Are More Dependable Than Abstainers —No Evidence as to Women.

By the Associated Press.

BALTIMORE, Md., Oct. 16.—The man who smokes is likely to be a dependable and steady worker, more dependable, perhaps, than the non-smoker, according to the results of experiments by Dr. Knight Dunlap, professor of experimental psychology at Johns Hopkins University.

So far as woman is concerned, "no scientific investigations have been made to furnish material bearing on the question," Dunlap says, "and persons who say that woman cannot smoke as man does without injury speak without evidence in support of what they say."

Experiments on the effect of smoking on man, not yet completed and not finally conclusive, were undertaken to learn whether smoking interfered with proper nervous co-ordination.

"There has been no evidence so far that it does interfere," Dunlap says. "On the contrary, such evidence as we have found inclines to support the belief that the man who smokes will be a more steady and dependable worker. Tobacco is a sedative. A man who smokes is more likely to go along in his work with even production in amount and quality than is the man who does not.

"Smoking does increase the blood pressure slightly, but so does the telling of a good joke, and the effect produced by tobacco is not much greater than that produced by the joke."

At Same Time He Institutes Separation Proceedings at Poughkeepsie, N. Y.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—A writ of habeas corpus ordering Mrs. Catherine Heenan, mother of "Peaches" Browning to return the 16-year-old girl to her husband Edward W. Browning, wealthy real estate operator, was obtained in Supreme Court here today by Francis Dale, attorney for Browning.

"Wait a few days," Dale told reporters, "and you will have something startling—some real news."

At Poughkeepsie, earlier in the day, Browning filed suit for separation from his wife. Desertion was charged. Justice Morschauser appointed N. Otis Rockwood, a lawyer, guardian ad litem for "Peaches."

Browning has 20 days in which to serve the summons and complaint on Rockwood.

Browning and his attorney were not long in court. The real estate man had little to say. He has established his home at Cold Spring, where the couple were married last April 10, after efforts of children's societies in New York tried to avert the marriage had failed.

The 16-year-old bride and her mother left Browning, aged 52 Oct. 4, after which the real estate dealer announced through his secretary that the separation was only temporary.

Associated with Dale as attorney for Browning is John E. Mack, who won prominence in the James A. Stillman divorce case as attorney for Baby Guy Stillman.

It is not known who will represent Mrs. Heenan in the case in New York, but she recently conferred with Max Steuer.

SPECIAL ELECTION ORDERED TO PICK HAWES' SUCCESSOR

Called By Baker for 11th Congressional District; Ballots to Be Cast Nov. 2.

By the Associated Press.

JEFFERSON CITY, Oct. 16.—Gov. Baker today ordered a special election in the Eleventh Congressional District (St. Louis) to select a successor in Congress for Harry B. Hawes, who resigned to become a candidate for junior United States Senator from Missouri on the Democratic ticket.

The election will be held on Tuesday, Nov. 2, the same date as the general election.

TEA IN FRANCE 90 CENTS A CUP

No Spoon With It, Due to Souvenir Hunters.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Oct. 16.—Thirty francs (about 90 cents) for a cup of tea charged in one of the chic restaurants in the Bois be Boulogne has caused many protests from customers. The tea is very weak and no spoon is served with it.

"The absence of spoons is the reason why the tea costs 30 francs," it is explained. "We had 1000 spoons at the beginning of the season; we have about 50 left. Souvenir hunters took the rest. We only serve spoons now to customers we know."

GOV. BLAINE TO VOTE FOR BEER

MADISON, Wis., Oct. 16.—Gov. John J. Blaine, Republican nominee for United States Senator, announced today that he would vote "Yes" in Wisconsin's 2.75 beer referendum at the November election.

The Governor added "as a matter of principle," that he had "never favored, and does not now favor prohibition or any other sumptuary legislation, but would abide by the result of the referendum." "It also is important to state the opinion that the Volstead act went too far," he said.

1200 CHINESE KILLED IN FIRE ON TROOP SHIP

Flames Set Off Ammunition and Missiles Rain on City of Kiukiang.

By the Associated Press.

SHANGHAI, Oct. 16.—A burning troop ship, laden with ammunition, drifted today showering missles in all directions on the city of Kiukiang and on ships in the Yangzte River. The ship was the Kuang Yuang, transporting 1500 soldiers of Marshal Chuan-Fang, ruler of Eastern China. Only 300 escaped.

The ship took fire at anchor at KluKiang. Loosed fro mits anchorage, the ship drifted, uncontrolled, against other ships in the stream, its exploding cargo hurling missles upon them and killing many.

Vainly seeking escape by small boats, the Chinese soldiers became panic-stricken. Many, unable to swim, plunged overboard and were drowned.

The vessel grounded below the city on a mud bank and burned to the water's edge. She was of 3000 tons and belonged to the China Merchant Navigation Co. The troops aboard were to have been used against the Cantonese invaders of Kiangsi province.

By the Associated Press.

The new company would have a nominal capitalization of $5,000,000.

The American banks, which are understood to be members of the new syndicate are Blyth, Witter & Co. and the Shroeder Banking Corporation of New York.

The only German bank interested is the Dresdener Bank, a representative of which today denied that the new syndicate intended placing German railway bonds on the international market.

HARKNESS ESTATE $85,000,000

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—An estate of $85,000,000 on which inheritance taxes estimated to reach $16,000,000 are payable, was left by Mrs. Anna M. Harkness, widow of Stephen V. Harkness, one of the earliest partners of John D. Rockefeller, it was shown in an inventory made public today.

The will, which was admitted to probate April 5, last, named as executor Edward S. Harkness, son of the testatarix, who is the beneficiary of the residuary estate, which will amount to approximately $60,000,000. The will also gave bequests totaling $36,650,000 to charities, but provided that the amount of these legacies should be reduced by the amount of gifts made during her lifetime.

GENTRY DECIDES PROPOSITION NO. 4 SHOULD NOT GO ON NOV. 2 BALLOT

Attorney-General Volunteers Opinion That Poll to Repeal Prohibition Law Is Not True Initiative.

RULING EXPECTED TO AID WILLIAMS

Because Proposal Would Bring Out Vote in Dry Counties Which Are Mostly Democratic.

JEFFERSON CITY, Oct. 16.—Attorney-General Gentry today issued an unsolicited opinion to the Secretary of State, holding that initiative Proposition No. 4, designed to repeal the State prohibition laws, could not be submitted to the voters in the election, Nov. 2, since the initiative could not be used to repeal an existing law. He advised Becker not to place the proposition on the official ballot.

Gentry held the initiative petitions, filed last July, to place the proposition on the ballot, did not come within the provisions of the initiative and referendum law. He ruled the initiative could be used to submit a new law or substitute another law for an existing one, but not to repeal an existing law. He declared such a repeal by the people could be effected only through the referendum, the legal time for which, in this case, expired more than three years ago.

Proposal Already Certified.

There is considerable doubt that the unexpected and belated ruling will get the proposition off the ballot.

Secretary of State Becker said he had not requested the opinion and that he had certified the four proposals for the ballot to the election officials of the counties, under a state law requiring such certification by him 20 days before the election.

"I have no power to take the proposition off the ballot, and no means of stopping it now," Becker said. "Official publication of the proposals has been started all over the state, and in some of the counties the ballots have been printed. I have no power over the propositions other than to certify them to the election officials. It is out of my hands, and in my opinion the only thing that will prevent No. 4 from going on the ballot is a court order."

Gentry said no one had requested the opinion, and that he had issued it upon his own motion, in his general capacity of adviser of state officials on legal matters.

Just Occurred to Gentry.

"The point just occurred to me day before yesterday," he said.

In this connection it is recalled that after the initiative petitions were filed last July by the Missouri Branch of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, the petitions were sent by Becker to the Attorney-General for preparation of a title or synopsis of the proposition, to be printed on the ballot. Preparation of such titles by the Attorney-General is required by law.

The Attorney-General looked over Proposition No. 4, wrote the title, and sent it back to Becker. No question of the legality of the proposition was raised at that time.

The title prepared by Gentry, constituting the form in which Proposition No. 4 was to appear on the ballot, was:

"An act to repeal Article 7, Chapter 52, Revised Statutes of Missouri, 1919, entitled Prohibition; to repeal an act approved March 28, 1921, Amending Article 7, Chapter 52, R. S. Mo. 1919; and to repeal an act approved April 3, 1923, in relation to the manufacture, sale, possession, transportation and disposition of intoxicating liquors, and the issuance and service of search warrants."

The original act which it was proposed to repeal was subjected to the referendum at the election of 1920, and was upheld by the voters. The acts of 1921 and 1923 are out of reach of the referendum under the provisions of the Constitution, which state that referendum petitions shall be filed not more than 90 days after the close of the legislative session at which the law is enacted.

Ruling Would Help Williams.

It has been the expectation that Proposition No. 4 would help to get out the vote in dry counties,

LIQUOR QUESTION MILDLY REFERRED TO BY WILLIAMS

Senator Challenges Sincerity of Hawes in Favoring Modification of Volstead Act.

AVOIDS STATING HIS OWN POSITION

Asks Why His Opponent Has Not Introduced Any Bill on Subject During Six Years in House.

By CURTIS A. BETTS,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

CLINTON, Mo., Oct. 16.—Senator Williams in a speech here this afternoon challenged the sincerity of Harry B. Hawes, Democratic nominee for Senator, in his position favoring modification of the Volstead act to permit the manufacture and sale of beverages containing more than one-half of 1 per cent alcohol.

"Mr. Hawes has been in Congress for six years," the Senator said. "May I ask what steps he has taken to modify the Volstead act? What bill to that purpose has he introduced or pushed? If he stands for modification as he says, a position on which he is seeking votes in St. Louis, might he not have used some of his leisure moments during the past six years in seeking to accomplish that purpose?"

The Senator threw these remarks into that portion of his set speech in which he avoids a statement of his own position on prohibition by seeking to convince his hearers that the issue is not one properly in the campaign. It has been the Senator's argument that the question is one of moral, religious or social concern, and that it has no place in a political campaign.

Reference to Prohibition.

"Nobody ever votes for or against prohibition because he is a Republican or a Democrat," the Senator said. "Mr. Hawes in his St. Joseph speech said that any matter which was the subject of legislative action was a political question. Murder is subject to legislative action, but nobody would contend for a moment that it could be a political question."

Senator Williams this afternoon finished up a week of campaigning which took him into a number of the strong Republican counties of the Ozark region of South Missouri and into two Democratic counties. He has had unusually large audiences throughout the week and in Harrisonville, Bates County, last night the attendance was larger than at any political meeting in the county since William J. Bryan delivered a free silver speech there something like 30 years ago. At least that was the statement of several old timers. However, Bates is a safely Democratic county, and there is no possibility that Hawes will lose it.

In Clinton this afternoon the attendance at the Williams' meeting was augmented considerably by the fall festival, which attracted into town many persons from the farm sections of the county, and also by the fact that a free picture show had been advertised for this afternoon in the theater in which the Senator spoke.

Situation in Henry County.

Henry County, of which Clinton is the seat, invariably returns a heavy Democratic majority. Through this section there are evidences that Hawes will lose some Democratic votes, though there are no present indications that his losses will be serious. Such as they will be, it appears, will be among women voters who object to his attitude on the liquor question. Few if any of these will vote for Williams because they are not satisfied that he is any dryer than Hawes. Those who scratch Hawes will merely refrain from voting on the senatorship.

So far as indications go, there will be no great amount of scratching, and outside of St. Louis the two parties will poll about their normal number of votes. The reports are that a rather heavy vote is expected, due more to interest in defeating proposition No. 4, which proposes repeal of the State prohibition enforcement laws, than to interest in the senatorship, but most of those who go to the polls to vote on that will vote on the senatorship.

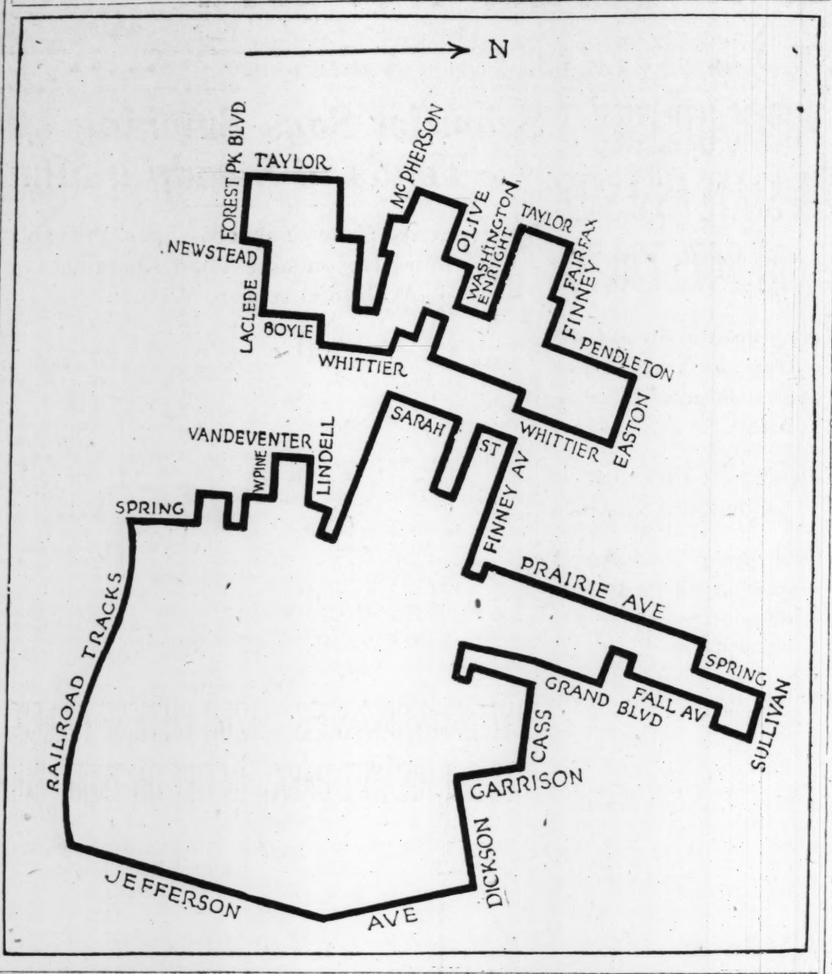
New Dial Phone Districts



7200 NEW TELEPHONES 'CUT OVER' TO DIALS

All in Jefferson Exchange and Make Total of 19,200 in St. Louis.

Seventy-two hundred dial telephones were put in service last midnight when all Jefferson numbers and several hundred Lindell and Delmar instruments, were "cut over" to the new Jefferson exchange, at Spring avenue and Washington boulevard.

Today there are 19,200 "machine-switched" or "dial" instruments operated in the city by the Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. The change, which eventually will affect all telephones in the city, began March 6 when 2000 dial instruments were put into service in the Laclede-Prospect exchange. Since then 10,000 dial instruments have been added to the Laclede-Prospect exchange, and it is planned to transfer about 6000 more Lindell and Delmar telephones to the Jefferson dial office.

When transfers to Jefferson exchange are completed, there will be 25,000 dial phones in service, about 14 per cent of the city's total. Hiland exchange, at Lanham and Manchester avenues, will be "cut over" next March.

One Minute for "Cut Over."

The actual transfer of lines to the new Jefferson office took but a minute. Crews of men were waiting for the stroke of 12 o'clock when, at the brief command "Cut," they broke the lines to be terminated in the old offices and other workmen connected the new lines at the Jefferson office.

The area to be served by the new office is bounded roughly by Jefferson avenue, Taylor avenue, Cass and Easton avenues, and Gratiot street. The old Jefferson exchange becomes Fremont exchange, handling coin telephones and long distance service.

Delivery of a new telephone directory, containing the changed numbers, will be started tomorrow. It contains more than 50,000 changed numbers. The Jefferson one-party lines involved in today's transfer retain their old numbers, but lines serving more than one subscriber have been assigned new numbers.

Educated the Subscribers.

To eliminate confusion by the transfer to the dial system, employes of the company made personal calls on users of the new instruments some days in advance of the cut-over and explained the operation of the new instruments. Last Thursday letters were sent to subscribers whose numbers were to be changed, and as a last precaution, each subscriber with a new dial instrument was called by telephone to make sure that he understood the method of operation.

The change to the dial system is so arranged that both dial telephones and old-fashioned manual instruments operate in conjunction without difficult. The dial user can get connection with a manual phone by dialing the number. When a dial number is called on a manual phone, the operator does the dialing.

'LOS ANGELES' ESCAPED SQUALL OVER OHIO

Moffett Tells of Maneuvering to Avoid Storm Like One Shenandoah Encountered.

By the Associated Press.

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Oct. 16.—The dirigible Los Angeles, in her turnings and twisting over an area of Northeast Ohio Thursday night, was fighting the same combination of conflicting winds which caused the destruction of the Shenandoah over Ava, O., according to Rear Admiral W. A. Moffett, who was in command of the Los Angeles Thursday night. He came here today to dedicate a municipal airport.

Over Columbiana County, as the Los Angeles crossed the Pennsylvania-Ohio line, a brisk cold wind suddenly sprang up from the north. From the south came an equally strong hot wind.

Rear Admiral Moffett said he began maneuvering to find an air lane through which the ship could pass to escape the conflicting cross currents. Finally such a lane was discovered, and he ordered full speed ahead. It was at that time that the dirigible swung south and passed over Akron.

The Admiral's statement explained maneuvers which had mystified Ohio observers. The dirigible seemed to be lost as it swung about over Columbiana County. Finally, as it was over Struthers, a few miles from Youngstown, it suddenly swung south at full speed. It was at this point, Admiral Moffett said today, that the air lane was found by which the ship was taken out of conflicting winds.

The Admiral said the Los Angeles was of sturdier construction than the Shenandoah, and he believes that it could weather virtually any storm.

Los Angeles Goes From Detroit to Lakehurst in 13 Hours.

By the Associated Press.

LAKEHURST, N. J., Oct. 16.—The navy dirigible Los Angeles was back home today after a hurried flight from Detroit, made necessary by an approaching storm.

The return was made in 13 hours five minutes by way of Lake Erie, Buffalo, Syracuse, Albany and down the Hudson Valley to New York. The ship functioned perfectly all the way. For a time a speed of 70 miles an hour was maintained. The distance was 1550 miles.

Storm warnings made necessary a change in schedule and the hawsers were cast off from the Ford mooring mast at Dearborn at 3:30 p. m. central time yesterday. The ship arrived at Lakehurst at 5:25 a. m., Eastern time, today and landed at 7 a. m.

A full supply of gasoline and oil was taken aboard at Detroit and 300 pounds of provisions which consisted of roast chicken, veal cutlets, ham, bacon, soup, 40 dozen eggs, 100 loaves of bread and 40 pies. While the ship sped over Lake Erie the men enjoyed a fried chicken dinner.

The trip to Detroit, longer than the journey home, took 16½ hours.

A slight frost forced the Los Angeles to hover over the air field for an hour and a half. Each time it attempted a descent to the cold level within 100 feet of the ground the ship bounced like a huge rubber ball.

SUES ESTATE FOR $4680 AS 936 WEEKS' BOARD BILL

Nils Poulson Charges Peter A. Sander Failed to Pay for 22 Years' Accommodation.

When the late Peter A. Sander came to this country from Sweden 25 years ago he was without friends and apparently without funds, so he was taken in charge by his fellow countryman, Nils Poulson, 4232 St. Louis avenue, a former hack driver, who found him at Union Station, and was given shelter in the latter's home. There Sander lived for 22 years, but he failed to pay for his board and lodging, according to Attorney Irvin H. Gamble, who represents Poulson in a claim against Sander's estate.

Sander's excuse for not paying, the attorney said, was that it took all his money to pay off on two lots he had purchased in St. Louis County. He would pay up, it was understood, when the lots were clear, and he was not pressed for payment by Poulson, who is said to have similarly taken care of other supposed needy immigrants from his native land.

Sander worked at odd jobs until some time in 1922, when he left Poulson and became caretaker for the home of Ephron Catlin, 15 Vandeventer place. On his death, Nov. 14 last, it was found Sander not only owned the two county lots but also had personal property amounting to $6875.92, of which $6125.92 was cash he had saved.

He left a will bequeathing $1000 to Miss Sadie Hickelheim and gave the remainder of his estate to the Church of the Latter Day Saints, a Mormon church at Grand boulevard and Carter avenue, but he did not take care of the reputed debt to Poulson.

So Poulson filed his cleam in the Probate Court, based on 936 weeks of board and lodging at $5 a week, totaling $4680. It will be tried by Judge Holtcamp tomorrow.

PATRONAGE AT UNION MARKET DISAPPOINTING

With 21 Stands Vacant in New Model Structure City's Income Is Greatly Reduced.

Comptroller Nolte will meet the occupants of the city's new $1,000,000 Union Market next Friday to discuss why business in the market is falling off to the extent of reducing the city's estimated revenue of 4½ per cent below 4 per cent.

There are 21 vacant stands in the market and no one can be found to rent them. When the market was opened last December, every stand was rented and there was a waiting list of 100. The demand for space was so great that, for a time, the Comptroller considered auctioning off the stands to high bidders.

The market, bounded by Broadway and Sixth street, Lucas avenue and Morgan street, is a sightly structure, adding much to the appearance of that section. Its interior is the last word in sanitary handling of perishable foods and charms the eye. But business is apparently bad and apparently growing worse.

Apartment Life Blamed.

Merchants within the market believe that its design is at fault—that there is no opportunity to advertise their luscious wares to passers — no show windows, no stalls on the exterior, which pedestrians found hard to pass in the old market where the stands opened upon the sidewalk.

Comptroller Nolte believes the answer lies in the changed habits of housewives. The market basket now makes its trip back and forth between the home and the chain stores. Housewives no longer stock up for several days. They run from meal to meal with a grocery just around the corner. Apartment life has led to more frequent dining out. Nor is there the pride in home-cooking that there once was. The search for choice cuts and the freshest of garden produce has ceased.

Old stand owners—those who have been in Union Market for a decade—are holding their customers. New stand owners are finding it nearly impossible to acquire regular buyers.

Market a Model, But—

Market storekeepers declare that when plans were discussed for the market, they pointed out that there must be some way of displaying their produce to the passerby, but that they were overruled. The market was designed by L. R. Bowen, engineer of the office of the Board of Public Service. He visited several cities which had built modern markets. An expert who had made a success of public and private market design in Cleveland came to St. Louis to advise and the new market plan was drawn largely from his suggestions. It is flawless in all respects except that its patronage is a disappointment.

William A. Meletio, one of the stand proprietors, said that at Friday's meeting with the Comptroller it would be suggested that the city remodel the market to provide outside display.

Meanwhile, the city garage, which occupies the second and third floors of the building, is financially successful. It is filled with automobiles almost constantly and more space could be used. So far as return to the city is concerned, Comptroller Nolte says that it would have been better had the whole building been designed for a garage.

DERAILED TRAIN REACHES ST. LOUIS THREE HOURS LATE

Second Section of the Pennsylvania "American" Met With Mishap In Ohio.

The second section of the "American," Pennsylvania flyer from New York to St. Louis, arrived here at 8:22 last night, three hours behind schedule after being derailed earlier in the day near Denison, O. Four mail clerks were shaken up and bruised in the wreck, none seriously.

Seven sleepers and a mail car were derailed when the tank car on the second locomotive of the double-header struck a defective rail. The mai car plunged down a 35-foot embankment while the locomotive sped on. None of the sleepers went over the embankment. The train was going 60 miles an hour when the accident occurred.

Salesman Disappears With Money After Deal to Sell $800,000 Worth of Bonds for $425,000.

By the Associated Press.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Oct. 16.—A nation-wide search was being made tonight for Charles E. Knapp, a bond salesman who disappeared with a satchel containing from $320,000 to $425,000 of which more than $100,000 belonged to the Brotherhood Savings and Trust Co., of Pittsburg, a labor bank.

The search was started after the bank was closed today and its affairs were taken over by the state banking department.

Four persons, including three officers of the bank were arrested on various charges growing out of the alleged swindle. They are R. A. McCrady, president; William Kelly, vice-president; J. L. Nelson, secretary; and Frank T. Redman, all charged with having been involved with Knapp in a deal to purchase $800,000 worth of Liberty Bonds for $425,000.

Bank Short About $102,500.

R. P. Ferguson, chief bank examiner, said the bank's shortage was about $102,500, so far as was known. Redman, a non-depositor was said to have indorsed a note through which that amount was withdrawn from the bank to complete a pool for the purchase of the bonds.

When arraigned for a preliminary hearing McCrady said, "I was 'gyped' and 'gyped' right. They were sure smart fellows when they put a thing like that over on a banker."

McCrady said the bank had sufficient assets to pay all depositors and that it would pay $500 for Knapp's arrest.

McCrady told detectives Knapp approached him several weeks ago with a proposition to buy Liberty bonds at a big discount and quoted the bond salesman as saying he had several similar deals pending involving $8,000,000 worth of bonds of a bankrupt banker whose identity could not be disclosed.

McCrady related that Knapp appeared at the bank yesterday and was given the cash, which he first told detectives amounted to $320,000. Later he placed the amount at $425,000. TWO HOLDUP MEN WHO SHOT OFFICER IN FIGHT, CAUGHT

They Admit Encounter in University City in Which Patrolman Kaiser Was Wounded.

FOUND AT HOUSE IN EAST ST. LOUIS

Each Hit by Police Bullets—They Are J. E. Fox, 22, of Chicago, and R. E. Williams, 22, Oklahoma City

After being sought for 15 hours, two holdup men who shot Patrolman John Kaiser in University City Friday night and got away, although seriously wounded by Kaiser's companions, Patrolman Peter Gaffney and Edward Price, were captured yesterday in an East St. Louis rooming house.

The prisoners said they were James E. Fox, 22 years old, a mechanic, of Chicago, and Robert E. Williams, 22, a dental student, of Oklahoma City. Each had been shot twice. Fox in the back and Williams in the neck and right wrist. They are expected to recover.

At City Hospital last night, where they are patients under guard, Fox would not talk except to admit he had exchanged shots with the University City policemen. Williams talked freely.

Williams Tells His Story.

"I met Fox in Chicago three weeks ago, renewing an acquaintance begun five years ago in San Diego, Cal.," he said. "We had several hundred dollars between us. I spent most of it on girls. Last Tuesday we took a bus for St. Louis arriving here Wednesday. We registered at a hotel at Theresa and Franklin avenues.

"Friday night we had $9 left. Fox stole an automobile and suggested we get some money for ourselves. He had a revolver. I knew what he meant."

The stolen car was the Studebaker of Branch F. Spencer, 4468 West Pine boulevard, who had parked it at Washington boulevard and Theresa avenue.

"I drove the car west with Fox in the back seat," Williams said. "He held up two fellows, an old man one time, a young one the next, while I waited around the corner for him. Then we decided we'd go back to the hotel.

"I drove into some blind street and then the police car came up behind us and I couldn't drive out. The cops with guns came up to the car and introduced themselves.

Doesn't Know Who Fired First.

"I put my hands up and thought Fox would do the same. I don't know who fired first or why. Maybe I made a phoney move—anyway, there was a bunch of shots fired and I got hit.

"I was waiting to be arrested right then and there, but the cops took it to a drug store, and Fox and I left the car and ran. Fox saw some kids in a car and chased them. I collapsed as soon as I got in the car, so Fox did the driving back to the hotel."

One of the men held up prior to the shooting was G. G. Gage, 6615 Kingsbury boulevard, who surrendered $5 to an armed man in front of his home. The identity of the other holdup victim is not known. Patrolmen Kaiser, Gaffney and Price were seeking the holdup men when they stopped the Studebaker car occupied by Fox and Williams, at Melville avenue and University drive. Kaiser was shot in the left wrist, the bullet shattering a bone.

Students Chased Out of Car.

The "kids" held up were five Washington University students sitting in a Packard sedan on the university campus. The robbers drove off in Forsythe and Lindell boulevards in the sedan, with students pursuing in another car.

The blood-stained sedan was abandoned later on Cardinal avenue north of Washington boulevard.

Back in the hotel room, Fox went to bed. Williams went out and induced a woman to purchase iodine and bandages for him at a drug store. Then he returned to the room and dressed Fox's wounds. He broke a piece of wood from a coat hanger to make a splint for his own wound, which he also dressed.

Yesterday morning they awoke, fearful from loss of blood and lack of proper treatment. They found Hampton at his home and asked him to drive them to Chicago in his automobile. He agreed to take them as far as East St. Louis.

On North First street, East St. Louis, Hampton's fares stopped a Negro and asked if he knew the whereabout of any "white gangsters." The Negro did not, but, for a consideration of $25, consented to find the two men for a few days. Hampton drove back to St. Louis alone.

Police Hot On the Trail.

About this time the police trail grew warm. Canvassing the neighborhood where the blood-stained sedan had been abandoned, Detective Sergt. Schaaf and Detectives Broon, Kiernan and Quinlisk [illegible]

Police Hot On the Trail.

About this time the police trail grew warm. Canvassing the neighborhood where the blood-stained Studebaker had been abandoned, Detective Sergt. Schaaf and Detectives Gibson, Kiernan and Quinlisk found "Robert Williams" and "James Hanson" had registered at the Morrison Hotel, Theresa and Franklin avenues, Wednesday, and had checked out yesterday morning. They were described as good-looking, husky, "collegiate" youths, corresponding to the pair who figured in the West End shooting and robberies. So police went up to the room they had occupied and discovered a blood-stained suit had been left behind.

Further canvass brought them to the home of Hampton, who first denied, then admitted he had taken the men to East St. Louis. Hampton drove the detectives to the Negro's house at 223 North First street and there they arrested Fox and Williams in bed.

The two wounded men made no attempt to reach two revolvers, a pistol and a box of cartridges, on a table beside the bed.

Four pocketbooks, which Fox told police had been taken in holdups, were found on him. One bore the name of Andrew H. Hanson of Denver, another the name of R. J. Brodeur, 1122 Wainwright Building, St. Louis, and a third the initial "J" in gold plate. The fourth, with identification card torn out, held $9. Fox also had three watches.

Suspects in 7 Kroger Robberies Returned From Boonville.

Two young men, arrested Friday night near Boonville, Mo., by a Cooper County officer for speeding, were brought to St. Louis last night by Detectives Wren and Wiese, suspected of being the two men who held up seven St. Louis Kroger stores and stole $670 within an hour Friday morning.

They said they were William E. Guthrie, 19 years old, and Clyde Yewell, 18. They denied the Kroger store robberies, but police said their photographs had been identified by some of the store managers and by victims of other recent grocery and drug store robberies. Victims of recent robberies will be summoned to police headquarters to view the prisoners today.

Both youths have been arrested before as suspects, and their photographs are on file at Police Headquarters. Guthrie was sentenced to five years in prison for an automobile theft in 1924 and was paroled from the bench.

Wren brought with him $600 in small change and bills which Guthrie and Yewell had in their possession when arrested. Part of it was in a sack and part was concealed in the linings of their garments. The money included several rolls of coins such as were taken from the store at 1247 North Vandeventer avenue. The prisoners declared they won the money in a crap game in St. Louis.

The pair were captured by Sheriff Percy B. McMahon, who pursued them after their machine shot past him in the outskirts of Boonville. He overtook them 20 miles out, arresting them when he discovered they both had revolvers. A third man who was asleep in the back seat of the car was not disturbed. He disappeared while Guthrie and Yewell were being taken to Boonville.

The machine was a green sedan such as was described by some of the robbery victims Friday. Investigation proved that the car was rented by the youths Thursday in Kansas City, and they were headed back in that direction when arrested.

A general order for the arrest of Guthrie and Yewell had been issued, on the strength of photograph identifications, when Sheriff McMahon wired yesterday that he was holding the pair.

BILLIARD HALL MAN, FOUND DEAD MAY 9, LEFT $150,000

William Pesch Bequeathed $20,000 of Estate to Widow to Whom He Was Engaged.

William Pesch, proprietor of a billiard hall, who was found dead in a garage at 5204 Maple avenue, May 9, last, left an estate valued at $150,051.04. An inventory was filed in Probate Court yesterday.

The estate consists of deeds of trust appraised at $88,085, real estate worth $12,500, corporation stock with a par value of $2500, bonds $15,500, cash amounting to $1202, and the property in his billiard hall at 202 North Eighth street, which was appraised at $14,084.75. Several minor items also are listed.

In his will, Pesch bequeathed $20,000 of his estate to Mrs. Grace Mosser, 4622 Shenandoah avenue, a widow, to whom he was engaged, and most of the rest of his property to his brother, Frederick Pesch. He lived at 5259 Vernon avenue. It was believed he died through inhalation of carbon monoxide gas while repairing his automobile. The inventory shows that he had a credit due him of $2012 as executor of the estate of another brother, the late Joseph Pesch.

ARMY REMOUNT STATION IS SOUGHT FOR ST. LOUIS

Chamber of Commerce Backs Army Officers and Horse Breeders in Petition.

Efforts to obtain an army remount station for the vicinity of St. Louis were launched at a conference of army officers, horse breeders and the officers of the Fairmount Jockey Club, at Fairmount track yesterday.

Headed by the St. Louis Chamber of Commerce, the commercial organizations of Southern Illinois and Eastern Missouri will be asked to co-operate and lend their aid in inducing Secretary of War Davis to make an official investigation of the need for such a station in this vicinity. The nearest remount depots are at Lexington, Ky., and Fort Sill, Ok.

C. Bruce Head, general manager of the Fairmount club and a life member of the American Remount Association, pointed out at the conference that such a station, by providing an outlet, would stimulate interest in the breeding of fine horses in Missouri and Illinois.

FRENCH JUST HEAR OF $2,282,000,000 OFF DEBT TO U. S.

Not Appeased, However, Because Payments May Exceed Those From Germany on Reparations.

By the Associated Press.

BORDEAUX, France, Oct. 16.—The rank and file of the Radical Party today learned for the first time that the Washington debt settlement involves a decrease in France's war debt to the United States from $4,390,000,000 to $2,008,000,000.

Louis Ripault, a former right-hand man of M. Herriot in the French Foreign Office, reporting on foreign relations, gave the delegates to the convention facts which thus far have not been broadcast to any extent in France. He thought, nevertheless, that the question of a safeguard and transfer clause might properly be referred to The Hague Court.

Basis of Much Opposition.

It is the absence of clauses covering the contingency that Germany may not keep up her reparations payments and that heavy payments by France might upset her exchange, that has caused much opposition to the Mellon-Berenger agreement.

M. Ripault said that French public opinion balked at the thought that even under an arrangement which reduced the French debt more than half, that France was likely to be called on to pay more on her war debts than what she received from Germany in reparations. He said that arbitration was traditional with Americans as well as with French radicals.

Maurice Sarraut was elected president of the Radical party. His candidacy had been approved by Minister of Education Herriot, who stood firm in his determination to rejoin the ranks and not to accept re-election as head of the party.

Vague and Indecisive.

The actions of the convention, as far as they affect the general political situation, are regarded as vague and indecisive. A resolution, which was adopted, with reference to the general attitude of the party was intended to give satisfaction to both factions and left undecided the question as to whether the party repudiated Premier Poincare's National Union Cabinet.

The convention declared in favor of a coalition with the Socialists, but it remains to be seen whether such a coalition is possible.

Meanwhile, under the resolution as adopted, Minister of Education Herriott and other radical members of the Poincare Cabinet are authorized to retain their posts. This action, for the present at least, removes the danger of the Poincare Cabinet falling, which would have occurred had its radical members been censured by their party.

which are mostly Democratic, and thus would indirectly aid Harry B. Hawes, candidate for the United States Senate, and the State Democratic ticket. Any means of getting No. 4 off the ballot would therefore be considered as helping Senator Williams and the State Republican ticket.

Proposition No. 4 has been condemned in the State platforms of both parties and by Senator Reed and others unfavorable to the general policy of prohibition. These persons have held that it would be unwise to wipe out all restrictive liquor legislation. Even Capt. W. H. Stayton, head of the national Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, announced that he had decided the Missouri repeal would be an unwise move. Former Judge Henry S. Priest and James W. Byrnes, president and vice president of the state branch have maintained their position in support of No. 4.

Text of Gentry's Opinion.

Gentry's opinion, in the form of a letter to the Secretary of State, is:

"I am informed that petitions have been filed with you with the required number of signatures, asking that the Missouri prohibition law, enacted in 1919, 1921 and 1923, be submitted to a vote of the people of the state, at the general election on Nov. 2, and that the same is known as Proposition No. 4. Under the initiative and referendum, the electors of Missouri are entitled to do two things: (1) To file a petition with the Secretary of State with the required number of signers within 90 days after the adjournment of the Legislature at which a given law is passed, asking that the said law be referred to the people at the next general election, and, (2) To file a petition with the Secretary of State with the required number of signers asking that a proposed law be submitted to the voters at the next general election.

Too Late for Referendum.

"As the present petition was filed long after the expiration of 90 days from the adjournment of the legislature, it is too late for these petitioners to proceed by means of the referendum. The only other way by which they can proceed, and the way by which they are attempting to proceed, is by the initiative. By referring to the petition, it will be seen that these parties are not attempting to enact a new law; neither are they attempting to substitute another law for the present prohibition law, but simply trying to repeal an existing law. This cannot be done; for the word 'initiative' means the starting or substituting of something new. If these petitioners had asked that some other measure be substituted in place of the present prohibition law, their position would be different; but they are simply trying to reverse the action of the legislature by submitting the laws to a vote of the people; but such a proceeding cannot be instituted after the expiration of the 90 days following the adjournment of the legislature that passed the law in question.

"In view of the expense of the printing and submission of the proposition at the November election, I am writing to you that, in my opinion, you should not have printed on the official ballot proposition number 4, aforesaid."

St. Louis Board to Make No Change Without Order.

Chairman Eigel of the St. Louis Election Board said last night that there was still time to take Proposition No. 4 off the ballot here, but that the change would not be made without an official notification to that effect from the Secretary of State.

"We can take it off as late as next Saturday," Eigel said. "The four propositions are on a special ballot, separate from the one which contains the names of candidates. The propositions will be published as advertising in the next few days, but that would not prevent eliminating any of them from the ballot, if the Secretary of State should so direct us."

Charles M. Hay, dry leader and active opponent of proposition No. 4, said last night that he hoped the proposition would remain on the ballot. He said the discussion provoked by it had been of educational value, and that an overwhelming vote against the proposition, which he anticipates, would further benefit.

As to the legal question involved, Hay said it appeared to him that a repeal proposal was on the same legal footing as a new enactment.

"This question was suggested some time ago," Hay said, "but I did not go into it carefully, because I was not interested in getting No. 4 off the ballot. Lately, I have heard that some of its supporters were anxious to find some way of dropping it."

Former Judge Priest, chief supporters of No. 4, and others active in its behalf, could not be reached, for a new hotel, and expect to work nights to complete the work before freezing weather. E. J. Baker, owner of the hotel, is an uncle of Dellora Norris.

Further Delay on Scopes Decision.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Oct. 16.—The Tennessee Supreme Court adjourned today until Nov. 20 without any indication being given as to when a decision will be announced in the appeal of Prof. John T. Scopes from conviction of violating the State law forbidding teaching the theory of evolution in public schools.

Court Fight Over Dog Is Decided on Spots

Justice Werremeyer Awards Setter to G. H. Hanlon on Evidence of Photographs — J. W. Wallace Plans to Appeal.

Link is home from the courts. The veteran setter dog which last Thursday at Clayton stood nameless and unidentified in Justice of Peace Werremeyer's court while 34 witnesses divided almost evenly on whether he was Link or Bob, an entirely different dog, is at present at the home of G. H. Hanlen, 7187 Washington avenue, University City.

Justice Werremeyer ruled that Link was Link, and belonged to Hanlen. He decreed that Link was not Sir Bob Rodney, Bob for short, which belonged to J. W. Wallace of 643 Hanley road, Clayton. The dog in court, the Judge declared, was none other than Abraham Lincoln, dubbed Link, a half-breed setter, 5 years old, address 7187 Washington avenue, University City.

Wallace Plans to Appeal.

For the time being that settles it. But the Wallace family, still believing that Link is Bob, plans to appeal to the Circuit Court. Probably when Link goes back to the courts and costs mount up and lawyers' fees are added he will be a very valuable dog to the family which ultimately wins him.

Link seems to have no feeling in the matter. He was entirely happy and satisfied when yesterday he was turned over to Mrs. Hanlen. He would have been just as happy and satisfied had the decision gone in Wallace's favor. He answers to the name of Bob or Link with equal readiness, does tricks for both families, and loves everybody.

The human witnesses did not decide the question. Eighteen testified for Hanlen and 16 for Wallace, but Judge Werremeyer gave them equal weight.

Decision Based on Spots.

He based his decision on spots. Link is a spotted dog. So was Bob. But six photographs of Link, introduced as evidence by Hanlen, showed the same even blaze, or white patch, on the forehead that Link showed in court. A photograph of Bob, introduced as evidence by Wallace, also showed a blaze, but it was irregular. Moreover, Hanlen's photos showed a spot on the right side, while Wallace's displayed a spot on the left side.

Basing his decision on these photos Justice Werremeyer ruled in favor of the Hanlens.

"Thank you, Judge," said Mrs. Hanlon, when she was told she might take Link home. "That's a fair decision.

"It isn't," said Mrs. Wallace, when informed of the ruling by a Post-Dispatch reporter, "it's the most unfair decision I ever heard of. I shall talk with my husband and we shall probably appeal the case."

Link said nothing, but wagged his tail.

Third Claimant Appears.

There is some possibility of a third claimant for the dog. Mrs. Bertha Skepala of 4619 Rosa avenue appeared at Clayton to say that she thinks Link is the setter she found in the county last March and which ran away in June. She may present an intervening petition for Link.

Although Link is 5 years old and Bob was 3, Link a "dropper" and Bob a thoroughbred, they looked so much alike that witnesses swore with sincerity that Link was Bob. He got mixed with Bob under the following circumstances:

Last Jan. 14 Bob ran away. On the night of Sept. 23 Wallace found Link on the Hill road near Delmar boulevard. He said: "Hello, Bob," and Link wagged his tail. So Wallace thought Link was his long lost Bob, and took him home. Link was wearing a collar and license issued to Hanlon. Wallace thought Hanlon had found Bob and kept him. So he returned the collar, but kept Link. Hanlon missed Link that same evening and instituted search by private detectives, finding him at the Wallace home. He brought suit to recover Link.

To Have Another Day in Court.

It may be that the setter dog which Mrs. Skepala found was the lost Bob and that Bob ran away again. Or it may be that after all Link really is Bob.

At any rate Link will doubtless have to return to court and let a Circuit Judge again pass upon his proper identity.

ELECTRICAL WORKERS PICKET SHUBERT-RIALTO THEATER

Say Union Member Was Refused Employment; Management Says No Electrician Is Needed.

A dispute over the employment of an electrician in the Shubert-Rialto Theater has resulted in the picketing of the theater by Local Union No. 1, International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers.

Arthur Schading, business manager of the union, says the action was taken with a view to enforcing the union contract in all St. Louis theaters, and that the Shubert-Rialto had refused to employ one of the union's members at $75 a week.

"We have never employed a resident electrician," explained J. L. Karty, manager of the theater, "and they are trying to force us to do so. We don't need such a man."

The electrical work at the Shubert-Rialto, he explained, is attended to by members of the Stage Hands' Union.

HOOVER URGES CONTINUATION OF REPUBLICAN RULE

Has Brought U. S. to Highest Level of Prosperity of Any Nation in World, Says Commerce Secretary

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—In less than six years under Republican national administration of its political affairs, the United States has attained a level of national prosperity never before experienced by any people, Herbert Hoover, Secretary of Commerce, said in a speech tonight. He spoke in behalf of two candidates for re-election to the United States Senate, James W. Wadsworth of New York and William M. Butler of Massachusetts.

The nation has recuperated from a great war with unexampled speed, Hoover declared. It has aided stricken nations to recovery; it has nearly abolished poverty and has embarked upon the education of its children by unparalleled expenditure.

Without denying major credit to the spirit, energy and traditions of America's population at large, Mr. Hoover said that much of it should go to the display of governmental courage and wisdom by the Republican Presidents, Congresses and Cabinets who have exercised authority since 1921.

Republican policies, he said, had overcome the unemployment problem, without resorting to doles or "fictitious employment by inflation." The American woman in the kitchen, he said, prizes beyond all "an honest to God job for her man."

"Never before in our history," he said, "were real wages so high—wages measured not in dollars but in their purchasing power. They are the highest wages in the world."

Citing figures based on wages and prices over a period of years, Hoover said, in five years there had been "an astonishing increase in wages," parallel with a decrease in the price of things labor must buy.

"In America today," he said, "the poorhouse has become nearly as extinct as the slave block."

He argued that if the Democrats win the congressional elections, the legislative branch would come in conflict with the executive and there would be no party responsibility and no direction of any sort.

INTEREST IS KEEN IN CITY-COUNTY MERGER PROPOSAL

Leaders on Both Sides Agree That It Is Healthy Sign for Future Regardless of Results.

HAS BEEN TOPIC OF SCORES OF SPEECHES

Proponents and "Antis" Each Claim Victory at Polls Oct. 26 as Last Week of Campaign Opens.

Interest in the city-county merger proposal is expected to overshadow other local concerns for the next nine days, up to the special election, Tuesday, Oct. 26.

In the city where many observers have taken it almost for granted that the proposal will carry, the merger has been the topic of many speeches and has filled numerous columns of the metropolitan press, which is unanimous in support of the plan.

Interest in the county is even more centered. Some observers believe the vote there will be close, although the organized opposition is making a definite forecast of defeat for the merger by a big majority, while proponents claim it will be carried by almost as big a majority.

Many Meetings in County.

Many more meetings on the subject have been held in the county than in the city, but mostly by those in the opposition, since the supporters became well organized comparatively recently. Annexation is a live topic wherever a few persons happen to come together in the county. County papers are almost, if not all, against consolidation. One manifestation of a strong sentiment there in favor of joining fortunes with the city lies in the tone and volume of letters printed in the newspapers, but of course there are numerous communications from "antis."

Leaders on both sides of the question agree that this unusual public interest is a healthy sign for the future, even if the merger should fail of passage. Details of local government are being pondered by men, women and even children. The plan must get separate majorities in city and county for passage and if it fails another Board of Freeholders to draft a new scheme cannot be appointed for five years.

In case the plan is defeated, it is not unlikely that some new effort to improve the form of county government, provide urban and semiurban and semiurban facilities for its rapidly growing residential and industrial section and eliminate control of the political machine and operations of gamblers and other lawbreakers, may be undertaken.

Attitude of Some Opponents.

Many leaders of the merger opposition say they realize that some conditions are bad in the county and want to overcome them, but they object to features of the present proposal. Some proponents of the scheme to be voted on might join them in an effort to reorganize county affairs.

However, the fight over the existing plan is the thing now, and the last week of the campaign, just starting, will see both sides busy. The County Committee Opposed to Annexation has the advantage of a strong precinct organization and of having been first in the field. In addition, it finds the political machine of Boss Fred Essen seeking merger defeat. The Greater St. Louis Committee and the County Annexation League, backed by other organizations, are relying largely on enthusiasm and hard work.

It is timely to recount the development of the community. Prior to 1876, St. Louis, like other American cities, was within the county and, being the largest place, was county seat. Its urban development extended out somewhere between Grand boulevard and Kingshighway. It found the form of county government hampered its development and so, in extending its limits to the present line in 1876—50 years ago—it separated from the county and was granted quasi-county functions itself. The city has grown until its residential and industrial areas have extended well into the county.

County's Population Growth.

Starting in 1876 as a purely farming section of small population, the county has developed until its population has reached the present estimate of 150,000, while the agricultural acreage has dwindled steadily, tilled fields giving away to subdivisions. Chief farming localities left are on the extreme west, north and south sides.

Suburbs sprang up until they became small cities and one of them, University City, has an estimated population of 30,000. Webster Groves has considerably more than 10,000. In many respects governmental facilities have not kept pace with growth, it is admitted even by antiannexationists, but they declare that some suburbs are well able to take care of themselves and that the rural section needs no change.

The boundary line between city and county has almost disappeared in many places, except on the map and except as indicated by change of street conditions. For more than 25 years Essen has dominated the county. Antiannexationists remark that the city is not without political bosses.

Assured of Vote in November.

In view of the argument of opponents that the 50,000 county voters might be deprived of their vote at the November general election if the merger is approved, Chairman Samuel Rosenfeld of the Greater St. Louis Committee has obtained a certified copy of the minutes of the City Election Board of Oct. 4, which said that in that case "this board will, unless prevented by legal process, see that the voters of what is now St. Louis County are permitted to vote at the general election."

Nightly speech-making meetings at the tent headquarters of the County Annexation League, at the southwestern corner of Forest Park, began Friday, with an address by Rosenfeld and Thomas D. Cannon. Mayor Miller is to speak there Thursday evening. Herbert Taylor, executive secretary of the league, addressed the St. Louis Floral Club, comprising county producing florists, in Kirkwood last Thursday. He reported that 64 out of 65 florists present indicated they favored the merger, after hearing him tell how adequate water supply could be furnished by the city.

Among other meetings scheduled, there will be a merger debate at Corpus Christi School Hall, Jennings, Tuesday evening.

Indiana Watching Ku Klux Klan Row Developments

torial primary may, like a West Indian hurricane, inflict its worst damage along from the place it began.

When Indiana Republican leaders are asked about Walb's statement, they simply grow purple and speechless. They are already calling him the "Bob" Meusel of this campaign, and pronouncing his utterance "the worst political boner in the history of Indiana." None of them believes for a minute that any such conspiracy exists. None, in fact, had ever heard of it until Walb had his bright idea. The prospect that this palpably fantastic statement may be the means of destroying the Republican chances in the election alternately makes them hot with rage and cold with despair.

Prior to 1922 the power in the Republican party in Indiana was exercised by the "Big Four"—Postmaster General Harry New, former Gov. James Goodrich, former Senator Albert Beveridge and Will Hays, the movie czar. Never did all four agree, but among them they divided the power in the party. Senator Watson was a rank outsider, although in office.

Stephenson Smashed Lineup.

This alignment was completely smashed through the organizing genius and superb stage craft of D. C. Stephenson, "Grand Dragon" of Klan. In less than three years after he came upon the scene, he had made a working agreement with Senator Watson and other leaders, the effect of which was to smash the power of the "Big Four," put Ed Jackson in the Senate, and to give the Stephenson-Watson-Walb faction complete and overwhelming control of the party organization.

But after all, the real bone and sinew of every campaign is in the numerous county candidates and county leaders throughout the state. These men are in a panic over the charges of corruption which have issued from the State prison where the former "Dragon" of both the Republican party and the Klan is serving a life term for murder. In their distress they are turning wistful faces toward the "Old Respectables"—New, Goodrich, Hays and Beveridge—in the hope that their return to leadership might save them from defeat and the party from the foul morass into which the Klan-Republican crowd have led it.

The hope seems faint. New and Beveridge have made it plain that they would not turn a hand to save the situation. Goodrich said last night that if offered the State chairmanship for the remaining two weeks of the campaign, he would decline it.

Salvage Work Up to Hays.

"If the ticket is beaten, and the post is offered to me after the election—well, that would be different," he said. One could almost fancy a note of hope in the voice. If the ticket is to be salvaged by any one of the former "Big Four," apparently it must be done by Hays. Some announcement in that connection might reasonably be anticipated.

With the grand jury in recess, and Thomas Adams, chairman of the Republican Editors' Committee, which broadcast the Stephenson charges, ill at the home of his daughter, today saw little outward activity in the various movements aimed at collecting evidence on the charges. Under the surface, however, there was considerable activity.

A subpena to appear before the grand jury Monday was issued for John H. Kiplinger, an attorney of Rushville, Ind., who is one of Stephenson's attorneys in his pending appeal to the Supreme Court. Kiplinger is a neighbor of Senator Watson.

Following the publication of Stephenson's letters declaring that in the period when he was close to Republican officials there was much corruption and that he stood ready to expose it, he was visited in his cell by John Maroney, a Department of Justice agent, who often acts as an attendant upon Senator Watson. A few days later, Stephenson was visited by Kiplinger and L. G. Julian of Evansville, a former partner and a trusted friend of Stephenson, and widely believed to have custody of Stephenson's confidential papers.

No Evidence From "Dragon."

Subsequent to this, Stephenson was brought to Indianapolis, and so far as can be learned, gave absolutely no evidence to support his charges. Thomas V. Miller, another of his attorneys, told reporters Friday night that Stephenson had been "bought off" by assurances of help in the prosecution of his appeal. Kiplinger said he knew nothing of such a bargain, and doubted that it had been made. However, issuance of the subpena followed Miller's statement.

Prosecutor Remy intends to recall Miss Maxine Elliot, former stenographer for Stephenson. Before testifying yesterday, she told reporters that she had often seen prominent public officials in Stephenson's office, and had seen much correspondence and many documents in which they were involved. She mentioned Gov. Jackson as one of the "dragon's" most intimate friends. It is understood that she forgot most of these facts later, and some of the reporters to whom she had talked may be called to refresh her memory.

The Indianapolis Times, which has taken a leading part in the fight to have the corruption charges investigated, published yesterday that it had located and interviewed, at Mt. Washington, Pa., Foster Strader, former secretary and confidential man to Stephenson, who has been widely sought. Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Hull, photographers, of Anderson, Ind., have related that Strader had them make photographic copies of more than 50 canceled checks, contracts and memoranda owned by Stephenson, soon after Stephenson was arrested on the murder charge.

Strader Said to Deny Errand.

According to the Times, Strader denied performing this errand, and said he was ignorant of the present whereabouts of the documents, although he had delivered a large quantity of them to Stephenson in the Noblesville jail.

Julian, for whom an unsuccessful search also has been conducted, failed to appear at home yesterday, although he was expected. Since visiting the prison with Kiplinger, he has been absent.

Senator Watson Denies Blocking Action by Reed Committee.

By the Associated Press.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Oct. 16.—United States Senator Watson today denied reports that he opposed investigation of charges of political corruption in Indiana by Senator was made through John Hayes, accident last Sunday.

Referring specifically to a statement in the Chicago Tribune of today, which represented Watson as saying he would question the right of the Reed committee to investigate the Indiana situation on the ground that its powers extend only over 1926 primary election matters, Watson said that he had "made no such statement to anyone nor did I even direct any person to make any such statement."

The Tribune said the statement Watson's secretary, Watson is in a hospital here recovering from injuries suffered in an automobile accident last Sunday.

Watson's statement given out today by the Republican State Committee follows:

"I read with surprise the Chicago Tribune statement today that I would oppose the Reed committee coming into Indiana to conduct an investigation. I made no such statement to any one at any time nor did I even direct any person to make any such statement for me.

"Insofar as I am concerned, the Reed committee will be welcomed to Indiana any time its members see fit to come and I shall be glad to aid insofar as my physical condition will permit, in any investigation it shall see fit to undertake."

Hayes also sent a message to the Chicago newspaper denying he had given out the statement.

Thomas H. Adams, publisher of the Vincennes (Ind.) Commercial, said today that he would not take his charges of corruption in Indiana politics before Senator Reed's Senatorial Campaign Investigating Committee at Chicago Monday unless an invitation comes from the committee. Adams recently has been pressing for an investigation by the Reed Committee but he said today he felt that if the committee desired information, it would invite him to appear before it.

BANK CASHIER WHO EMBEZZLED $40,000 TO PLEAD GUILTY

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

FAYETTE, Mo., Oct. 16.—F. A. Temple, cashier of the Franklin State Bank of Franklin, which was closed last month after he confessed embezzling $40,000, tried to get himself into the penitentiary today and failed.

He came here with his lawyer prepared to plead guilty, knowing that the Howard County grand jury would return indictments against him today, but when the jury voted 28 indictments, Circuit Judge Walker refused to accept a plea. He ruled that a jury should fix Temple's punishment.

Temple remains at liberty under $20,000 bond.

GROTESQUE HOLY ART OF TIBET IN DISPLAY

33 Paintings From Central Asia Will Be Exhibted at Art Museum.

Oriental grotesquery of design and brilliance of color distinguish 33 holy paintings of Tibet which will be placed on exhibition at the Art Museum Tuesday, to remain until Nov. 15.

The paintings were obtained from the great monasteries of the "Land of Snow" by George Roerich of the art expedition to Central Asia headed by his father, Nicholas Roerich. The father, a Russian artist of note, is known in St. Louis by the exhibition of his paintings held here several years ago.

All but eight of the Tibetan works to be exhibited here are banners, painted on fine silk or linen which may be rolled up in a small scroll. These are of considerable antiquity, but still are a blaze of color. The other eight, which are framed, were painted by the artist of the present Tashi-lama or sacred ruler of Tibet. Some of those are copies of ancient works and in all appears the fantastic stiffness of design fixed by age-old tradition.

Paints While Pupils Chant.

Every shade and every line is closely bound up with the native religion. The artist is always a Lama, or priest. He paints on a lucky day surrounded by his pupils and to an endless whine and chatter of prayers. No wonder one gathers from a glance over the exhibit; some of the tutelary demons are frightful enough to make one pray.

The aspect of some of them is almost as intimidating as their names. There is mGon-po Phragdrug-pa, who stands on a prostrate human body and holds a string of skulls. Vajrkila, another protective demon has three heads, red, white and green, crowned with skulls, a dark blue body and a dazzling maze of hands wherein may be discerned such significant things as a trident, a dagger, a thunderbolt and a cup made of a human skull.

Many of them run to an unnatural number of heads or arms. How this complicates matters for the artist may be understood when it is explained that not only every object, but every posture of each of the several hands, has its symbolic meaning, and if the artist errs from tradition he believes he has committed a great sin.

Meanings of Postures.

Avalokitecvara, who is noted, besides his name, for refusing to attain Buddhahood until all suffering creatures are saved, is represented as "the Merciful Lord" with 11 faces in red, green and white, and four sets of arms and hands. The first pair is joined at the chest, holding the jewels, others hold various significant implements or weapons, and one hand makes the open gesture of charity.

There are five other common postures of the hands—of preaching, with the index and thumb of the right hand clasping a finger of the left before the chest; argumentation, with the right hand raised and the thumb and index joined; fearlessness, the hand raised, palm outward; meditation, the hands joined on the lap, and of determination, the hand touching the earth as in a great oath.

Imagine the artist faced with the task of distributing them correctly along with an assortment of sacred implements, among a half-dozen pairs of hands.

Intricacy Submerges Simplicity.

Simplicity comes up for air in the depiction of Buddha, a figure always without ornament and with a single pair of hands. One hand in two of the banners exhibited is engaged in "the mudra of touching the earth," as he was said to have done in attesting his will to become a Buddha. But simplicity is submerged again in a flaming sea of intricate design surrounding these central figures. On one there are 16 other figures, and in both the conventional tracery of symbolism is labyrinthine and astounding.

Holiest of the images of lamaism is the Maitreya, the Future One, embodying the hopes of the Buddhist world in a curious analogy to the second coming of Christ, in the collection. Both are by the modern artist, but one is a copy of a very ancient and famous work. In one the Buddha makes the sign of argumentation, and in the other that of instruction. Both are refreshing in comparative clarity of design, and striking in brilliance, even among that colorful group.

WHERE MUSIC IS SWEETEST

"MUSIC ACCENTUATES HOME INTEREST"

A Great Year for Music in St. Louis

JOHN A. KIESELHORST II had not only found a dearth of pianos in St. Louis, but also a great need for good pianos.

He therefore determined to found a Piano House, and thus to furnish the best instruments obtainable to meet the demand for more and better pianos.

Mr. Kieselhorst founded this enterprise on his birthday, September 13, 1879.

Here was now musician, virtuoso, impresario, and merchant—the full heritage of the talents bequeathed to him by his father, John A. Kieselhorst I.

The business was successful from the start, not simply because of the opportunity for it, but for the reason that his musical judgment was widely respected.

WARNING!

Genuine Bestwall is identified by its cream-colored surface.

DON'T try any plaster wall board until you have investigated Beaver Bestwall, the superior plaster wall board. For years it has been used in the finest of homes, for new construction, repairs and remodeling.

Thousands are turning to Beaver Bestwall because of the remarkable advantages it gives—at the same price as other boards.

A Superior Plaster Wall Board

Bestwall is made of the finest gypsum rock plaster taken from Beaver mines. But, unlike other plaster wall boards, Beaver Bestwall has an improved fibre facing—a facing of remarkable toughness—instead of ordinary paper—made by Beaver fibre experts.

In this tough fibre facing, combined with the extra fine quality of the rock plaster core—is the secret of the many advantages in strength, flexibility, decorative possibilities, and others, which users everywhere are finding in Beaver Bestwall.

The tests shown here are only a few through which you may easily prove these facts in your own home. We invite you to do so before you buy. We invite you to make comparisons. We are willing to abide by your decision. We believe you will want Beaver Bestwall, because its advantages will be so obvious, at no greater cost.

More Beautiful Decoration

One of the features of Beaver Bestwall is the smooth, hard surface presented by the improved fibre facing. It is specially sized and calendered. Rub it. Note it does not get "woolly." Make the "Water Glass" and the "Paint" tests. Note how non-absorbent it is. Here is a perfect surface for decoration. Takes paint or calcimine. Colors bond perfectly and dry out evenly. This facing is not the "thirsty" kind. A little paint or calcimine goes a long way. On one room the saving is considerable.

Even wall paper and other modern wall coverings may be applied and removed when necessary without injury to the surface.

This means that with walls of Beaver Bestwall you may redecorate as desired—a most unusual and desirable feature. Yet the same price buys this improved service.

Costs No More Than Others

Beaver Bestwall with this improved, extra tough fibre facing, and other important advantages, costs no more than ordinary plaster wall boards.

That is because Beaver owns and operates both the mines and the mills in which the superior quality of pure gypsum rock plaster is made, and the great mills in which the special fibre facing is made. Beaver fibre products have been made for over 20 years and are used everywhere.

Why use anything but the best when the best costs no more? Why be content with less when the same price buys more?

Use Bestwall now for your spring remodeling and repairing—for new walls and ceilings—for partitions and many other jobs where a fireproof, moisture-proof plaster wall is needed.

Demand the genuine with the tough fibre facing. You will know it anywhere by the cream-colored surface and the Beaver trade-mark. There is a representative Beaver Products Co. dealer near you.

A Simple Comparison

Its tough cover enables the golf ball or baseball to withstand terrific impacts of club and bat. The same thing applies to plaster wall board. The extra tough fibre facing—permanently bonded to the rock plaster center—gives Beaver Bestwall its remarkable strength.

The "Water Glass" and "Paint" Test

Place a sample of Beaver Bestwall over a glass of water. Invert the glass so sample is underneath the water. Also apply paint to a sample. Note how little is absorbed in each case. Very economical.

The "Fire" Test

Every panel of Beaver Bestwall—the superior plaster wall board—is approved by the National Board of Fire Underwriters, and manufactured under their laboratory supervision.

The "Surface" Test

Swiftly rub your finger tips over the fibre facing of Beaver Bestwall. Note that it does not scuff up and become woolly—a feature of the fibre facing which is sized and calendered.

The "Strength" Test

Lay a piece of Beaver Bestwall across two piles of bricks or between two chairs. Pile heavy weights on the center. Note the surprising weight it will hold without breaking.

Easy to Apply

Saws and nails like lumber. Quickly applied to studding over old walls or ceilings. Will not warp, buckle, crack, crumble or fall. Is fireproof, moisture-proof. Produces smooth, clean, permanent walls and ceilings.

Many Uses

Use it for durable, fireproof walls and ceilings in new dwellings and buildings of every kind.

For quick, permanent, economical repairs for remodeling at low cost—reclaiming wasted attic space; lining garage or summer cottages; adding needed rooms, or walls in the cellar; making partitions in stores, factories—and for 101 other uses where a smooth, clean, permanent wall that will not warp, crack, crumble or fall is required.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 16.—Harry B. Hawes, Democratic nominee for United States Senator, has been campaigning in Jackson County for the past two days, closing his campaign here tonight with speeches at Independence and Lee's Summit.

Hawes spoke at two meetings in Kansas City Friday evening, and addressed a meeting at Democratic headquarters today at noon, and a women's meeting in Kansas City this afternoon. All his meetings in Jackson County have been well attended. In his speeches tonight at Independence and Lee's Summit, Hawes said:

"Governor Sam Baker's Senator in his trip through Democratic territory has signally failed in his effort to create discord and break Democratic harmony. Having failed to make a dent in the Democratic ranks the Governor's Senator is now making the old, fixed appeal to Republicans for their votes on the plea that Mr. Coolidge needs a Senator, that his policies may be upheld. He has throughout the campaign been afraid, so far, to emphasize an appeal to Coolidge Republicans. The very first act of the Governor's appointee was to oppose President Coolidge and vote against the Coolidge World Court, with his eye upon Missouri votes, he was not a loyal supporter of the President.

Williams' Record Reviewed.

"The railroad Labor Bill, representing the wishes of two millions of railroad employes, and twenty billions of railroad capital, providing for an adjustment board for railroad disputes which prevented strikes and walkouts, was introduced by administration leaders in the House and the Senate. It is the one labor bill of any importance passed in the last four years by Congress, and this, a Coolidge administration measure, was opposed by the Governor's Senator. He was opposed to the Coolidge Farm Bill, he opposed the Coolidge World Court, and the Coolidge Labor Adjustment Bill. These have been the outstanding, conspicuous and prominent administration measures which were considered during his temporary presence in the Senate.

"Every appeal so far in the campaign has been in effect a promise to betray the national administration. And now, at the eleventh hour, comes the usual wobble to the other side. During the course of the campaign, however, he may have some definite statements in the 10 speeches which the Governor's Senator will make in St. Louis, where he promises to definitely define his position on the prohibition matter. Whether this definite stand will shock Mr. Hyle or please Mr. Kiel still remains a matter of mystery, but one thing is certain, if he takes a clean-cut, honest statement, it will make Mr. Hyde angry or Mr. Kiel unhappy, which may result in the determination of the Republican Board of Strategy to prevent the Governor's Senator from making any speeches in St. Louis.

"His vote against the labor bill, the outstanding bill on that subject in the last six years, will be difficult of explanation, and I have no hesitancy in stating with emphasis that he will not discuss it, or explain his opposition, in which he stood almost singly and alone in the entire Missouri delegation.

Military Proposal Ridiculed.

"The program which the Governor's Senator proposed in the Constitutional Convention to place the women of our State under compulsory military control during time of war is arousing some resentment, and everywhere some amusement. To put the League of Women Voters in the trenches, to ask the W. C. T. U. to move into an army kitchen, and the Daughters of the American Revolution to act as litter bearers in time of war has advanced a new political theory very interesting to the leaders of these patriotic organizations. The thought back of this compulsory service for women in time of war shatters old American traditions so far as manhood and womanhood are concerned, and even in animal life it is recognized that it is the duty of the female to take care of the home, and the male to do such fighting as is necessary.

Any issue, however, which can be presented which will avoid a discussion of the tariff, of centralization or of national and State scandals, is proving to be of use to the Governor's Senator.

"I am concluding tonight my last speech in the western portion of the state, and will return to St. Louis and the eastern tier of counties with the confident feeling that not even that $100,000 which Dr. Clements says is necessary to elect the Governor's Senator will defeat the determination of the people on this end of the state, to make a radical change in political management."

Bainbridge Colby and Thomas Gore to Speak for Hawes.

Hugo Black, prospective United States Senator from Mississippi, Bainbridge Colby, former Secretary of State, and Thomas Gore, former Senator from Oklahoma, will take part in the Democratic Senatorial and State campaigns in Missouri speaking at rallies in various parts of the state during this week and next.

W. H. Meredith, of Poplar Bluff, who was defeated in the Democratic primary for the United States Senate by Harry B. Hawes, will speak for Hawes at Gideon, on Tuesday, and Portageville on Wednesday.

11 DROWNED WHEN SHIP GOES DOWN IN ST. LAWRENCE RIVER

Theory Is Cargo Shifted in Heavy Seas, Causing Steamer to Upset.

By the Associated Press.

QUEBEC, Que., Oct. 16.—In the dark of last night 11 persons perished in the waters of lower St. Lawrence River when the steamer Guide foundered eight miles from Codbout, some 200 miles from here.

The cause of the disaster to the 150-ton boat, a steel passenger and cargo carrier, is not determined, and the only theory advanced is that her cargo shifted in the heavy seas which were running, causing her to capsize. The vessel was returning along her route from north shore St. Lawrence points and had passed Point Des Monts, 15 miles from where she sank, without giving any distress signals. Further, it is thought the disaster must have been sudden or the ship would have been brought nearer shore in an attempt at beaching had there been appreciable warning. No wireless was carried.

Four or five passengers, including one woman, Miss Anna Marcoux, were lost, and six or seven of the crew, including Capt. M. Caron. Among the others lost were first mate Henri Fortin, J. K. Laflamme, a former Mayor of the city of Levis, Quebec; Joseph Belanger of Natashquan, Que., and Joseph Collar of Romaine, Que.

Five of the crew were saved and are being sheltered at farmhouses near the scene of the wreck.

The Guide was an Arctic exploration ship years ago and was sailed by the Canadian explorer, Capt. J. E. Bernier. She was built under special specifications, he said, which should have made her able to last 100 years.

General Motors Officer Near Death.

PARIS, Oct. 16.—H. H. Bassett, vice president of the General Motors Corporation, is near death in the American Hospital at Neuilly. He was stricken a few days ago with bronchial pneumonia in both lungs. Since then he has sunk rapidly and his physician informed the Associated Press that his condition was hopeless.

MISSOURI FARM LEADER INDORSES HARRY B. HAWES

William Hirth Says Democratic Nominee for U. S. Senate Is Real Friend of Farmer.

By CURTIS A. BETTS.
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

CLINTON, Mo., Oct. 16.—William Hirth of Columbia, recognized as the head of the Missouri Farmers' Association, having a membership of nearly 60,000 in Missouri, has given his indorsement to Harry B. Hawes, Democratic nominee for the United States Senate, as the "real friend of the farmer" on his legislative record compared to that of Senator Williams.

Hirth in this month's The Missouri Farmer, the official paper of the Association, said he preferred a man who "would not get buck ague when h—— begins to pop."

Indorsement by Hirth is considered of real value to a candidate because of the following he has built up among farmers and because he has been their representative in presenting their arguments to congressional and legislative committees. He frequently has appeared for them in Washington and Jefferson City.

Approves Other Democrats.

In addition to his indorsement of Hawes, Hirth approved the candidacies of Judge Ernest Gantt of Mexico for Supreme Judge and of Charles A. Lee of Butler for State Superintendent of Schools. Both are Democrats.

He approved Proposition No. 1, the Workmen's Compensation Law, and Proposition No. 2, the Police Pension Act. He disapproved No. 3 on the ground that it was intended to defeat workmen's compensation, and also disapproved No. 4, which proposes repeal of the State prohibition enforcement laws.

Hirth prefaced his editorial comment on the campaign with the statement that he had received many letters from farmers asking his views, as between candidates, and his views on the amendments. He said that although he expected to be criticised in some quarters, he would state his opinions.

Statement on Senate Race.

"As to the United States Senator," his article said, "our readers will recall that in the primary campaign the Missouri Farmer advised Republican farmers to support George H. Williams as against David M. Proctor and this because the latter had made such a vicious attack upon certain Missouri farmer associations bills while a member of the State Senate Committee and therefore between the two gentlemen I greatly preferred Mr. Williams.

"In the coming showdown, however, I expect to vote for Harry B. Hawes because when the fierce struggle was on in the National House, Mr. Hawes not only voted for the Haughen bill, but made a powerful plea for it on the floor.

"On the other hand, while Senator Williams finally voted for our bill, he qualified his vote with a statement that he considered it uneconomic and unsound, an indictment, which, however kindly he may have intended it, gave great joy to our enemies.

Indorsement of Hawes.

"And, therefore, I am given to choose between Senator Williams, who believes that the only bill I think can save agriculture is uneconomic and unsound, and Mr. Hawes, who expresses the fullest faith in its soundness. In such a situation, I shall vote for Mr. Hawes, who has thrown all doubt to the winds and who is willing to go through, whole hog or none."

Hirth referred to Senator Williams' amendment covering the cotton equalization fee, saying that it would have driven every Southern friend from the bill.

"I prefer a Senator who has burned his bridges behind him," Hirth said, "and who will not get the buck ague when H—begins to pop."

After indorsing all candidates for Congress who supported the farm bills, Hirth took up the other State candidates. He chose to approve Judge Gantt over Judge Otto, Republican, he said, because of Otto's youth and inexperience.

Objections to Otto.

Hirth said he did not consider it sound public policy to elect to the highest judicial position in the State a man as "youthful and inexperienced as Otto." He denied a rumor that Judge Gantt had shown an unfriendliness to farmers, asserting that Gantt on several occasions had even adjourned court that the farmers might use his courtroom for a meeting place.

Lee, he said, he considered the "best and most constructive friend the rural schools of the State ever had had," and that he would view his defeat as a "calamity."

MRS. J. T. W.—Rub fresh lard over the grease spots and let it remain over night. Wash garments in the usual way with plenty of warm soapsuds after the lard has loosened the grease.

J. W. A.—The automobile route from De Soto to Carthage, Mo., is as follows: On No. 21 to Potosi, No. 62 to Steelville, No. 19 to Cuba and No. 14 to Springfield, to Carthage. There are some stretches of dirt road that are very muddy in wet weather.

Stock selected from a nearby nursery is apt to be properly acclimated to local soil, weather and growing conditions.

H. E. B.—Whether the girl can obtain the money held in trust for her depends on the provisions of the will under which the money is granted. Having you appointed as guardian would not help her get the money. Get a copy of the will to determine the exact status of the trust fund.

A. D. W.—Your case can be adequately treated at Barnes Hospital because that institution is equipped to supply the electric heat necessary to relieve such rheumatic conditions.

WAMPOLE. — Tuberculin has been used and is still used in the treatment of tuberculosis, but it is not always successful and safe to use in some cases. TON MARKET CLOSES AT LOWEST POINT OF DAY

By Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—The easier tone developed in the cotton market late today was in evidence again today. Active contracts selling off to 13.00 or points net lower under continued South- and Wall street selling. Closing prices were the lowest of the day, with market barely steady at net declines of 44 points.

The opening was steady, but 24 to 36 points lower under overnight selling orders which included further hedging by South. Initial offerings were readily absorbed by week-end covering and trade investment buying, but rallies of 10 to 15 points appeared to meet more selling particularly by brokers with Wall street connections. This was attributed to liquidation of long contracts purchased earlier in the week, and probably influenced to some extent by weakness in the stock market.

Southern selling continued also, while demand tapered off to some extent after the early buying orders had been supplied, the foreign market becoming rather weak and unsettled.

December broke to 12.91, while March sold off to 13.25, net declines of 40 to 44 points on active positions and reactions of about 70 points from the high prices touched on the rally yesterday morning.

Reports of further showers in the Southwest were accompanied by complaints of damage to grades, and additional advices were received here, stating that low grade cotton was being abandoned in the fields owing to the scarcity and high cost of labor for picking. These advices evidently had little immediate effect on sentiment, and some of the local traders took the reports of increased hedging to mean that the rallies of the past few days had brought out increased offerings of spot cotton in the South.

Private cables reported trade calling and covering in Liverpool, but said the market was lower under hedge selling and local or continental liquidation.

Trade interests were credited with buying quite heavily here on the late forenoon break believed to be partly for foreign account.

Fat hair goats $2 to $3.25; thin to fair goats $1 to $2. Fat kids $5 to $6; thin to fair kids $2 to $4.

Horses and Mules.

Horse and mule receipts at the St. Louis market were of good volume during the week and embraced both native and western descriptions with the latter predominating. Arrivals also ran largely to mules and it was in this department that most of the bearish sentiment was exerted. Declines of $10 to $15 per head applied to virtually all grades and sellers had difficulty in effecting clearance.

In horses, the southern trade was of small account, although the trade succeeded in moving some of the big work kinds and riders of quality. Combined liberal receipts of horses and mules during the week aggregated 1264 head. Clearance was fair.

Moderate Changes in Livestock Prices

	Last Week.	Prev. Week.	Year Ago.
Cattle and calves	40,058	40,312	38,609
Hogs	53,860	65,824	66,478
Sheep	18,534	18,887	16,812
Horses and Mules	1,264	1,190	2,100
Totals.	123,726	126,313	123,999

Changes in livestock prices at the St. Louis National Stock Yards last week were usually kept within moderate limits. The most radical movement was a $10 to $15 decline in mules, caused largely by the unfavorable price position of cotton. Horses were not materially changed. In the killing classes, moderate advances were recorded in beef steers and hogs. Sheep and lambs were about steady and butcher cattle closed steady to lower. Receipts in the aggregate at the various departments. The combined run amounted to approximately 123,726 head, about in line with and to rivals the previous week and a year ago. Cattle and calves alone aggregated 40,600 head. Beef steers were practically firm and closing prices in both native and Western offerings were about 15c to 25c high er. Native consignments sold at $8.50 to $10.25 per hundredweight, and corn drayes cashed upward to $11.75. Kansas and Oklahoma grass steers at approximately 175 cars, cashed mainly at a spread of $6 to $6.75. Light yearling steers and heifers ruled steady to mostly 25c lower on the best kind and 25c to 50c down on grass consignments. The latter kinds cashed mainly at $5 to $7. Cow stuff closed about steady after alternating periods of strength and weakness. Beef cows late bulked at $4.75 to $5.75, followed by cutters at $4 to $4.50 and canners at $3.50 to $3.75. Bulls bulled to a steady strength mid-week and closed about steady. Veal calves were generally 50c lower. Bulk desirable at $5 to $8.50 and common kinds as low as $4. Beef bulls with weight were eligible to $5.75 and $6. Stocker and feeder cattle again dropped sharply heretofore. Trading increased somewhat over the previous week, however, and more than 3000 head left the yards for country points. Steers sold in a spread of $5.25 to $7.85, while cows were quotable at $4 to $5. Heifers $5 to $6.75 and bulls $4.25 to $5.75.

Choice veal calves during the week sold in a range of $14.50 to $15.25, with the smaller grades showing the close. The closing top the previous week was $15.50. The plainer calves were also lower, first cuts cashing around $12 and heavy calves $6 to $8. There was a liberal supply of wethers here that sold at prices ranging from $4.00 to $8.00 the lowest figure claiming some of the common kinds. Few yearling and two-year-olds mixed sold as high as $9.00. Late in the week there was a weak feeling in the market for aged stock and prices closed barely steady. some southern offerings with quality nearly approaching that of the $9.00 kinds bringing $7.50. Choppers and canners sold from $3.00 to $3.50 with bucks clearing at $2.50 to $4.00. Complete quotations follow:

Good to choice lambs $13 to $13.75; medium to good $12 to $13; plain to medium $10 to $12; cull and common $8 to $9. Lead, Zinc and Copper

Lead was weak at $8.10 per 100 lbs. in St. Louis Saturday. Zinc was quiet at $7.35 per 100 pounds.

NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—First quotations for copper by the recently organized copper exporters, Inc., representing leading producers of the metal throughout the world, placed the figure at 14.40 cents a pound. C. F. Cornelius Kelley, president of Anaconda Copper, heads the organization.

NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—Consumption of copper in the United States during 1926, at the present rate of shipments, will exceed 1,750,000,000 pounds, said George A. Sloan, secretary of the Copper and Brass Research Association, in addressing the National Association of Purchasing Agents at Chicago. This is the greatest in the history of the industry, not excluding the war years.

NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—The Evening Post in its weekly copyrighted financial review, says:

"To the sum total of information of underlying condition very little of importance has been added this week, but the wider swings up and down in the stock market reveal an increasing anxiety among speculators over the position they should maintain. On Wednesday and Thursday stocks were moved up, and then on Friday the market suddenly reversed its direction and prices fell further than in any session since the termination of the March decline. Further losses were recorded today. There was nothing in the news around the middle of the week to send stocks higher and nothing yesterday to bring on a good sized reaction. These alternating rallies and declines reflect a combination of forces, some favorable and some unfavorable, that bear on the speculative position of the market, but if they portend a fundamental change in industry the fact is not yet revealed in the trade statistics.

Vast Liquidation.

"A vast amount of liquidation has occurred in the market in recent weeks. That the stock market after a long rise from the March lows should encounter resistance is in no way surprising. Prices had recovered the peak levels of early 1926 in many instances and the very fact that paper losses had been made up was enough to persuade some speculators to sell. The prophet that draws the inference on the basis of a setback in the market that a turn for the bad lies just around the corner in business may awake six months from now to find that he was entirely wrong. Those that concluded from the March break that depression was ahead found how far wrong predictions based purely on market movements may be.

Key Industries Above Normal.

"Certainly the key industries still are operating at a rate that is better than normal, the continued enormous carloadings indicate that goods are passing rapidly into consumption, employment is widespread and wages high and credit is ample to meet all needs, even if it does not flow so freely as once it did. Fears that the country may lose its position in the field of foreign trade again have been dispelled by the reports of the Department of Commerce. Our merchandise exports in September reached a new high for the month in five years at $450,000,000 and $50,000,000 larger than the best previous month for 1926 to date. Exports for September, 1925, were $420,000,000. This pronounced gain in exports should put to rest for a time the cries of the calamity howlers for, it so happens, imports for September, $345,000,000, fell below those for the same month a year ago. Wherein do these figures reveal any cause for alarm from foreign competition?

Cotton Decline Cloud.

"The cloud than hangs heaviest on the horizon is the precipitous drop in the price of raw cotton, which threatens to reduce the cash income of the cotton growers from roughly $1,750,000,000 for last year to an amount about $500,000,000 lower. Of course, these figures are based on prices that may not prevail at the time the major portion of the crop is marketed and on the last Government estimate. The event has been taken philosophically by most people, partly because that was the more pleasant way to take it and partly because this dark cloud does contain the promise of something brighter for the distant future in the shape of a rehabilitated cotton industry."

Favorable Trade Balance.

"With a so-called favorable balance of $105,000,000 for the month it might be reasoned that the problem of debt settlement is made more difficult by a continued heavy surplus of outgoing merchandise. The international movement of gold continued to show the drift from the United States, however, and, after all, the big September surplus of merchandise export reflects largely a seasonal condition. The United States has been able in recent years not only to maintain its own against foreign competition, but actually to widen its market abroad. With agricultural products and the general price level substantially lower than a year ago, the gain in the volume of export trade is more considerable than the dollar values indicate.

Further Decline Saturday.

"The process of readjusting security prices to lower levels was continued in fairly active trading on the stock market today, with the result that fresh lows for the movement were reached in all parts of the list. Speculators for the decline dominated the situation, throwing large blocks of stock on the market when any of the favorites showed signs of rallying.

Decline Is Uniform.

"Under the impetus of continued liquidation the decline in stock prices was rather uniform in all groups, many of the industrial favorites establishing new low levels for the movement and some dropping to record lows for the year. In the absence of substantial support of any kind, operators for the decline were in complete control and made good progress in spite of scattered covering by speculators who were willing to remain out of the market over the weekend. Traders and commission house observers saw in the weekly commercial reviews indications of trade slackening and suggested disposing of long lines in industrial securities. Much attention was given to the view of Col. Leonard P. Ayres that October's business would serve as an indicator of future operations and that if little or no expansion takes place this month it may be assumed a slow reaction is at hand. In this connection, it was pointed out the commercial agencies found little evidence in the last week of the industrial activity that developed in August and continued last month.

"Stop-Loss Orders Uncovered.

"New setbacks uncovered 'stop-loss' orders, which added impetus to the reaction. Commission houses reported an increase in bearish sentiment. A mixed trend prevailed in the bond market, several convertible issues easing off with stocks.

Pressure Spreads to Rails.

"Pressure directed against industrials and specialties spread to rail shares, especially some of the Southern carriers, as a reflection of renewed selling in the cotton market. Atlantic Coast Line was down, while Chesapeake & Ohio, Pere Marquette, Baltimore & Ohio and others lost ground. General Motors, U. S. Steel, Allied Chemical, Dupont and others fell to new low levels for the movement, while bottom prices for the year were recorded by Mack Trucks, Hudson, Jordan and other favorites.

Cotton Is Down.

"Increased hedge selling flooded the cotton market and brought declines of from $1 to $2 a bale. Offerings were increased by profit-taking sales on the part of traders who bought cotton on last week's break.

Exchange Irregular.

"Readjustments in the foreign exchange market were irregular, and trading was in small volume. Sterling lost a fraction and French francs eased off slightly, but lire continued to rally. Pesetas dropped back again. Chinese rates lacked support.

Clearing House Statement.

"Light on the credit situation was provided in the weekly statement of the Clearing House banks, which revealed a decline in the excess reserves and pointed to continuance of firm money rates. The surplus decreased $11,960,340, bringing the excess reserves to $26,032,990, against $37,993,330 a week ago. Loans, discounts, etc., decreased $45,447,000."

SHARES SOLD

NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—Total sales for the week on the New York Stock Exchange were 8,624,700 shares, compared with 12,122,700 last week, 11,502,500 same week a year ago and 3,893,900 two years ago.

U. S. STEEL 23 POINTS UNDER HIGH

Generals Motors Almost 30 Points and Dupont 43 Points Below Top Figure of Two Weeks Ago.

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Oct. 16. — The sharpest break in the stock prices since the violent declines of last March and another setback in the motion market crushed promising recoveries.

The liquidation which shook the stock market came as a climax to a fortnight of declining prices. Except for a short-lived technical rally, bearish influences were in control, forcing the market values of speculative leaders down from 20 to 45 points below their recent high marks. U. S. Steel, for example, sold as low as 136¼, compared with its recent peak of 158½. General Motors dipped almost 30 points and Dupont 43 points below their high figures of two weeks ago. A corresponding reaction took place in many other railroad and industrial issues. Several of the popular automobile shares went to 1926 lows.

Two Selling Waves.

A selling movement shook the stock market at the beginning as well as at the end of the week. Money rates remained relatively firm, but less concern was manifested over credit conditions than in previous weeks.

A prominent motor concern announced a price cut in a car and this made the automobile stocks vulnerable targets for bear attacks throughout the week. Hudson, Moon, Mack Trucks and other leading issues slumped to the lowest levels of the year, and General Motors was driven down sharply.

The week's most significant development in the steel trade was the announcement of a reduction in buying on the part of motor manufacturers, but confidence was maintained at the recent high rate. Buying by railroads was a feature. Steel Market Review said. U. S. Steel was hammered to the lowest level since the final week of July, more than 20 points under its 1926 peak, and Gulf States Steel sold at the year's bottom price.

Realizing in Rails.

Railroad shares were strengthened for a time by the belief that heavy car loadings through September would be reflected in larger earnings. Another flurry of buying in the Van Sweringen issues accompanied report that a further division of the Nickel Plate merger terms was planned and prices declared rapidly until realizing sales were encountered. Atlantic Coast Line sold some 70 poin's below its record of 262½, attained at the height of the Florida boom.

Although the outlook for the copper market was brightened by the formation of a world wide export association, shares of the leading producing companies made noteworthy response.

CHILD'S PLAY PAYS $26.60 FOR PLACE

Victory of Bedwell Horse in Fairmount Feature Causes Mild Surprise—10,000 View the Race.

By Dent McSkimming.

Cheered on by a crowd of 10,000 persons, the largest gathering at the meeting, Senator Norris scored a mild upset in defeating Stampdale and Reputation in winning the Lincoln Field's Handicap, feature event of yesterday's race program at the Fairmount Jockey Club track on the Collinsville road.

The failure of Stampdale to win caused no greater surprise to the large crowd than the wonderful showing of A. P. Foley's Child's Play, which finished second. Stampdale, with no excuses, was beaten for the place money by the St. Louis owned mare, Magic Wand, which would have paid a hatful had he won, was a strong fourth, narrowly squeezed out of the money.

In the first three furlongs of this dash event, Reputation was the pacemaker and it was believed by many that he needed only this good, clean break to make him a winner. However, both Chief Uncas and Child's Play were even with Reputation before they left the back stretch, and as they swung around the turn they were three abreast.

As the field entered the stretch, Senator Norris, under the expert handling of F. J. Baker, shot through a hole and came through on the outside of the three leaders.

Chief Uncas Quits.

Chief Uncas tired at the eighth pole and Reputation also dropped out of it, but Child's Play, urged strongly by Byron Ray, refused to weaken. Senator Norris had just an ounce more speed, however, and took the lead about 70 yards from the finish and won by half a length. The price paid on Child's Play to place was one of the longest of the day, $26.50 for $2.

The bettors in the big crowd were divided between H. G. Bedwell's Forelark and M. Lowenstein's colt, Frank McMahon, in the opening race. The running of the race proved that students of form knew what they were doing, for Forelark had the lead through the greater part of the six furlongs, but was beaten in the stretch by Frank McMahon. Practical was tied.

It looked like the favorites were going to enjoy a big day when the odds-on choice, Queen Anna Marie, won the second in rather easy fashion. August Busch's filly, Wish-ton-Wish, gave the leader a real battle for the first four fur-

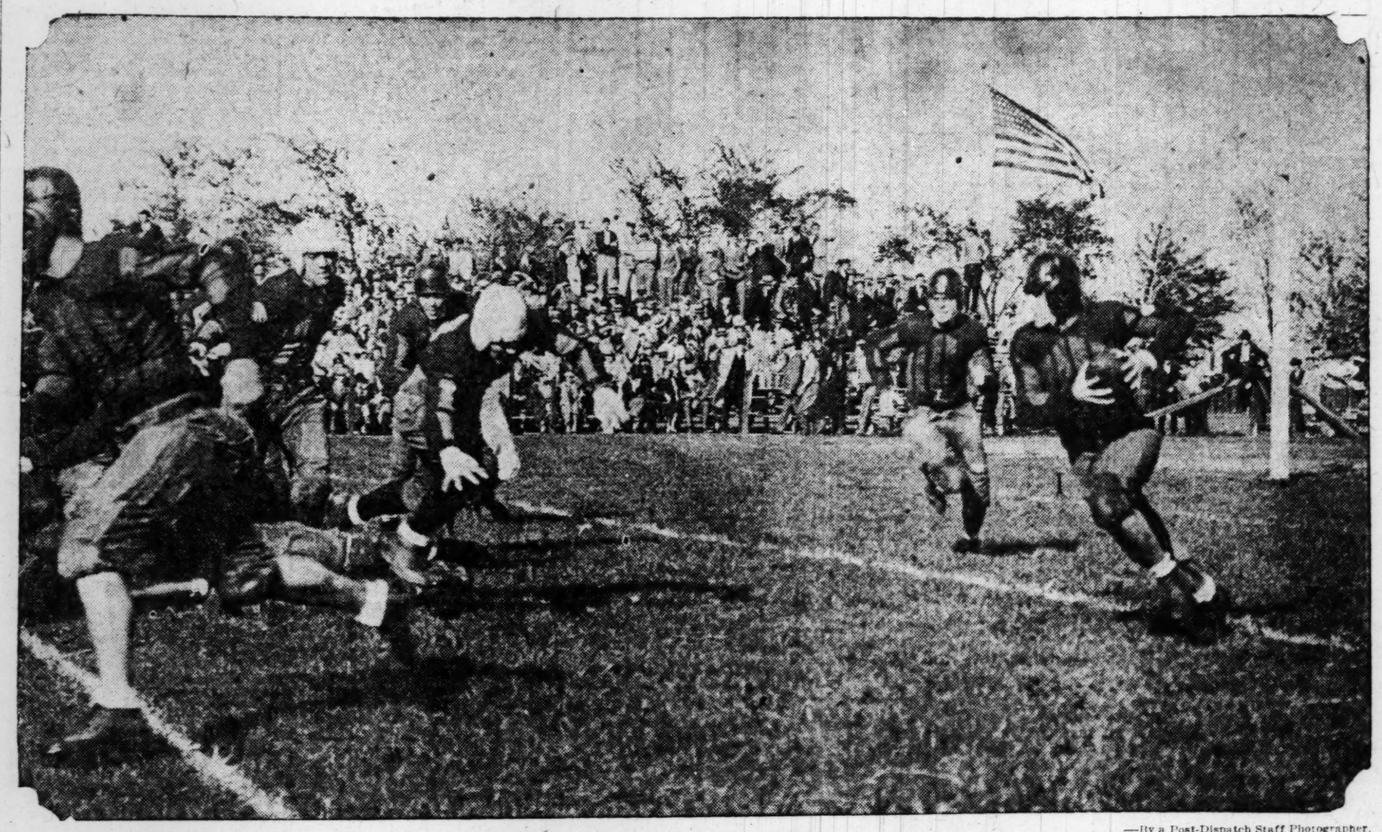
Washington Quarterback, Starting One of the Runs Which Led to a Touchdown



—By a Post-Dispatch Staff Photographer.

AL HAYES was one of the highlights of the Nebraska game, from the Bears' viewpoint. Using specially made sprinting shoes, he completed several big gains, the best a dash of over 40 yards without interference across the Cornhuskers' goal line.

AL HAYES THRILLS CROWD WITH 42-YARD RUN FOR BEARS' ONLY TOUCHDOWN

Higgins' Men Play Doggedly Against Bulky Opponents, but Cornhuskers Batter Them Back With Line Plunges.

By J. Walter Goldstein.

A bunch of behemoths came out of the cornfields of Nebraska yesterday afternoon, and spent enough time on Francis Field to demonstrate to 8000 followers of Washington University's football fortunes that good big men count for much more than good little men on a gridiron. A score of 20 to 6 indicates that they expressed themselves in a rather convincing fashion.

When 20 young stalwarts from the State made famous by Grover Cleveland Alexander and the late W. J. Bryan, rumbled on the field, the 8000 assembled got some idea of what was to follow. The visitors were immediately followed by the local varsity, and it was then that the heft of the opposition expressed itself. If Washington's athletes were greeted by cheers for the Bears, it was only fair to hail Nebraska as the dinosaurs.

There was about a 17-pound to the man weight advantage with the Cornhuskers and as a result all of the strategy, the fleetness of foot and the "I'd die for dear old Alma" spirit that Washington could muster went for nought. It was beef-bruising, crashing, powerful beef—that decided the issue yesterday. The Bears showed a fine spirited, dogged resistence; but Nebraska said it with poundage.

Nebraska Gains 300 Yards.

The point total represents the scoring of three touchdowns and two subsequent goals by Coach Bearg's men to a lone touchdown by Washington. It does not tell how the visitors trampled over, around and through the thin Green line for more than 300 yards and 20 first downs; while the local players could penetrate the wall of brawn for only 88 yards and two first downs in line efforts. More than half of this yardage was contributed by the fleet-footed Hayes in two dazzling broken field runs. Augmenting this pair of first downs were two others which came through an aerial attack.

The effect of the weight advantage was greatly emphasized by the Cornhuskers through their method of employing it. On every play the guards and ends fell back from the line of scrimmage until the ball was snapped. Then the quartet of linemen swept into the play with the backs, the pair of 190-pound guards serving as a line-crunshing vanguard for the ball carrier. Practically all of the plays called for cut-ins, the runner heading out to the flank with his interference sweeping the defense outward. When past the scrimmage line, the runner would cut in, his line of march describing a parabola. A whole squad of Bears was needed to halt these powerful thrusts.

Washington got off on the wrong foot with the opening play of the game. Nebraska booted to the 10-yard line and the local interference was sweeping downfield in business-like fashion, when Harding received the ball. On his first step however, his foot went out of bounds and the Green had its back against the wall before the game was 15 seconds old.

On the first two plays, a two-yard plunge and a yell-inspiring run by Hayes around end, gave first down on the 23-yard line. Here indeed was an auspicious comeback after a disheartening start.

Then the Bear board of strategy went gaflooey. Some unorthodox person called for a pass in home territory. It was a surprise attack, but somebody failed to reckon with a failure. A forward pass would have been bad enough; but to do the stupid job right, a lateral pass was called for, leaving the whole field open to an interception.

Forward Pass From Brown to Oelrich Gives Nebraska Its First Touchdown

A Washington man was free, but Hayes misdirected his flip and "Pub" Brown intercepted. He returned to Washington's 24-yard line, where he was pulled down. Three line charges gave a first down. Washington held nobly on the next three attacks, but the fourth was a low swift pass from Brown to Oelrich, who got free on the right of the Bear line and scampered across for a touchdown. The goal kick was missed.

Higgins' men did not get possession of the ball for more than a half dozen scrimmages during the remainder of the quarter; but showed some nice defensive work. Twice the Cornhuskers started downfield, but dogged resistance scotched both of their marches. In one instance the mastodons were held for one yard in three charges and then made a feeble place kick effort on the fourth.

Not until late in the second quarter were the Nebraskans able to score again and that came as a result of a "fluke" punt by Hayes. This punting, by the way, was pretty much of a bete noir for the Bear eleven. McDonough who was to have been assigned the punting job was out of the game because of an injury. Whittier and Senne then essayed the role; but both are slow motion artists and with the Nebraska line charging through with fierce dispatch, it was deemed unsafe to depend on them. Thus did Hayes, an untried booter get the assignment; and in most cases he handled himself well enough to stand off the opposition's kicking yardage.

Washington had been held on its 18-yard line and then Hayes dropped back to kick the ball out of danger. He had to hurry and as a result the ball went out of bounds on Washington's 38-yard mark. A typical Nebraska offensive was then sponsored and five

Penn Eleven Easily Beats Chicago Maroons, 27 to 0; Westerners Never Threaten

Eastern Team Shows Powerful Running Attack and Well-Masked Plays in Scoring Four Touchdowns Against Stagg's Athletes.

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 16.—Maintaining its traditional supremacy with a powerful running attack, Pennsylvania routed Chicago in the sixth renewal of their intersectional gridiron struggle before 40,000 spectators today, 27 to 0.

Displaying a powerful offensive which slashed the line and circled the ends for long gains in every period, the Red and Blue eleven piled up four touchdowns to score Pennsylvania's most crushing triumph over a Stagg team since 1900. Only in the second period were the Maroon cohorts able to temporarily chuck a spectacular attack that swept through the Chicago ranks for 28 first downs.

The invading host, pitting straight, old-fashioned football against the cleverly masked plays of Coach Lou Young's brilliant team, threatened at no point of the contest. The plunges of their husky backs pounded vainly on a steel-ribbed Quaker defense, and only one Chicago first down punctuated the parade of Pennsylvania's battering backfield.

The Philadelphia team counted soon after the opening of the first period. Halted on their initial assault when Chicago blocked Paul Scull's drop kick, Pennsylvania's ball carriers promptly began another series of tackle thrusts and aerials which carried the Eastern machine in an unbroken march down the field. Paul Murphy, featuring the advance with a 30-yard dash, subsequently dived over the goal line for Pennsylvania's first touchdown.

After a scoreless second quarter, Pennsylvania hurled back Chicago for three more touchdowns in the last half, Fields going over twice and Rogers once. An additional Red and Blue touchdown was prevented when Scull fumbled after crossing the final chalk mark early in the third period, while the Chicago warriors checked a curtain assault in the last quarter on their own 10-yard line.

McGunigle, a Substitute, Proves Star—First Defeat for Big Green Since 1923.

By the Associated Press.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 16.—Dartmouth's high-geared eleven, generally recognized as the 1925 national champion, was stopped short today by Yale and sent down to defeat for the first time in three years.

The Elis tossed away a half dozen opportunities to score by loose handling of the ball, but still packed sufficient punch to overcome the big Green by a margin of one touchdown, 14 to 7, in a battle that thrilled 53,000 spectators in the Yale Bowl.

Yale's victory was as decisive as it was sensational in upsetting the Indians from the North, who entered the game strong favorites. Except for a brilliant drive in the second quarter, a 65-yard march that resulted in Black scoring its only touchdown, Dartmouth was out-generaled and outplayed by a Blue team that exhibited power, speed and versatility in abundance.

Forward Passes Net Scores.

The Elis beat Dartmouth at the latter's own game, as a matter of fact, for both Blue touchdowns came on well-executed forward passes of the type which have figured in Dartmouth's sensational performances over the past few years. A short toss, Noble to Cline, resulted in Yale's first touchdown in the third quarter, and a 15-yard heave, McGunigle to Scott, produced the winning tally in the final quarter with less than four minutes to play.

Yale started the game handicapped by the absence of several regulars, but her substitutes more than made up for this with an unheralded figure, "Doc" McGunigle

Wolff Defeats Held 2 Up To Capture District Golf Title for the Third Time

Sunset Player Wins on Thirty-Sixth, When His Opponent Is Trapped Behind Tree and Forced to Concede Hole, Match and Championship.

After four years, the St. Louis district golf crown again rests securely on the head of Clarence Wolf of Sunset Hills Country Club.

Eddie Held gave up the battle for the championship on the last hole of the 36 yesterday afternoon after a stubborn and keenly contested battle with Wolff. The score was two up. Luck had no favors to confer on Held yesterday. Trailing two up on the next to last tee he made a remarkable recovery to win the hole and force Wolff to play the thirty-sixth. But here Eddie found himself hopelessly trapped behind a tree and the thrilling contest ended in an anticlimax by his conceding the hole, the match and the championship. The Algonquin player put up an uphill battle almost all the way. His game was not at its best.

Wolff's victory keeps him in the big three of St. Louis golf circles. James Manion won the state title by defeating Wolff over the Westwood course. Held won the Trans-Mississippi title over the Algonquin course, defeating Manion in one of the rounds of the tourney. Now Wolff defeats Held to annex the district title.

His Third Time to Win.

Wolff is no stranger to the district golf title. He won it first in 1919, then annexed it again in 1922. Both successes were over the Bellerive course. In 1922 he set the course record when he traveled the distance in 66.

His scores were not so impressive yesterday. He and Held made the first 18 in 76, while Wolff had a 74 for the second 18, while Held traveled this distance in a 76.

There was a high wind when the match got under way and both players' drives were short, their putting game, however, keeping down the scores. Wolff had a one-up lead when the two finalists teed off at the ninth. Held squared the match at the turn when Wolf drove into the lake. The cards:

Held—out .5 3 4 4 4 4 5 6 4—39
Wolff—out 4 3 3 4 4 5 4 6 5 5—39

Tied at End of 18.

At the end of the next 18 holes the two finalists were tied again, both making the route in 37 for a total of 76 for the 18.

The cards:

Held—in ..4 5 5 3 4 4 5 4 3—37
Wolff—in .4 5 4 3 4 4 5 5 3—37

Wolf started out with a two-up lead when the players again teed off, but Held rallied and when the twenty-seventh hole was reached the Algonquin player was leading one up. The cards:

Held—out .5 4 3 4 4 4 5 5 4—38
Wolff—out 4 3 4 5 4 4 5 5 5—39

Held never again got the lead after Wolf won the twenty-ninth hole to make the match all square at this point. The cards for the final nine holes were as follows:

Held—in ..4 5 4 4 4 4 5 3 5—38
Wolff—in .4 4 4 4 3 4 4 5 3—35

Results of other final matches in the district tournament were as follows:

Class A.

Class B.

Consolation.

MARQUETTE SMASHES LIGHT ST. LOUIS U. LINE TO WIN, 28-

Leary Shines With Long Runs and Makes Two of Team's Scores

Billikens Make Good Showing in Third Quarter, but Twice Lose Ball on Downs Near Visitors' Goal Line —St. Louis Makes 11 First Downs — 6000 Persons Attend.

By Jack Alexander.

That the Marquette "Golden Avalanche" is no mere bit of clever press-agentry was clearly demonstrated yesterday at Sportsman's Park when Coach Frank Murray's men took a heavy fall out of Bob Mathews' St. Louis University squad, 28 to 0.

"Avalanche" does not accurately describe it as there was nothing loose or dusty about it. It was a sliding boulder here and a bounding boulder there and before the secondary defense could get organized the leaping rock was over the line and down. It was chiefly due to the broken field running of fullback Leary and quarterback O'Keefe that Marquette was able to score four times.

Marquette had undeniably hit its stride, after two weeks of shoddy football, and would have been dangerous to any team, but the fact that the Billikens were able to score 11 first downs and put the ball within scoring distance several times was encouraging to Coach Mathews. Twice in the third quarter the Billikens worked the ball down to the 20-yard line only to be held for downs.

The Avalanche Descends.

The avalanche descended upon the Billikens in the first quarter, after the locals had flashed a couple of first downs and a pretty 38-yard dash by Kennedy. In Marquette territory, Jordan heaved three fruitless passes, the third being intercepted by Gebert of Marquette. On the first play Joe Leary split tackle wide open and sprinted 64 yards to the Billikens' 1-yard line from where O'Keefe went over.

Receiving the kickoff at the close of the quarter, the Billikens showed another flash of power by rushing the ball 50 yards but lost possession at the start of the second quarter on a bad snapback. After an exchange of punts in which Leary bested Jordan, Crowley and O'Keefe rushed the ball again to within scoring distance but were held. Jordan punted past midfield but the fast Marquette backs came back, plunged almost 30 yards and then Leary ripped off another long one, dashing 33 yards for the second touchdown.

A third touchdown came a little later and a little easier. Following the kickoff Gerlach got hold of Billiken pass inside the 30-yard line and on a nicely executed fake, J. O'Keefe ran around end for 27 yards for a touchdown.

Marquette Line Holds.

Freshened by the rest between halves the St. Louis U. machine received the kickoff and soon rushed the ball 55 yards to the Marquette 20-yard line where the visitors held stubbornly and obtained possession on downs. Leary's punt was not up to par and a few more plunges, added to an 18-yard pass, Jordan to Kearns, again brought the ball to the 20-yard mark where the Marquette line once more held for downs.

Marquette opened an offensive at midfield in the fourth quarter and Gebert started off with a 1 yard gain at end. O'Keefe hurled a pretty 28-yard forward to Gerlach putting the ball on the 20-yard line. Shots at the line by Leary and O'Keefe soon scored the fourth and final touchdown, Leary carrying it over.

Coach Murray stated prior to the game that five of his best backfield men had to be left at home because of injuries. If he has any better sprinters and open field runners than O'Keefe, Leary and Gebert he has a great stable of ground gainers. These men were real stars.

St. Louis was the better drilled squad but lacked the star performers of the visitors. Boston College will call here next Saturday. Babka, a tackle, suffered a slight injury to his arm and Stampfli got a broken nose but both should be ready for next week's contest.

Principia Defeats Soldan High, 20-0

All of Scores Made in First Quarter by Following the Ball.

By DAVISON OBEAR.

Principia Academy defeated the Soldan High School eleven, 20 to 0, in a football game on Taylor Field yesterday afternoon. While the Academy was regarded as having a good chance to win from Soldan, the one-sided victory was a surprise. Soldan, however, was playing its first contest of the season, and judging from the showing of Coach Cook's players in the second half, the West Enders should have a strong team later in the season.

Soldan received the kick-off and by a series of line plunges carried the ball to the Principia one-yard line. The Cadets, however, exhibited excellent defensive play and held Soldan for downs. Soldan held the Academy, and on Richardson's punt the Soldan receiver fumbled the ball and Coyle, the flashy Principia quarterback picked it up and ran 70 yards for the first touchdown of the game. Richardson added a point by a perfect kick.

Soldan received the ball and failed to gain. Principia advanced to the West Enders' 22-yard line and a left end run by Richardson gave the Academy another touchdown. A bad pass prevented a goal for the extra point. The Academy again held Soldan for downs and on a blocked kick, Morrison, who had just substituted for Capt. Preston of Principia, picked up the ball and ran 12 yards for another score. Richardson added another point, giving the Academy a 20-to-0 score.

Soldan Improves.

In the second quarter Soldan showed improvement and carried the ball to the Principia 10-yard line, but failed to score. Soldan showed more determination in the third quarter and made several first downs, due to a series of trick plays. Principia had the ball in center field as the quarter ended.

Richardson crossed the Soldan line on an intercepted pass as the fourth period opened, but was called back on an offside play. Soldan then started a series of forward passes, some of them making good gains. The West Enders threatened to score after reaching the Academy's five-yard line, but again Coach Green's defense proved too strong.

Huettman, Hattery and Green were the individual stars for Principia, while Brown, Schumitsky and Peck played brilliantly for Soldan.

Principia will oppose Central High next Saturday.

The lineup follows:

Principia (20).	Pos.	Soldan (0).

KANSAS CITY BLUES TO CHANGE MANAGERS

Croyden Takes Laurel Stake; Sarazen Second

Mars Runs Third and Crusader Fourth — Whitney's Winnings Pass $400,000.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

LAUREL, Md., Oct. 16.—Croyden first, Sarazen second, Mars third. This was the order of the finish in the $10,000 added Laurel Stake, the feature race of the Maryland State Fair's meeting at Laurel this afternoon.

Ridden by L. McAtee and leading his field from the rise of the barrier, Croyden never left the result in doubt, and at the finish he led Sarazen by a couple of lengths. Then followed Mars, another head away, and a length in front of the favorite, Crusader.

There were 11 starters and the major portion of the play was divided between Crusader and Chance Play. The big field, which contained several fractious horses, caused a delay of six minutes at the post.

Chance Play was shuffled about going to the first turn and Sande was in close quarters with him most of the trip.

The winner was lucky in getting the break, while the two choices had bad racing luck.

The winner's portion of the stake was $10,850, which boosted the Harry Payne Whitney Stable well up to the $400,000 mark for the season.

Ohio State Wins Over Columbia

Grim Proves Star in 32.7 Victory for Big Ten Eleven in East.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—Ohio State defeated Columbia, 32 to 7, here today.

Fred Grim scored three touchdowns fo rthe Buckeyes, two of them coming after long runs. The other was a result of a stand off tackle in the shadow of the Columbia goal posts. Grim's performance of running 55 yards for a touchdown in the second period was duplicated by Capt. Marty Karow in the final period. The other points were contributed by Clarke and Uridil.

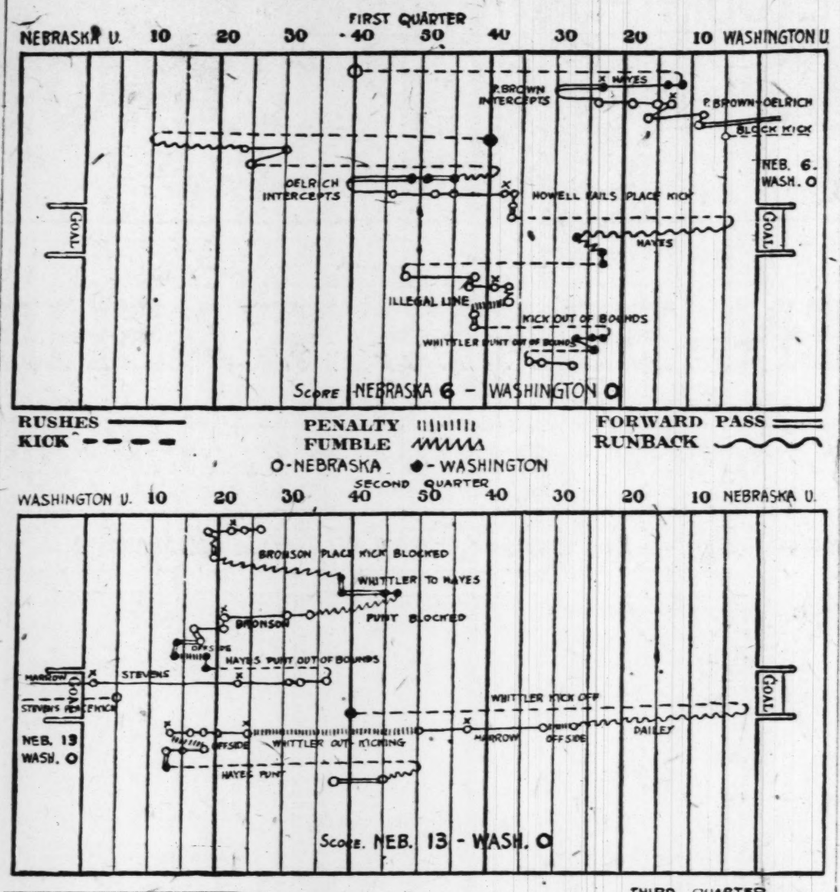
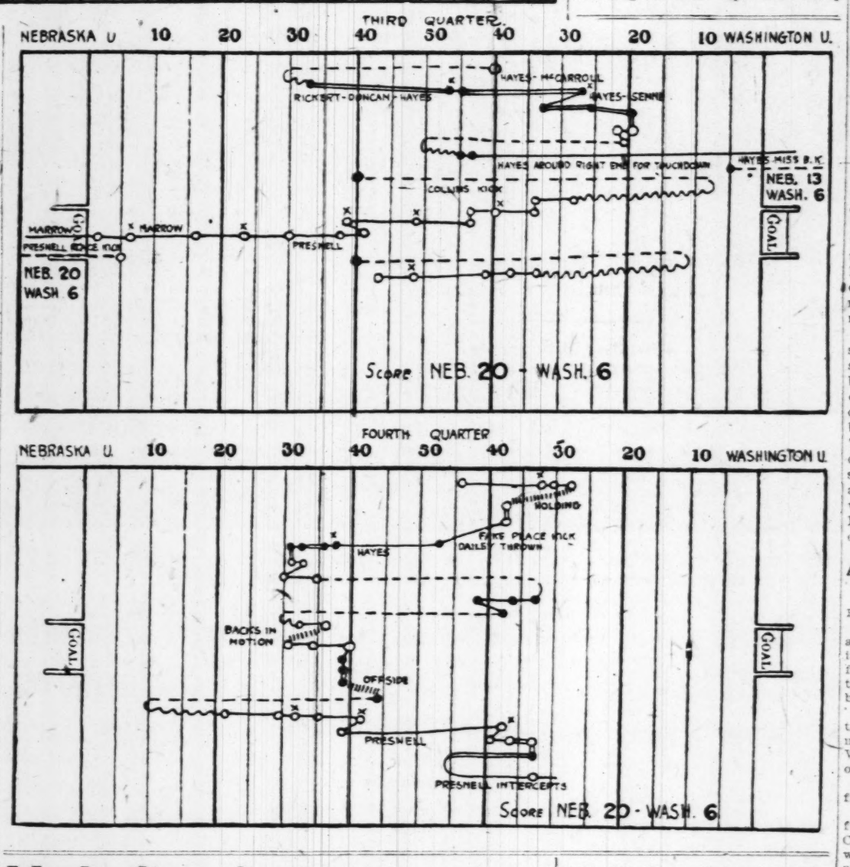
Cornell Wins, 24-14.

By the Associated Press.

ITACA, N. Y., Oct. 16.—Cornell humbled Michigan State by 24 to 14 in one of the outstanding intersectional gridiron tilts in the East today. Michigan made two touchdowns in the last half of the game.

Washington-Nebraska—Game, Play by Play





Methodists Surprise By Tying Missouri, 7-7, Long Passes Feature

Tigers Score in Early Minutes of Play Then Southern School Follows Suit; Former's Kicks Fail in Last Quarter, One Hitting Post.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

COLUMBIA, Mo., Oct. 16.—The University of Missouri and Southern Methodist University filled the air with flying footballs here this afternoon as the two teams gave a joint display of aerial warfare and battled to a draw, 7 to 7.

The Tigers opened with a touchdown, recovering a Mustang fumble and used just seven plays to send Clark across the goal line to catch Stuber's six-point pass. Stuber's toe made the count seven, and the Missourians began to believe that perhaps the visitors had been overtouted, and perhaps the field wasn't going to slow the Missouri attack as much as they had been warned.

But that seven points was just half the story, and the other half was told in the next two minutes, when the Mustangs took the ball in idfield, passed twice, hit the line twice and then Mann tossed to Dawson, who was toppled over the goal by a Missouri tackler. Mann sent a 12-yard drop kick over the goal, and the battle was all even.

Mustang Advances Halted.

The fortunes varied for the remainder of the first period, and throughout the second, the Tigers halting one Mustang advance at the 20-yard line, and the timekeeper halting another at about the same spot.

The visitors opened furiously in the third quarter, and marched to the Missouri 10-yard line, alternating a spectacular passing attack with scrimmage gains. There the Tigers held, and took the ball when a try by Mann for a drop kick failed.

Then came the Missouri passing attack, which, save in the first two minutes, had been of a rather in-and-out variety. Big George Flamank charged the line, with momentary rests during which Stuber passed to Clark and Tarr, the Tigers carried the ball to the four-yard line. Flamank hit the line three times as the quarter ended, and once as the final frame started, but could not score.

Kick Hits Goal Post.

The remainder of the game saw a succession of Missouri advances, with O'Sullivan, Stuber and Bacchus hurling the ball for great gains and keeping the ball almost continuously deep in Mustang territory but failing to score. Twice, with time growing short, Stuber tried long kicks from placement, one of 37 yards carrying plenty of height but hitting the goal post squarely, once he tried an end run on a fake place kick formation, and all sorts of varieties of scrimmage and pass plays followed, with the Bengals still being kept away from the zero marker.

In the meantime Coach Henry was substituting on every scrimmage play in a desperate battle for time. Approximately 8000 attended.

Grinnell Holds Ames to Scoreless Tie.

By the Associated Press.

GRINNELL, Ia., Oct. 16.—After staving off an early rush by Iowa State's gridders at the two-yard line, Grinnell today played on even terms with the Cyclones and held them to a scoreless tie in the homecoming game here.

Iowa State barely missed a score in the third period when a place kick fell short and a Grinnell kick that might have meant victory was missed by only two feet in the closing moments of the game. The Pioneers had completed several long passes in a late rally when their final attempt failed. Grinnell got a lucky break in the third period when Evans recovered Meeters' blocked punt just outside his own goal line.

crashes put the ball over. The series included an impressive 22-yard gallop by Stevens. Marrow shot through for the touchdown from one yard line and Stevens place kicked the goal.

Whittler Is Banished.

Washington lost a real tower of strength a short time after this touchdown. Nebraska was scrimmaging from midfield, when the referee singled Whittler out of a melee and disqualified him from the game on a charge of kicking an opponent. Besides losing its heaviest player and best secondary defensive man, the Bears were penalized 25 yards. With his departure, Washington was playing without its three best backfield men, since Capt. Mahan and McDonough were also on the sidelines with injuries. Kurz, a powerful guard, was also relegated to the bench by an injury before the game was half spent.

In view of this distressing turn of events, it might be thought that the locals would have returned to the field in the second half with an enervated spirit. On the other hand, they met Nebraska with a dazzling overhead and running attack that resulted in a score and brought them glory if not victory.

Hayes Makes Long Run for a Touchdown.

After the kickoff, a double pass, Rickert to Duncan to Hayes, gave a 20-yard gain and put the play on the Red side of midfield. Another pass, Hayes to McCarroll, was good for 18 yards and a second first down. Two more short passes were successful, but were negated by a failure around end; and Nebraska took the ball on downs.

The ball was immediately kicked out of the visitors' territory and Washington took up the scrap once again. Hayes returned six yards to the 45-yard mark and then on the second play, electrified the stands with a 42-yard run for a touchdown. This daring, dancing, dervish, who gave the 8000 about 95 per cent of their thrills headed around right end, then threaded through the Cornhusker secondary defense, evaded all of them, then reversed his field and raced for a touchdown down the left sideline.

It was not a story of interference that gave Hayes and Washington that touchdown. It was pure speed. Bear officials knew that Hayes had that sort of running in him and prepared for the occasion. Special sprint shoes of light leather and thin soles with small leather cleats were ordered and arrived by airplane from Chicago shortly before the game. Had that plane gone wrong en route, it isn't unlikely that the Bears would have been shut out. Another 17-yard prance and three lesser ones by Hayes also showed the advisability of shodding the 146-pound quarterback with proper footwear.

Nebraska's bruisers were rather nettled by the audacity of little Al and countered with a sustained drive which took the ball from their own 27-yard line straight down the gridiron for a touchdown. Five first downs did the trick, with three gentlemen named Marrow, Presnell and Stevens doing most of the ball-carrying. It's a sweet trio this one is; but it's only three of about eight backs that Bearg can put on the field.

Marrow carried the ball from the two-yard line on the last touchdown and Presnell then kicked. After that, nobody even came close to scoring, the ball remaining between the two 30-yard marks practically all of the time.

Nebraska's victory will probably serve as a balm in Lincoln for that stinging defeat rendered its team by the 1918 Washington S. A. T. C. eleven. Oddly enough, the score on that occasion, the last meeting between the two teams, was 20 to 7, almost identical with yesterday's. Washington likewise finds some balm in knowing that its athletes fought from whistle to whistle against odds that would have cowed a less stout-hearted eleven.

HAYES GETS SPECIAL SHOES BY PLANE, RUNS 42 YARDS FOR A SCORE

JUST before the Washington-Nebraska game yesterday, Quarterback Al Hayes of the Bear eleven jumped into a new pair of "sprint" shoes, fitted with special cleats designed to enable a player to run faster. The shoes arrived late from Chicago by airplane, after being ordered Friday night too late for shipment by other means.

In the third quarter of the game, Hayes sprinted 42 yards across field through the Nebraska team for Washington's only touchdown.

ALABAMA U. TROUNCES GEORGIA TECH, 21 TO 0

By the Associated Press.

ATLANTA, Ga., Oct. 16.—Alabama advanced another step today toward its third consecutive Southern Conference championship by administering a setback to Georgia Tech by 21 to 0 before 20,000 spectators.

Scoring in every period except the third, when the Golden Tornado made its only bid for a score, Coach Wallace Wade's eleven took the offensive throughout.

Alabama's first score resulted from forward passes.

The forward passing of Wipslett featured the Alabama attack, with Caldwell and Brown coming through with the greatest gains on line plunges and end runs.

Alabama's victory placed them in the conference lead with three victories and no defeats.

Versatile Rushing and Pass Attack Nets 28 to 0 Victory.

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Oct. [illegible]. Using a versatile rushing and passing attack, Notre Dame crushed Penn State here today, 28 to 0. Notre Dame scored in every period. The Nittany Lions were dangerous. The Notre Dame forwards, consistently outcharged the Penn State line, frequently stopped the Lion backs behind the line of scrimmage.

Notre Dame scored in the first minute of play. A forward pass, Parisien to Boyle, was good for 35 yards and the touchdown came after Dahlman and Niemiec had rushed the ball 20 yards farther. Niemiec kicked goal.

Niemiec slid off right tackle for 12 yards to make the second Notre Dame touchdown after a 15-yard Penn State penalty had started Rockman's advance in the second. Niemiec kicked goal.

Flanagan and Hearden stopped Penn State's wings for 10 to 15 yard gains, but the Lions held inside their 20-yard line. Goal for Penn State rushed the ball 20 yards on two plays, but Lundeen was thrown on an attempted pass.

Niemiec passed to Voebesch for 30 yards and Riley for 18, but Penn State intercepted a third one on their 20-yard line in the third period. After the Lions punted, O'Boyle went off left tackle for 15 yards and Dahlman swirled right end for 15 yards and a touchdown. Niemiec place kicked the goal.

Notre Dame, recovering a punt, Roach to McNally, gained 25 yards to open the final period. Cheeny circled left end for 15 yards and a touchdown. Roach added the point on a kick. The game ended with Penn State resorting to fake plays in an effort to score.

Kutsch Gallops 60 Yards to Touchdown; Gains 160 During Day

Iowa's Cowboy Back Halted Inches From Goal by Daugherity a Second Time; Latter Scores on Forward Pass; Peters Kicks Two Field Goals.

By the Associated Press.

CHAPAIGN, Ill., Oct. 16.—Revealing a galaxy of backfield stars to operate behind the veteran line that shielded "Red" Grange last season, Illinois passed and kicked its way to a 13 to 6 victory over Iowa before a home-coming crowd of 50,000 in the Illinois Memorial Stadium today.

The Illini, with no Grange in their line-up, were forced to exploit the combined efforts of their new backfield quartet to match the individual brilliancy of Nick Kutsch, the rough riding Iowa cowboy. Kutsch scored one touchdown and came within two inches of crashing over with a second that might have tied the score. Kutsch, playing left halfback, gained two-thirds of the total yards piled up by the Hawkeyes, carrying the ball 19 yards in 27 attempts.

Kutsch gave the Illinois rooters a shock at the very start of the game, when on the second play after the kickoff, he raced 60 yards around the Illinois left end for a touchdown. Then early in the third period, Kutsch broke away for a 15-yard run, and with the assistance of Schmidt, the big fullback, pounded the ball to the Illinois 4-yard line.

Two Inches From Goal.

Kutsch then shot around left end and was heading for the Illini goal, certain to make a touchdown, when Daugherity upset him when he was only two inches from the line. Instead of carrying the ball on the next play, Schmidt was given the task and he failed to break through Iowa losing the ball on downs.

Kutsch's breath taking touchdown demoralized the Illini for a few minutes but the Illinois attack soon began to live up to its reputation as "the fighting Illini" and the new back field quartet, of Frosty Peters, Stewart, Lanum and Daugherty, immediately began the uphill fight.

Peters, husky quarterback, became the new idol of Illinois fans as the result of his kicking and brilliant running. He scored two field goals, the first from the 16-yard line and the other from the 36-yard mark. He failed on a third attempt from the 38-yard mark. He also reeled off some spectacular runs, getting away for 28 yards and another good for 26.

Illinois Strong on Passes.

The ability of Illinois to successfully throw forward passes turned the scale in its favor after Iowa's brilliant offense had made the Hawkeyes dangerous until the last bark of the pistol. The advantage swung to Illinois at the opening of the second period with Lanum opening up a skyrocketing exhibition of forward passes, two of which placed Illinois within scoring range. This enabled Peters to kick an easy field goal from the 16-yard line. Then Lanum opened up again with passes, hurling one to Daugherity that enabled him to run 27 yards for Illinois' touchdown, near the end of the half.

Cuhel, the Iowa track star, was inserted into the game in the fourth quarter and Iowa made a desperate attempt to tie the score. Cuhel broke loose for 20 yards on the first play, and Iowa soon was within striking distance, but lost the ball when a forward pass thrown by Kutsch was incomplete behind the goal line.

Iowa only tried four forward passes. One was intercepted and three were uncompleted. Illinois completed four passes for 55 yards, but five were incomplete.

Illinois made 19 first downs to Iowa's eight.

Charles Pesek, who is known in Europe as the great "Kada," will lead his team against St. Louis at Sportsman's Park today.

St. Louis Soccer Will Get Severe Test Against Sparta Eleven of Czecho-Slovakia

European Eleven, Which Play's Picked Team Here This Afternoon, Considered the Strongest Combination That Has Visited the U. S. in Years.

By Dent McSkimming.

The finest soccer attraction in a score of years will be presented at Sportsman's Park, this afternoon, when the best players in the St. Louis professional League line-up against the Sparta eleven of Prague, Czecho-slovakia in an exhibition match.

The St. Louisans are an all-star eleven, but they have had the advantage of several weeks' practice as a team and they were given a real test last Sunday against the Solvay Club of Detroit. They proved their worth in coming off with a victory, 2 goals to 1.

Sparta has built up the most imposing record ever heard of in International soccer circles. Among the most noteworthy accomplishments of these Czechs are victories over the Olympic champions, Uruguay; the Bolton Wanderers, English cup champions; and the famous Hakoah team. In a succession of matches on foreign soil in the spring of last year, Sparta defeated or tied the outstanding teams of Italy, Spain, France and Austria. In 11 games on foreign soil on that tour of Southern Europe, Sparta won nine matches, tied two and was undefeated.

Visitors Blank Giants.

Although held to a tie by the pick of New York teams in their first game in America, Sparta came right back the next day and defeated the New York Giants of the American Soccer League, 6 to 0.

This same New York club has four of the former Hakoah Stars in its line-up and is rated among the four best elevens in the East. A 6-to-1 victory means a complete rout of the foe and indicates a tremendous scoring punch, combined with a fine defense.

Bohemian societies in St. Louis have taken an active interest in today's game and their attendance, combined with the usual soccer following, may swell the crowd to something above 10,000.

There will be about 800 visitors from Chicago, most of them members of the Sparta Society in that city. They have made previous trips here with their Chicago soccer team and they are under the impression that the St. Louis team will give the European eleven a real test.

May Remain in U. S.

Every member of the touring team has received substantial offers from American Soccer League clubs as a result of the finished showing the visitors have made. However, those who remain in the United States will undoubtedly attach themselves to the Sparta club of Chicago, in which case they will compete in the new Western Soccer Association in which the four local professional teams engage Chicago's leading clubs in weekly games.

Because of the very excellent competition they faced last spring in their games with Bethlehem and Hakoah, it is believed that the St. Louis players are a greatly improved combination. They have shown a greater appreciation of the necessity for close observance of position play and their team work in general is better than it was early last season.

A St. Louisan, Robert "Ribby" Murphy, will referee the match which will start at 2:45 o'clock. The admission charge is $1.10.

OREGON AGGIES CALIFORNIA, 27 TO 7

By the Associated Press.

BERKELEY, Cal., Oct. 16.—Several long years of football setbacks were swept away today when the Oregon Aggies defeated the University of California here, 27 to 7.

Four times northern cleats dug into California's scoring turf and three other occasions found the Aggies pounding at the gateway guarded by the Golden Bear.

Only once could California cross the threshold of the enemy and that came three minutes after play had begun. Thereafter the Aggies plunged down the field steadily, to cross California's line once in the first period, twice in the third period and once again in the closing few minutes of the game.

Brilliant runs by Maple, quarter, and Jarvis, left half, marked the visitors' play. Maple dashed 75 yards down a broken field to score the northern squad's third touchdown. His teammate, Jarvis, had scored previously on a 53-yard run from kickoff.

NEW YORK U. WINS FROM TULANE, 21-0

NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—Chick Meehan's smooth running New York University machine bowled over Tulane University of New Orleans here today, 21 to 0. The bulk of the Violet attack was carried by Capt. Briante and Strong. Tulane presented a shifty and varied offensive but could make little headway.

Kansas Aggies Rout Kansas By 27-0 Score

Victory Is Third in Succession for Manhattan Football Team.

By the Associated Press.

MANHATTAN, Kan., Oct. 16.—The glory of three straight football victories over the University of Kansas was that of the Kansas Aggies, who today defeated the Jayhawkers on Ahearn Field here, 27 to 0. The Wild Cat backfield shattered the Kansas defense almost at will, plunged through for big yardage and made several sensational open field runs for touchdowns.

Aggie reserves, rushed into the fray in the final period, helped win by adding a fourth touchdown. Seven Wild Cat regulars had taken to the showers before the game closed.

YALE RALLIES TO TRIUMPH OVER DARTMOUTH, 14-7

of Boston, as the hero of the game. McGunigle did not get into the game until the final quarter, but he was the main factor in scoring the decisive touchdown.

With the rivals apparently hopelessly "deadlocked" as the end drew near, McGunigle snared an attempted pass by MacPhail, Dartmouth halfback, on his own 28-yard line and raced 47 yards to the Green's 25-yard mark. After two line plays found Dartmouth unyielding, McGunigle tossed a 15-yard pass over the line to Scott, who raced seven yards more for the touchdown.

McGunigle Proves Star.

McGunigle's efforts were the crowning touches of a game filled with spectacular plays and pulled out a victory that Yale apparently had tossed away by making seven fumbles, several of them at critical moments. Four of them were recovered but they broke up promising drives by the Elis, particularly in the second and third periods.

Dartmouth completed only four of of 14 and the finish saw Dooley heaving wildly from midfield in a desperate attempt to score. The Elis also outshone the Green at rushing, registering 14 first down to 12 for Dartmouth. Dartmouth's defeat was its first since 1923, when the Green bowed to Cornell at Hanover.

Cleveland and Webster Play To 7-7 Score

Webster and Cleveland battled to a 7 to 7 tie in a high school football game yesterday afternoon, on the Webster Field. Neither team scored in the second half, although at several times scores seemed forthcoming. Fumbles spoiled Webster's chances to score and inability of the Cleveland backfield to hit the line, prevented the city players from crossing the goal line.

One of Webster's many fumbles permitted Cleveland to draw first blood shortly after the opening of the game. After an exchange of punts, Sample, Webster's fullback, fumbled on his own 30-yard line, Cleveland recovering. A pass, Graham to Hawden, advanced the city school's eleven 15 yards. Cleveland made first down on plunges, and Graham took it over. Mowry added the extra point by place-kicking.

Penalty Leads to Score.

Webster took advantage of one of the many penalties suffered by Cleveland in the second quarter. A Webster player went out of bounds in the middle of the field and Cleveland piled on him, thereby incurring a 15-yard setback. Miller made 10 yards off right end, and Sample added 15 more, giving Webster first down on Cleveland's 10-yard line. Line bucks proved successful and Greene scored on a center rush. Sample added the extra point by drop-kicking.

The third and final quarters saw the ball kept in the middle of the field due to even exchange of punts or to interception of passes when either side was in danger. Webster would gain much ground on Cleveland penalties, but would lose the ball by its frequent fumbling.

Cleveland opens next week with Beaumont, in a City High School League game, while Webster will be idle, in anticipation of a hard struggle with the Stivers High School of Dayton, Ohio, November 13, on the Dayton school's field.

Versatile Wolverines Outplunge and Outpass Gophers; Trick Play Brings Score.

By the Associated Press.

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Oct. 16.—The Little Brown jug stays in Ann Arbor. Michigan defeated Minnesota 20 to 0 at Ferry Field today in the first of two scheduled meetings between these schools this year and the first western conference game of the season for both teams.

It was a versatile Michigan that out-passed and outplunged Minnesota. Forward passes played their parts in two Michigan touchdowns, while a trick play, aided by smart interference from the Michigan line, scored the third.

Minnesota made one brave but late drive toward the Michigan goal line, but could not break through the Wolverine defense when a touchdown was only 16 yards distant. Gopher passes were smothered by the Michigan defense, only one being completed during the entire game.

Michigan's versatile attack measured her victory. Friedman was there passing. So were Rich and Gilbert. Molenda again was the battering ram, but Rich was equally effective. With three men in the backfield capable of accurate forward passing despite a wet field and soaked ball, several long gains were made.

Wolverine Line Holds.

When danger to the Michigan goal threatened, as it did twice, the Michigan line met the emergency, with the two ends, Flora and Oosterbaan, cutting in behind the Minnesota line like the sharp points of a great pair of pliers, downing their man several times behind the mark of scrimmage.

Once Flora got through fast to block a Gopher punt. Lovett recovered, and a touchdown followed. Rich drilling through for the score after he and Webber, a sub back, had pounded close to the Minnesota line from the seven-yard mark.

The game was scarcely three minutes gone when Molenda rammed through from the one-foot line after twice failing to get in an inch. A forward pass, Rich to Friedman, put the ball in scoring position.

In the second period, Michigan scored two touchdowns. One was the result of a blocked punt. The other was from Coach Yost's aged Statue of Liberty, criss-cross play on which Gilbert sprinted 41 yards behind interference that picked off threatening tacklers all the way down the field. A capacity crowd of 47,000 saw the game.

Purdue Upsets "Dope," Tying Wisconsin.

By the Associated Press.

LAFAYETTE, Ind., Oct. 16.—Purdue upset the Western Conference dope bucket here this afternoon when they put up a brilliant battle against the Badgers to claim a 0-0 tie. The Boilermakers, after failing to consistently gain with their running attack in the early stages of the game, came to life in the final period and marched to the Badger 10-yard line. Purdue's hopes of scoring went flying, however, when Wilcox missed an attempted dropkick.

Northwestern Wins From Indiana, 20-0.

By the Associated Press.

EVANSTON, Ill., Oct. 16.—For three quarters today Indiana University matched with smart defense the strong attack of Northwestern, but in the fourth period the Hoosiers wall crumbled and the wildcats romped to a three-touchdown victory, winning, 20 to 0.

Capt. Moon Baker, "Tiny" Lewis, Gustafson and Colin made up the backfield which enabled Northwestern to hit its stride. Gustafson took Baker's pass for the first marker in the opening minutes of the final period. Baker went over soon after the next kickoff when runs by Lewis and Colin put the ball in midfield and Lewis found a hole in the Indiana line for a 50-yard sprint to the final touchdown. Baker kicked the extra points after the last two touchdowns.

20,000 See Cadets Wear Down Opponents' Line—Harding and Wilson Star.

By the Associated Press.

WEST POINT, N. Y., Oct. 16.—Army's powerful eleven which was the underdog for two periods made a strong finish to defeat Syracuse today by 27 to 21 before 20,000 spectators in the Military Academy's new stadium.

While "Biff" Jones' pupils swept back the Orange horde in a hard-fought victory, Syracuse went down fighting and yielded only after stubborn resistance in the closing period.

Army displayed midseason form today in a wonderful ground-gaining attack which was more of the orthodox order than has heretofore characterized the Cadets' offensive.

In the third period Army's fine second offensive wore down the Syracuse men. Harding crashed over through Friedman for a touchdown, after which Wilson kicked the goal, making the score 20 to 13 in Syracuse's favor.

In the final period, the Cadets scored twice, Harding running to a touchdown from an intercepted pass and Wilson going over on a line plunge for another. It was not that Syracuse unleashed its attack which netted them their final touchdown.

Navy Defeats Princeton, 27-13

Tigers Helpless Before Middies Except in the Third Period.

By the Associated Press.

PRINCETON, N. J., Oct. 16.—The Navy invaded the Princeton Tigers' domain today and headed southward in the evening with a 27—13 victory over the Orange and Black.

The Annapolis eleven smashed the Princeton forward wall to bits in three periods of a royal battle.

Fullback Schuber and Howard Caldwell accounted for the striped players' downfall. Except for one flash late in the second period when Princeton's aerial attack netted a pair of touchdowns, the Blue had the better of the argument. Earl Baruch, Princeton's halfback, playing in place of Jake Slagle, engraved his name in the Princeton roll of honor by tossing eight forward passes for a total gain of more than 70 yards and two touchdowns.

Navy showed the way in the scoring when Quarterback Hamilton's toe sent the ball between the posts for three points in the opening period. Ransord accounted for a touchdown in the second period after straight football had brought the leather to the three-yard mark. But before the half closed Baruch tossed two passes over the goal line to Strubing and Stinson for a pair of touchdowns.

In the third period the Midshipmen regained the lead as they pushed the Tiger back across the goal line by sheer force. It was a battle of brawn and the Navy won. Caldwell made both scores in the final half. The game ended with Princeton making a desperate effort to reopen its aerial attack.

Improved Harvard Team Wins, 27 to 7.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 16.—A greatly improved Harvard team romped through the William and Mary eleven on Soldiers' Field today, running up a score of 27 to 7 for the Crimson's first victory of the season. Harvard had possession of the ball most of the game, making gains almost at will through and around the line and by the forward pass. In the latter department Sayles and Putnam were the outstanding performers.

Harvard scored one touchdown in each of the first two periods, and two in the third, William and Mary's attack got under way in the fourth, when Eason took a long pass from Ryan and ran 15 yards to cross the Harvard line.

7 TO 1 SHOT BADLY BEATEN HER LAST OUT

Favorite, Crystallite, Is Knocked Off His Stride at the Start by Huntsman.

By G. F. T. Ryall
Of the New York World Sport Staff

NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—Laura Dianti, an added starter, carrying the colors of William Woodward, vice chairman of the Jockey Club, won the New Rochelle Handicap of $4000 added for 3-year-olds and up at one mile and a sixteenth at the Empire City track this afternoon. She beat Ursa Major, going away by a length, with Huntsman a head behind. Her price was 7 to 1.

A crowd almost as large as that of any Saturday during the summer, saw the running of the race. There were the usual cheers that accompany a finish from the casuals, but the regulars, who hope horses will run to something that approaches consistency, were stunned by the mare's reversal of form. Laura Dianti's last start was at Jamaica last Wednesday and she was beaten about 15 lengths by selling platers; but this afternoon, after waiting off the pace of Ursa Major to the head of the stretch, Stevens brought her up on the outside to win going away.

She was not backed by the public, however, but by only a favored few, who got 10 to 1 and their money back.

Added Starters Help Fill Stake.

The New Rochelle Handicap did not promise much on the overnight entries; but the name of Lightview, which did not appear in the entries, did on the program, and Banco Suivi, Laura Dianti and Huntsman were added in the order named. The Rancocas Stable's Crystallite was the choice when the field went to the post, with Huntsman in demand.

When the barrier went up, however, Hunsman knocked the son of Lucullite off his stride.

Laura Dianti still more ground with Crystallite at the first turn. He tried to go up on the outside, leaving the backstretch, but tired. Ursa Major hung on gamely until challenged by Laura Dianti. After the race the usual alibi of changed track conditions was offered for the winner.

The race was worth $4070 to the Belair stud. It was a fast run race, the fractional times being :23 3-5, :48 1-5, 1:14 1-5, 1:41, 1:48.

Clayton uncorked a ripping offense in the second half yesterday afternoon at Clayton to defeat Normandy, 25 to 0, in a County High School League football game. The outstanding feature of the contest was the scoring of Harold McGrath, Clayton quarterback, who went over for three touchdowns. Whittmeyer made the other touchdown, after receiving a 30-yard pass from McGrath in the third quarter.

The winners wasted little time in the second half. Al Lewis and McGrath, Clayton backfield men, hit the Normandy line almost at will, and after a series of plunges, McGrath went over for the first score of the game. He also added the only extra point of the afternoon by drop-kicking. McGrath scored the last two touchdowns in the fourth quarter.

91-YARD RUN IN LAST PERIOD WINS GAME

By the Associated Press.

DENVER, Colo., Oct. 16.—A 91-yard run by Glen Davis, Colorado Aggie quarterback, in the closing minutes of play, enabled the 1925 Rocky Mountain champions to defeat Denver University, 7 to 6, here today.

With but six minutes to play, Davis took a punt on his own 9-yard line and raced through the entire Denver eleven for a touchdown, and the Aggies rode to victory on the toe of Ament, substitute back, who added the point after touchdown.

Pine Ultra went to the front without effort and, under good rating, made the pace and nicely outstarved Longchamps in the final drive. Latter was kept well up from the start and, finding well, was going strong at the finish, drawing the winner down. Norseman raced much ground but was tiring last furlong. Nulli Secundus had no mishaps. Radio made up some ground. Black Grackle tired.

Mount Beacon, close up but forced wide early stages, began gaining at final turn and finishing with a rush, quickly distanced his field. King Gorin II, pinched in back stretch and forced very wide while moving up last half, was badly interfered with and rallied gamely at the finish. Dandy Brush had fine speed but was poorly rated and tired badly last quarter. Opperman went evenly. Prekaboo tired. Starbeck was never a factory.

ALEXANDER: The Cardinals' Million Dollar $4000 Beauty

Pitcher, Who Won Pennant For His Club 11 Years Back, Does His Best at Age of 39

Nebraskan Gave Up Telephone Work Because There Was More Money in Baseball and Once Was Nearly Ruined When Hit on Head by Pitched Ball.

By J. Roy Stockton,

GROVER CLEVELAND ALEXANDER always had a strong right arm. A few years after he was born at St. Paul, Neb., on Feb. 26, 1887, and named after President Cleveland, he used to annoy the neighbors by knocking the clothes pins off the wash lines with pebbles. His control of his right arm was remarkable. In fact such control was concentrated in that right arm that there was much left to direct the rest of this sturdy youngster.

Alexander's parents tried to direct him into a career of learning, but perhaps, where he might stand in the path of his illustrious namesake. But while he had the control of his right arm and could hit a snowball on the schoolteacher's head from 100 yards, he did not the self-control to stick at school work and when the boy became a youth and the youth became a young man, he was working as a telephone lineman instead of pursuing a higher education.

There was not much money and much fun in "shooting trouble" and stringing telephone wires and Alexander found that that strong right arm could propel a ball over the plate with more speed than any of the other young men of his community, he quickly decided his lineman's spikes when he was offered cash money for the sport of pitching baseball.

Job as a Pitcher.

ALEXANDER'S skill increased rapidly and he soon had ambitions to pitch where there was more money attached to the game or rather play, and so, wearing the newest cowboy hat, he journeyed to Galesburg, Ill., where he was told they needed a good pitcher.

Alexander made good at Galesburg. He pitched in 24 games, worked 219 innings and struck out 219 batters. He won 15 games and lost eight and was considered a find. But while he could control that right arm and speed the ball over the plate so fast that batters could not do much with it, he was still a big awkward, unsure young man. He could not do much around the plate. He couldn't field fast enough and finally, near the end of the season, an opposing manager sent a fast ball at Alexander's head and Alex could not get out of the way of it. It cracked against the head, knocked him cold and out and it appeared that the career of a promising pitcher had been ended.

The force of that blow on the head did something to the muscles controlling the eyes. Alexander became cross-eyed. Before the accident his great pitching had attracted the attention of scouts from major leagues. Emissaries from Indianapolis were especially interested in him and when Indianapolis purchased Alexander from Galesburg for the draft price of $700, the club owners thought they were fortunate indeed.

Ashamed to Take Money."

THEY felt a bit guilty at taking the $700 for a cross-eyed pitcher who might never pitch another game. That is, they should have felt guilty. But the check was cashed and the $700 was kept and Alexander went to Indianapolis. He took part in just two games for Indianapolis and was released outright to Syracuse, then in the New York State League.

The Galesburg officials did not have to feel bad about taking that $700. Alexander became a star immediately with Syracuse. He won 29 games and lost 14 and while he was recalled by Indianapolis, his stay was spread and he was drafted at the end of that season, 1910, by the Philadelphia club of the National League.

The league batters were baffled terribly by this steel-armed Nebraska boy, as the home town lads of St. Paul, Neb., had been. Alexander won 28 games that first year in Philadelphia and improved each year until in 1913, he pitched the team to a pennant, winning 31 games.

Success did not ruin this young man with the strong right arm. He came back the next year and was even a greater pitcher. He won 27 games in 1916 and in 1917 he had 30 victories.

The Cardinals Got Him and the First Day He Pitched, a Record Crowd Was Out

ROGERS HORNSBY and the Cardinals were in the thick of the pennant fight at that time. It was a hot race. The Cardinals needed another right-handed pitcher.

"I am no Sunday school teacher. I don't care what Alexander does off the field," was Hornsby's line of reasoning. "He always looked like a great pitcher to me. At $4000 he was the greatest bargain I ever saw."

Alexander came to the Cardinals and won his first start. That day alone would have made the $4000 investment a wise one, if Alex had never pitched another ball after that. The magic of his name helped draw a new attendance record at Sportsman's Park that day, 37,196 persons paying to see Alexander make his debut in a Cardinal uniform.

Hornsby and St. Louis did not make a new man of Alexander. He still had the great right arm and he still had a wonderful spirit. He would pitch every day if needed. When the race became tight and the pitching staff was faltering and two games were lost in Cincinnati, Alexander, who had pitched on Thursday, went to Hornsby and said he could pitch again that day, though it was Sunday and he had had only two days' rest. Alexander did pitch that day and he won.

Time and again he volunteered when it was another's turn to pitch. He pitched two games in the world series, two full games, and won them, and then, after winning one of those games on Saturday, he came back on Sunday, in the seventh inning, with the bases filled and two out, and the Cards only one run ahead. And Alexander struck out Lazzeri in that great world series pinch! Then he turned back six of the next seven batters and held that one-run lead!

What is the secret of it all? How does Alexander do it? It's not breaking any confidence to say that Alexander broke training after that Saturday game. At least, it would have been breaking training for any other player. But with the training broken and well broken, this strong-armed 39-year-old veteran was able to go in the next day, throw five practice pitches and strike out a batter with the bases filled!

"It's Just a Gift."

"IT must be a gift," said Alexander. He was asked how in the world he did it, as he was journeying back to St. Louis after the series.

"That's the only way I can figure it. I always could pitch. I'm no angel, I know. But I can pitch. I always could. I guess it's because I have no nerves. Many persons probably sympathized with me for having to go in there in that big stadium with 40,000 persons yelling and hollering and face a Yankee with the bases filled and us only one run ahead.

"But I didn't need any sympathy. Lazzeri was the batter in the pinch and that's the bird I felt sorry for. He had to make a base hit and all I had to do was throw 'em where he couldn't reach 'em. That's all I did. I tried a curve, a ball, too far inside for him to swing at. Then he thought I might be wild, so I breezed a curve over the corner. He took it and decided he'd have to swing now, because I wasn't wild. So I gave him another ball, inside, too close to be hit safely. He swung and fouled it. That's all he could do with a ball like that. Then I knew he was all rattled and nervous and would go after anything, so I gave him a low curve a foot and a half from the plate and he swung and missed. He never had a chance at it, the poor geezer. He was the one they ought to have sympathized with."

It's No Trouble at All.

ALEXANDER pitches as easily as if he were sitting on the front veranda, rocking in an easy chair. Someone used that description of Alex and it made an impression. That's Alexander, rocking back and forth on the veranda in an easy chair, smiling at the batters playfully swinging their bats to no avail.

He pitches so easily that other pitchers marvel. Pitchers who fail are ashamed that they cannot do with all their efforts what this old master does with so little apparent effort.

Alexander never seems to see his catcher. He looks into the air and breezes a strike over the outside corner. He gazes at a cloud in the sky, and zip, another strike passes the swishing bludgeon of the enemy.

"How about your signals? When do you get 'em?" he was asked.

"Oh, I don't bother about signs with Old Bob O'Farrell working," he replied. "He don't pay no attention to me and I don't pay no attention to him. He just closes his fist and sticks it down there in front of his glove for a stall. He don't want the other fellows to know that we're not using a flock of signals. I just pitch whatever I happen to want to pitch and I know Bob will get 'em all. He does. He ain't missed any of 'em yet. Makes him jump around a bit, but he gets 'em. Great catcher, Bob.

"Great ball club, these Cardinals. Thevenow is some youngster. He throws to first the way I pitch when I'm 10 runs ahead. He whips 'em to first on a line, right plunk over the plate with nothing on 'em and they're all strikes. That's the way to save the soup bone when you're 10 runs ahead.

"But when you're only one run ahead and the bases are filled and there's no place to put the batter and a base hit might ruin things gotta give the batter nothin' but a lot of hell. That's what I gave Lazzeri. But don't give me any credit. It's just a gift with me. I got a good arm, that's all. A good arm and no nerves. And we got a great manager in this town. There's no better than Rogers Hornsby."

Codasco Defeats Billiken Juniors

Goal Kick Decides Contest With Final Score 7 to 6.

The Country Day eleven got under way toward a good start in the Prep League by defeating the formidable Billiken Jr. team.

The Red and White men on the line gave excellent interference, enabling Crockett, Codasco captain and quarterback, and Gene Sager to make long runs. Sager slipped through the Blue and White line for a touchdown, but the Country Day team was penalized 15 yards for holding. The first tally came when Arink of St. Louis went across the line to score. Dawson failed to kick goal and the score was 6-0. Codasco's score came when Sager made a line plunge for a touchdown. Ehrenfest kicked goal. Dawson and Arink played very well for the Blue and White, while Crockett, Waldron and Sager starred for Codasco.

THE HUNTING - - CALL - - By ALEC MERMOD

THE season for duck shooting has been open for a month, and as usual no big bags have been brought in. There are two reasons for the poor shooting: First, the real flight from the North has not started; second, the few ducks that are in have so much territory to choose from the few that are in don't make much of a showing.

As a rule, in the fall, shooters complain of the lack of water, but this fall we have too much.

What we need now is a typical Indian summer, plenty of sunshine and no more rain.

I advise anyone going duck hunting before we have a good freeze to take a good supply of mosquito dope with him, for the mosquitoes are worse this year than I have ever noticed.

A friend living on the Illinois River, writes that the mosquitoes are so much in evidence that very few hunters are going out and those who do only stay in the blind about an hour.

The grounds of the Willow Club are under water so the shooting will not be good for 10 days or more though a few ducks have been killed at this club.

Snipe Shooting Outlook.

After this water recedes there should be good snipe shooting at most of the clubs along the line of the Burlington railroad.

A friend in Colorado writes that he is having some splendid shooting, and that he killed a greater variety in one day than at any other time. Mallard, green wing, blue wing, spoon bill, widgeon and gadwell.

Talking about this varied bag reminds me of a duck shoot I had in New Mexico the winter of 1890. George Guither of El Paso, Tex., and I happened to meet at Eddy in the Pecos valley, both of us being guests at the H I L Ranch.

The boys wanted fresh meat, so Gaither and I volunteered to go out to help out.

The Varities in One Shot.

We shot on the Black River and on irrigating ditches, and before 3 o'clock we had 50 ducks and about 20 quail. I knew we had killed several varieties of duck, but was surprised to find that we had brought in 10 varieties.

Canvasback, red head, sprig, spoon bill, three species of teal, blue wing, green wing and cinnamon, golden eye, butterball and blue bill.

I have shot in New Mexico several seasons, and do not recall ever having killed a mallard.

This species found in Western Texas, New Mexico and Arizona, is similar to the California quail, though instead of the plume the blue quail has a topknot something like that of our blue jay.

This bird is smaller than our Bob White and does not compare with "Bob" as a table bird, nor does he afford the sport, for they will not hold for the dog, and it is almost impossible to flush them unless you shoot into them while running. This little blue chap can outwalk and outrun a man, so he is hunted on horseback.

The country where I did most of my shooting was almost bare cactus and soap weed and now and then a small patch of mesquite so we can readily see that a bird dog wouldn't help much.

Rise as a Unit.

It is no uncommon thing to see flocks containing over a hundred birds, and when shot into they do rise as a unit like our bob white, but will get up in small bunches and scatter in every direction generally making quite a long flight. If you happen to have a horse who does not mind the report of a gun, you will have some sport in picking up singles, but you have to be very alert, for these birds will sometimes flush from under the broad leaf of a cactus almost at your horse's feet, and they don't care which way they go.

Jimmy Smith To Bowl Here

Milwaukee Star Meets Schaefer Tomorrow—Likely to Roll Otto Stein Wednesday.

Jimmy Smith of Milwaukee will bowl exhibition matches here this week starting tomorrow. Smith will bowl both afternoons and evenings. Smith is the only man to win the all-events championship of the American Bowling Congress twice. He won it in St. Louis in 1911 in the Coliseum bowling 1912 for the nine games and he won the all-events at Buffalo in 1920 bowling 1915 for the nine games.

Smith has won the Peterson Classic tournament, the blue ribbon event of the bowling world which will be bowled for the first time, in any city outside Chicago when the classic will be rolled at E. A. Schaefer's Delmar Recreation alleys, Kingshighway and Delmar next Saturday and Sunday.

Smith will open his engagement at Schaefer's alleys tomorrow afternoon and will appear at the same alleys tomorrow night at 11:30 o'clock following the league play. In the afternoon E. A. Schaefer will meet him. At night three opponents will bowl him.

Tuesday, Thursday and Friday he will roll at Schaefer's unless arrangements are made for him to appear at some other alleys. Any alley owner desiring Smith's services at his alleys can call him on phone at Schaeffer's any time after this afternoon.

Smith will bowl at the Washington alleys Wednesday afternoon where he will no doubt meet Otto Stein Jr., termed this city's best match game bowler or he will bowl some other bowler picked by Stein.

Wednesday night Smith will bowl at Rogers Recreation alleys at 9 o'clock following the matches of the 32 Craftsman team which use the Rogers alleys on Wednesday nights starting at seven o'clock. Manager Howard of Rogers had not announced last night who would meet Smith on his drives.

CHAPTER IV.

ST. VERONICA'S PAROCHIAL SCHOOL was where I began my education. Later I studied with LaSalle Institute. When I was about 14, I planned to become a lawyer. My final schooling was at New York University, where I took a night course in law for one year.

Quite early I became fond of reading. Under the guidance of my preceptors in the parochial school and through the institute, I was nutured in the classics. In those early days I formed attachments for Sir Walter Scott's works. Particularly did I like "Ivanhoe." Later I began reading Victor Hugo—who even today holds me irresistibly with his romantic charm and vivid pictures of people and emotions and events.

About 14 years ago, my father took me to the office of L. W. Hildum, port agent for a steamship company at Savannah. He told Hildum:

"He's too big for an office boy and it is possible he doesn't know the ropes enough for anything else. But I'd like to get him a job here."

I was gangling and tall. I hadn't begun to pad my naturally strong frame with the muscles that later were educated into the championship.

My ungainly appearance must have been accentuated by the fact that I wore short trousers. I imagine that I looked as grotesque as would the Statue of Liberty if garbed in a ballet skirt. But I was serious-minded and earnest. I vowed I would make a good office boy. I never was censured by Mr. Hildum or any of his office staff, and I understand that when I was in the ring against Dempsey, that same office force was cheering every blow that the radio relayed to their ears. I stayed with the company five years and received five promotions.

TUNNEY'S STORY THREE TIMES A WEEK

HEREWITH is the fourth chapter of Gene Tunney's story of his life and fighting career. The story was prepared and written by the new heavyweight champion himself, and installments will appear in the Post-Dispatch each Tuesday, Friday and Sunday.

Boxed at Noon Hour.

I STARTED at $5 a week. I was getting $17 a week when I left. The $17 looked as big as did my check for winning the championship. I confided to J. L. Lake, my "boss" in the office, that I wanted to learn—that I would go to shcool nighis. What a fine fellow he was! He would let me off when there was no extra work to do so that I could get to school. While attending school I used to "work out" in the gymnasium. At the noon lunch I used to box a bit with the longshoremen and began to develop something of a scientific defense and a pretty sure offense. I never had any real fights during my clerkship. I worked off most of my energy in the glove encounters. I really don't believe you get in many fights unless you look for them.

In those early years I was captivated by stories of the Middle Ages, of chivalry and knightly prowess. I learned from Scott, Tennyson and others that mere management of arms was not regarded sufficient to make an accomplished knight. Indeed, the powerful boys of those days in their "stove iron suits" were presumed to be endowed with intelligence, strength and agility and were skilled in music, the dance and could run swiftly and ride excellently. In other words, they had to have enough ability to become movie actors had they lived in the great today.

I gradually became an all-around athlete. Today I can do the 100-yard dash in 11 seconds or better and with training could make it in 10 2-5 seconds. I liked to swim and became good at that. Bicycling, rowing, fishing—I still like those healthful sports. A few years ago I took up golf and find it a wonderful tonic, relaxation and diversion. I am fair with the clubs, but my old putter sometimes gives me trouble.

Against Single-Tracking.

I THINK that any champion of a major sport should have some other sport or sports at which he is passably good. One sport provides an antithesis in a way to another and serves to sharpen up the main calling as a steel puts an edge on a knife.

I was reading not long ago in a dusty volume about Kolson, hero of the Viking days in the North. He boasted nine accomplishments. He wrote:

"I know how to play chess; I can engrave Runic letters; I am expert at my book; I know how to handle the tools of the smith; I can traverse the snow on skates of wood; I excel at shooting with the bow; I can throw the oar with facility; I can sing to the harp and I compose verses."

Kolson was quite a champion. I cannot lay claim to such prowess as that attested to by Kolson, and it is certain that I am no Martinelli with my voice but I really have an ambition to be well rounded out mentally and physically, champion or no champion. After all, men have done more with their minds than they have with their fists, and if it is possible to reach high with both mind and body, what a combination that is for anyone; I have done well by my body, in the way of education, and I am trying to do all that I can with my mind.

HIGH SCHOOL RACE OPENS OCT. 23

THE annual struggle for possession of the Yale Bowl, football trophy of the St. Louis Interscholastic League, opens next Saturday at Roosevelt Field when Beaumont High faces Cleveland in the opener and Roosevelt battles Soldan, last year's winners. Central drew a bye, in the opener, and will play Principia on that date.

Coach Lewis' eleven at Beaumont High has been damaged in pre-season workouts in that Brizil, center, and Mueller and Brodage, backs, are now on the injured list. The North Side coach is hoping to send a full strength lineup against Fenenga's formidable Cleveland team and the return of these men before Saturday will raise Beaumont's hopes a good deal. Fenenga's eleven held Webster to a 7-7 tie yesterday which gives the South Side a school an edge over Central which lost to the county team 14 to 0.

Carlson at Roosevelt faces somewhat of the same situation with Jarrett, one of the best halfbacks in the league, suffering from injuries sustained in a practice tilt with McBride. However, the rest of the backfield, Carroll, Sauselle and Savage, remain in good shape.

Coach Cook had little to work with at Soldan but has whipped his green material into such shape that a nicely working team is now going through the paces.

Josties Holds Brown to Tie

Fred Josties, perennial contender for local tennis championships, was at the top of his game yesterday afternoon and as a result he held Wray Brown to an even break in four sets in the final match for the Triple A singles championship. The fifth and final set will be played this afternoon on the Triple A court in Forest Park.

It is not a reflection on Josties' game to say that Brown was not in his best tennis mood. However, he was very little short of his best and that was just enough to allow Josties to get full benefit from his own powerful game. Josties took the opening set, 8—6, and Brown came right back to win in a row, 9—7, 6—3. To defeat imminent, Josties through the local champion 6—4 victory in the fifth. Darkness made it impossible to continue.

KEEP PRODUCTION PILING UP, WAGES HIGH, IGNORE TARIFF, AND PROSPERITY IS CERTAIN, SAYS BOSTON MERCHANT

Edward A. Filene Declares Protective Tax on Imports Unnecessary in United States—Believes Europe Must Adopt Ford Plan of Manufacturing to Save Itself Industrially—"Counterfeit" Wages Sometimes Paid.

EDWARD A. FILENE.

EDWARD A. FILENE of Boston is a big business man and a low tariff advocate. It was his business judgment which caused him to oppose the high Republican tariff, and politics in no wise counted, he asserts.

"Is a high tariff necessary to American industry?" a Post-Dispatch reporter asked Mr. Filene during his recent visit to St. Louis.

"No," he replied, "American industries do not need a protective tariff."

It was not a confession. It was a statement briskly put forth as a belief. Filene, who has written a book called "The Way Out," and has just returned from Europe where he talked with cabinet ministers, financiers, industrialists and labor leaders is a most engaging speaker. He delights in coining phrases. He has invented "counterfeit wages" and "one profit plan" and "under-consumption" and "the machinery of machines." It is a habit with him to hide these phrases behind his gray mustache and then, with a humorous twist of the mouth, to hurl them at you in the middle of a sentence. He is, incidentally, one of the experts on the Trade Barriers Committee of the International Chamber of Commerce. He speaks of tariff as an old friend.

"Under mass production," he explained, "the producer will see that a high tariff is unnecessary. As soon as American industrial leaders learn that mass production, mass consumption with high wages and low prices are the solution, there will be no more clamor for a tariff."

High wages and low prices?

High Wages, Small Profits

"The principle of high wages is sound," Filene hastened to point out, "if labor increases its production. The difference between high wages and low is negligible per piece when the workman produces as much as he does under mass production. Mass production makes the greatest profits by smallest profit per piece. And by producing in large quantities with corresponding small profits and low prices industry gives its workers buying power to keep pace with production."

Stated another way, the mass production principle is this: that the greater the production the higher wages it can carry and the higher the wages the more money people will have to buy the mass production.

"The trouble with industry is under-consumption," Filene asserted. "There is no such thing as general over-production. None of us is using as much as he could rightly use if he had the money to pay for it. High wages and increased production create low prices. Low prices increase consumption. With the high wages the worker has buying power and it is buying power which gives us prosperity."

Filene applied his mass production scheme to the tariff in this way:

"Under the coming system of mass-production in industry our buying power will be largely increased because prices will be largely reduced. The present fear that without a tariff wall we should be swamped with goods from other countries will be groundless because our cost of production will be less than that of foreign industries. It is safe to predict that when we develop mass production, mass distribution and mass consumption, and conquer the great waste in production and distribution, we will not need to worry about foreign competition. The tariff question will cease to be a battle ground of American politics."

Thus Filene disposes of the argument put forth by sponsors of the high protective tariff, who assert that without tariff protection foreign industries could undersell us in our own market because of their lower wages and longer work days and would force American industry to reduce wages.

For emphasis he coined a phrase:

Way to Reach Masses

"The enlightened selfishness of American producers will make them learn that they can sell more goods with prices within reach of the masses of consumers if the tariff is reduced to its lowest possible point."

At another point in his discussion he cited the Ford automobile as a concrete example of mass production.

"No one believes," he said, "that any European manufacturer can produce an equally good automobile which could undersell the Ford car on the American market."

His pronouncements in favor of low tariff—he said he was not prepared to advocate free trade as yet—are in line with what other noted business leaders interviewed by the Post-Dispatch have said. Benjamin Winchell, president of the Remington Typewriter Corporation; Jackson Johnson, chairman of the board of the International Shoe Co., and John Jay Watson, president of the International Agricultural Corporation, are agreed that the high tariff schedules maintained by the Republican majority are put forth as an ostensible sop to labor but really work for the benefit of protected manufacturers alone.

In this connection Filene would not say how much the present tariff schedules had increased retail prices of staple commodities. But he did point out that big business charges profits on the protection granted it by the representatives of the people in Congress. For instance—if an article costs $1 to make and 50 cents is added to it as tariff protection the manufacturer figures his profit on a percentage of $1.50, not $1. If his profit is 30 per cent the article would sell without the tariff at $1.30. But with the tariff it sells for $1.95. Thus, the protected manufacturer gets a double boost. His selling price is artificially raised and his profit is increased.

Over-Supply A Myth

There were still the bugaboos of over-supply, the old law of limitations of demand, and the dangers of super-trusts and labor combines to be argued down. Filene sailed into them vigorously, knocking one over with a nicely polished phrase, frowning another away with one downward focus of his spectacles.

"There is no such thing as an over-supply, a surplus which can be dumped on the market to destroy the price, if production is well-balanced," he declared. "The consumers in times of high wages and low prices will use all that can be produced."

This theory of business development advanced by Filene is predicated on the belief that the determined goal of industry is to produce the most goods at the lowest prices, depending on high wages and correspondingly strong purchasing power to keep the ball rolling. Whereas under the old system, prosperity was deemed dependent upon supply and demand, Filene's doctrine acknowledges no saturation point in demand and no limitations on supply. The only factors in demand, as he sees it, are those of purchasing power. He propounds a modernized malthusian hypothesis that populations tend to consume to the limit of their financial resources.

Now as to super-trusts, Mr. Filene frowned at the word. He also disliked the word "syndicalism." The phrase he preferred was "big business."

"I believe in great combinations," he said. "I think Ford's one profit plan is the best. By this I mean the grouping under one business leadership all the activities essential to the finished product of that business. Ford produces his coal, his steel, his transportation, his leather, his glass, paints and other materials. He sells these products to himself at cost and takes but one profit—a profit on the finished automobile or tractor. Under the old system individual profits were taken from each material and very often some of these profits were speculative.

British Empire Faces Critical Moment as Its Dominions Meet To Demand Greater Freedom

Lloyd George Analyzes Situation and Discusses Aspirations of Canada, Ireland and South Africa to Have Voice in Foreign Affairs—Trade and Immigration Also Issues.

By DAVID LLOYD GEORGE.

LONDON, Oct. 16.

NEXT Tuesday there meets in London an important gathering of chieftains of the most amazing empire the world has ever seen. Upon the decisions reached at that conference will depend the cohesion and destiny of that empire, with all that means to its influence on human affairs. One in four of the population of the globe owe allegiance to the British crown. Every race, color, religion and tongue is represented in that vast multitude of human beings who live under the British flag. Every variety of law, custom and worship is to be found in this strange combination of nations, races and tribes.

Nevertheless, its most striking feature is the gradations of loyalty owed by the parts to the center. There are vast territories where the word of Downing Street is as absolute as the decrees of Augustus Caesar were in the Roman Empire. There are dominions where the voice of Downing Street has to be attuned to notes of suggestion or appeal.

In so far as those dominions are concerned, the ties of the empire are as loose as those which Jefferson Davis sought to impose on the American republic before secession, just a number of independent states under a common head whose authority they obey or not, at their own free will. Yet these independent communities constitute the greatest strength of Britain in commerce and in war.

Their unwritten loyalty stood the test of the Great War and put into the field 1,000,000 of the finest soldiers ever marched into battle. An order from the Colonial Office would not have produced a single division—on the contrary, it would have frozen the ardor that raised the equivalent of 40. It is not too much to say that their response to the call of empire was the decisive factor in ultimate victory. Had they failed the Motherland, the allies would have been crushed long before America made up her mind to intervene.

Imperialism An Issue

Although the aggregate population of these states does not account for one twentieth of that of the whole empire, the issue of the coming conference will depend almost entirely on the attitude adopted by their delegates towards imperial questions and especially towards the delicate but all-important question of dominion status.

The discussion on this fateful issue will this time be beset with special difficulties. Hitherto, the dominions have been represented by ministers returned to power by majorities consisting, in the main, of electors of British origin who were devoted to the imperial connection. At this conference, three out of the five dominions will have Prime Ministers whose governments depend on voters of other races who view, with a certain measure of distrust, the supremacy of Britain in her empire.

Mr. Mackenzie King was returned to power by French-Canadians. Their loyalty to the empire cannot be challenged. The appeal to the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council, sitting in London and manned almost entirely by men of British birth, constitutes a bulwark to their liberties and privileges which they will not willingly forego. All the same, the war revealed a disquieting indifference on their part to Britain's difficulties.

Mr. Hertzog is the chosen leader of that section of Dutch opinion in South Africa which has not yet been completely reconciled to the imperial flag against whose suzerainty they fought so gallantly in the Boer War. Ireland is growing in friendliness towards Britain, but the memories of 700 years of oppression are not wiped out in a decade. Discussions on status and dominion independence are not new in these conferences but this time there will be a new meaning and a different note struck by the speakers.

Boers to Ask More

Gen. Hertzog has already made his purpose clear. He is a man of indomitable courage and unquestioned sincerity. His mind is that of an irreconcilable. He was opposed to the Treaty of Verging and would have preferred to go on fighting as long as there was a commander left uncaptured. He is the chosen and trusted leader of the Boer farmers. The case for larger independence will be presented by him at the Imperial Conference. In the striking interview he gave a few days ago, he said: "One of the main tasks, if not the main task, with which the conference will be confronted will be to see that co-operation between the member states of the Commonwealth is placed on a more certain and satisfactory basis. If success, in that respect, is to result from our labors, then questions of a fundamental nature affecting empire relations, both domestic and foreign, will have to be grappled with and decided."

There will be no secessionist claim put forward; but much will be heard of international independence. What does that mean?

Interference from London with the internal affairs of the dominions there is none. Even Lord Byng's action in refusing Mr. Mackenzie King dissolution of Parliament when he conceded it to the Conservative members was not inspired by London. The Colonial Office refused to express any opinion. They scrupulously adhered to the British policy of non-intervention in dominion affairs. I once asked Gen. Hertzog to point out to me one instance where any British Government had meddled in South African affairs since self government had been established in the Transvaal and the Orange Free State. He admitted there was not a single case.

Voice in Foreign Affairs

On the other hand, it is objected that in foreign affairs the British Foreign Office claims to speak on behalf of the whole empire—sometimes without previous consultation. The dominion nationalists are not content with this arrangement. Canada has established her right to separate representation at Washington. This is a formidable departure from the old practice by which the British Ambassador was the sole spokesman for the whole empire at foreign capitals.

There is serious dissatisfaction with the assumption that although the dominions have distinct representation on the League of Nations, they cannot be accorded all the privileges and opportunities which are open to Belgium or Czecho Slovakia. There is much feeling expressed on this point owing to the events which occurred at the last assembly.

Altogether, this conference is, in many ways, a critical one for the British Empire. With tact, judgment and good temper the discussions may do good. It is better to have it out. Neither French-Canadians nor South Africans mean to demand separation from the empire and Irishmen know well it would be impossible. In the first two cases, it could not be effected without civil war which would devastate the dominions and Ireland is dependent almost entirely on the British market for the sale of her products. The concluding words of Gen. Hertzog's interview are promising. "Given good will, courage and faith, we ought to be able to accomplish much that will insure permanency and harmony in all our relations in the future."

Just Like Family Affair

In all families, there are degrees of loyalty amongst the members; there are some members who stand up more on their rights than others; there are some who suffer from a sense of grievance and must be carefully handled; there are prejudices and jealousies which must be taken into account. And often the heads of families make the fatal mistake of insisting upon the mastery which was essential when the members of the family were young and needed fostering care and protection but which is humiliating now they have grown up.

It may perhaps be deemed advisable and salutary to give some of the members greater freedom of action than they have hitherto enjoyed; but such a policy, wisely and generously laid down, would probably have the effect of attaching those members more closely to one another at heart in the general determination to protect the wellbeing of the empire.

The imperial conference meets under the shadow of the great coal strike. While the dominion Premiers are gathering together to ascertain how best we can develop trade within the empire, how best the colonies and the mother country can co-operate to their mutual advantage, the mother country herself is having a hard time with her own sons at home. Such is the irony of circumstance. Nevertheless, it is as well to look ahead and to prepare for the time when Britain will recover from her exhaustion due to this struggle and will be fully equipped once more to

THREE REASONS FOR HOSTILITY OF FRANCE, ENGLAND AND OTHER NATIONS TOWARDS AMERICANS

British Isles Peeved at United States Because of World Struggle for Raw Materials, Belgium Embittered by Wreck of Wilson's Ideal, and France in Anguish Because of War Debt and Fallen Franc.

By WILLIAM BOLITHO

PARIS, Oct. 7.

THE American debt is no longer a political question in France; it is a lurid obsession that files all tempers, points all songs, ends and begins all conversations, that obtrudes itself into school lessons and dyes the first intelligible impressions of 1926 toddlers.

It does not cause argument. In fact—however they hate each other's ideas, ideals, ambitions—there is a common ground of meeting for all Frenchmen in the single phrase, "Ces sales Americains." (Those dirty Americans.) It takes a good hatred to unite a nation like this; there has not been so much brotherly feeling in France since the armistice.

Even the Matin, still united in no doubt platonic ties with the Standard Oil Co., does not dare an open defense. But, says Stephen Lausanne, its editor, prose poet of all national hatreds, are not the English still worse? And what about the other foreigners? The French have a nasty name for most foreigners—meteques, and Boches and Angliches and so forth. Lausanne recalls them to his immense public daily in vain.

Every one is quite willing to hate all foreigners, but not one will consent to be called off the American. He is the Shylock (an epithet imported from England), the dastard, who came into the war late, obviously to make a profit. The usurer, the grindstone, the bloated rich. There is quite a literature sprung up in Paris about the American, naive and ugly. At least 20 theaters and 30 weeklies earn a living by hating Americans; and the theme has at last given the grub street illustrators a new joke:

Little Son—May I have some sweets, Daddy?

Father—No, for the next 62 years you must save up to pay America.

Hacks, ham-fats and daubers have abandoned the mother-in-law motif for the moment. The wit of France is rejuvenated.

Why France Hates Its Tourists

The other specialists in public opinion, the politicians, have kept up to date. Herriot overturned the Caillaux Ministry by charging him with intention to pay the Americans. Poincare founded a new Bloc National with the promise not to borrow any money from them.

The point at which this sentiment becomes transformed into action is where the tourist season and the fall of the franc coincide. It is partly an historical, partly a geographical, partly a literary accident that the tourist industry has come to gigantic proportions in France. It constitutes the fourth or fifth of her sources of national wealth.

I do not know of any European nation civilized enbugh to deserve a tourist industry any more than I have met a woman sufficiently cultured to be fit for the business of taking in lodgers. But perhaps of all nations (it is a difficult calculation) the French are the least suited by their character and education for the trying trade. To begin with, they have the longest list of hereditary enemies; there are the first, the Germans, with the Scandinavians, because they do not hate Germans; and the English. Then the Italians, and the Greeks, Spaniards, Jews, because they look like the Italians and because most of them are poor; also, still more, because some of them are very rich. The Belgians, of course, are simply despised because they speak French, and the Dutch because they do not. The war added the Russians to the list of antipathies, both those who stay selfishly at home depriving France of a much needed ally, and those poor hundred thousand who are being taught by the Parisian what exile means and its difference from self-inflicted travel.

Why the American Has Taken the "Boche's" Place

In spite of the unfair inducement of the vast sums it brings, and in spite of all the outrageous flatteries of their innate hospitality ("France is the second country of every human being"), the French naturally, instinctively and conscientiously detest foreigners, and it is a real pain for them to see them in their roads, in their shops, in their hotels. The central body of the tourist industry, the Syndicat de Tourisme, needs and uses all the tact in the world to induce them, in their own interest, to keep this quiet in normal times. But it is hard.

Up till now the American has enjoyed a curious exemption from this feeling. Partly, it was because the preference obviously irritated the English visitors. Partly, it was because of a vague superstition, encouraged by endless cycles of after-dinner speakers, that a tacit entente bound the great Republic to the fortunes, military, cultural, national, of the smaller. This feeling existed before the war. A more generous and real one took its place after the intervention of Wilson. The old expectation of an exclusive alliance undoubtedly still haunted the Lausannes and Mandels until long after the peace conference, that somehow America would drop the veil and stand openly beside (or at any rate behind) France in a dual mastership of the earth "with French brains, American manpower and money." But it was not that that made three-quarters of the municipalities of France baptize their thoroughfares "Wilson." It was not that that composed for the President the greatest spontaneous reception a mortal has ever received when he arrived in Paris; but a noble part of that universal enthusiasm for him, his doctrine and his country which set Europe in brief fire, Germany as well as England, Turk as well as Pole, when the 14 points came into view.

So far have things changed that not only is the American suddenly substituted for that bogy who seemed made for eternity, the "Boche," the chief swine of all those swines of dirty foreigners, it is hard for him to leave the zone of purse-politeness round the hotel district without some fear of being insulted, and perhaps assaulted.

It has gone so far as this, that the presence of an obviously American type among other foreigners in a sightseeing charabanc of tourists makes the entire group nervous. An Englishman who intervened in one of these episodes of the Place Clichy with a confident, "Let me explain. These good people are not Americans," has his nose and his windscreen smashed for his pains.

Dream of World-Mastery Leaves Headache

It is much harder to find out what definite causes have led to this change of mind, how far the debt question is responsible for it, how far it has any resemblance to rationality. Epithets, curses, sneers that show how amazingly provincial are the ideas even of educated Frenchmen of the ways and faults of other nations, and profuse democratic spittings there are in plenty; but most Frenchmen are too angry to explain.

Yet it is clear that there are two immediate causes of the phenomenon, possibly casually connected but nevertheless distinct; the debt arrangement with Mellon, and the sudden halving of the value of the franc on the exchange market. Taking the second first, the classic symptoms of a falling currency affected the French more than any other state which has had the sadness to experience them:

1. Because the war which made everything else almost tolerable is now a long way back.

2. Because the French above all others are a saving people, and there is a touch of sheer, vicious miserliness in the national character.

3. Because it is the last of a long relinquishment of patriotic hopes for the domination and dazzling of the world.

4. Because it coincided with the height of the tourist season.

The painful little stories of Americans' lack of tact, which appear to have convinced President Coolidge, may be dismissed from serious consideration. No one threw French bills on the floor. No one used thousand franc notes with scornful gesture to light pipes, if only because at the depth of the fall it did not take more than 40 of the "contemptible francs" to make a quite solid dollar. These atrocity stories may be placed with the war-time white papers on Belgian children's hands. The fall of the franc, multiplied a thousand fold in the minds of the people who are quite naturally convinced (you would not expect them seriously to read and remember the arid columns of the exchange?) that the dollar has risen not to 40 by too vague hundreds of thousands of francs, roused outside the shops instantaneously that ugly, queer jealousy (which is the active principle of all French revolutions, distinguishing them from most others) of the poor for the rich.

Workmen's Compensation.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

LAST March the following news item appeared in one of St. Louis' evening newspapers:

"St. Louis' new $4,000,000 Courthouse will be a temple of damage suits unless the prevailing character of the litigation there differs from that now being carried on in the old Courthouse on Broadway.

Personal injury suits are taking up a large part of the time of the eight divisions of the Circuit Court which handle jury cases. In another division, No. 1, which is the assignment court, damage suits also take up a considerable part of the time. Non-jury cases require only two courts, and divorce and separate maintenance suits are tried in the Court of Domestic Relations in the Municipal Courts Building.

Circuit Clerk Schmoll in a recent report showed that of 12,420 suits filed in Circuit Court during 1925, 65 per cent were jury cases, and that by far the greater part of the jury cases were damage suits based on claims of personal injuries."

With this news item in mind, the ambulance chasing lawyers splitting fifty-fifty on damage suits and the man injured receiving less than he would under a Compensation Act are the voters of Missouri going to save "Proposition No. 1?"—Workmen's Compensation law—which will be submitted to a refereudum in November? Millions of dollars will be saved to consumers and taxpayers of Missouri each year by clearing court dockets of thousands of unnecessary damage suits, should "Proposition No. 1" get enough "yes" votes.

From 1907 to 1918 I lived in St. Louis and since 1914 have been a proponent of a workmen's compensation law in Missouri. I am ashamed when I look at the map to see Missouri with five non-industrial southern states depending upon the expensive, antiquated and ineffective damage-suit system to compensate a worker who has suffered injury in industry.

To save the Workmen's Compensation Law it will be necessary to use every available legitimate method to educate the voter, especially those of the rural communities, if Missouri is to grow and develop. G. A. ORTH.

Can Prohibition Be Enforced?

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

THERE is only one objection to prohibition that is registering any reaction in the public mind, namely, the law is not, or that is cannot be, enforced.

But many people are impressed with the failure of enforcement. The wet ballyhoo has frightened them with a bugaboo of the cost of it. This is the bunk, as the gamins say. For every dollar it costs the citizen of New York City, for instance, to enforce the general laws and ordinances, it costs the citizens of the United States an average of one and two fifths cents to enforce prohibition, exclusive of the Coast Guard, which is a regular part of our naval establishment and its upkeep must be provided regardless of prohibition.

What is there left of the "can't enforce" plea? Just this—that as soon as the "respectable" and "silk stocking" law violators will quit buying hootch and giving financial, social and moral support to the bootleggers and other desperate and low down criminals, then the evil of liquor lawlessness will become only a memory of a frightful and horrid civic and social debacle.

DAUGHERTY AND THE PUBLIC.

We do not believe the public was very much interested in the Miller-Daugherty trial. It began on Sept. 7, and ended on Oct. 11, a period when most Americans were too busy reading about baseball, Rudolph Valentino, Gertrude Ederle, Queen Marie and the trials and tribulations of Aimee McPherson to pay much attention to it. The failure of the jury to come to a decision, moreover, acted as an anti-climax and dulled whatever small amount of interest existed.

There have been times in the life of this nation when the criminal indictment and trial of an ex-Cabinet officer and a former high governmental officer like Miller would have received the burning attention of everyone. At almost any time in the last century when people were really interested in politics and government, the trial would have been a cause celebre. But the American people find these things stupid nowadays.

Under the screen of this indifference, public life is polluted and public men are "getting away with murder." When Harry Daugherty was indicted with Miller in the American Metal case, he said: "I am in no way apprehensive as to the outcome." And though the trial developed some very damning evidence against him, his confidence that he would not go to the penitentiary is justified by the result.

Daugherty is a very shrewd man, who knows how to cover his tracks. It was impossible for the Government to prove that he directly received part of the $441,000 "fee" paid by Richard Merton to John T. King for rushing through the office of the Alien Property Custodian the $7,000,000 claim for the sequestered assets of the American Metal Co. But it traced to Daugherty and his henchman, Jesse Smith, $224,000 of the fee by a mass of circumstantial evidence.

Even so, there was no conviction. Daugherty was right. There was no need for him to be apprehensive, even when his brother testified that he had burned the bank records at Washington Court House, O. Why should Daugherty fear the penitentiary when his former fellow in the Cabinet, Albert B. Fall, still enjoys freedom on his farm at Three Rivers, N. M., and the fruits of his nefarious deals with Sinclair and Doheny?

The apathy toward the Miller-Daugherty trial encourages all crooks, actual and potential, who hold public office. They have learned from this and other incidents that the people are bored with political and governmental questions, and that corruption in office—once a crime of the gravest kind—is now practiced in many cases with impunity.

A TWENTY-FIVE-YEAR-OLD SOCK.

Senator George Williams is still rubbing the spot on his head which was hit two score and five years ago at a polling place as he was on his way to vote. This injury, inflicted by a ruffian, defies the healing process of time. It has persisted to become a campaign issue in the year 1926. In short, Senator Williams places upon the shoulders of Maj. Hawes the responsibility for that old, but not forgotten, sock.

At the time, Maj. Hawes was President of the St. Louis Police Board and was charged with the duty of preserving peace and order within the city limits. This being so, he should have protected George Williams on the fateful day. His hand, or the hand of a subordinate, should have stayed the blow. That is the basis of Senator Williams' charge.

We think it very unfortunate that Senator Williams, as a young man, should have been treated in so rough and unseemly a fashion while he was doing his duty as a citizen. It was very careless of Maj. Hawes to permit his future opponent in a senatorial race to go to the polls without a single buck or a solitary bravo to protect him from injury.

With this expression of sympathy, we leave the subject, hoping that Senator Williams' old sock heals in preparation for future socks that may come.

THE NEW FOX.

A former grand dragon being brought out of prison to tell his story of political corruption while Indiana was in the clutches of the klan will serve to remind the country that ku klux is waning.

The tumult and the shouting in the South have gone off after another fox. The innumerable organizers and field workers, each intent upon dues and hailing the multitudes as his meal ticket, have something to arouse the delinquent. It is no longer the Pope. It is not prohibition. It is heresy.

That is the new fox. It has all resulted from the Dayton trial. It has been remarked that the klan seems not to be as popular as once it was. Most of us have observed that prohibition did not stand up in the primaries this year as it formerly did. How many of us knew why? Was it because the veritable army of reformers whose intolerance inflames the ignorance of the masses had found some useful means of making a living? Was it because all the be-whiskered old billygoats who first whooped the people into this and then into that, collecting $10 a head from them in every drive, had been turned upon by those they exploited and chased into the bush?

It was none of these. The Dayton trial had providentially supplied the Genesisters with a new cause. From harrowing the Catholic and the Jew, and from dancing upon the prostrate form of the Demon Rum, they had found a dues-winner without precedent in the South. So once more the chase gave tongue, the hills resounded with the halloos of pursuit, and the magic $10 bill began to come in again. The refugee was the devil. He was an old fox, crafty, resourceful, never too tired to run—just what they wanted.

A survey of this phenomenon has just been made by the American Civil Liberties Union. It is an amazing record, and leads Harbor Allen, who got it together, to conclude that the time is not far distant when this will have become the greatest crusade we have ever seen in the United States. Laws against evolution were attempted last winter in five Southern Legislatures. In one of them, that of Mississippi, such a law was adopted and signed by the Governor. Nor is this what is most dismaying to education. Great organizations, fired by the memory of Bryan's martyrdom for the truth, are taking the field against evolution. Variations of the Ku Klux motive, offering the same field work for voodoo doctors, are rallying recruits by the tens of thousands.

The thing is spreading into the North. Laws requiring daily reading of the Bible in public schools are now in force in 11 states, of which Delaware, Idaho and Oregon were added in the last year. Kansas, highly inflammable upon any moral score, is rapidly firing against evolution. In Jewell County recently "The Book of Knowledge" was publicly burned by the local school authorities. Edward Young Clark, formerly a veritable quetzal bird among Ku Kluxers, has founded at Atlanta the Supreme Kingdom, which is in the field against atheism, evolution and communism. George F. Washburn, a Boston business man who lives in Florida and was caught up by the Bryan uplift, has given $100,000 for the Crusader's Champion,' an antievolution publication. The great Bryan University, which the fundamentalists were going to build in Tennessee, and which is to give battle to the godless in the very front ranks of education, has been moved in the prospectus to Chicago. Its promoters hope to raise $25,000,000. At the World's Christian Fundamentalist Association convention at Toronto last spring it was asserted that fundamentalist colleges will be established in every state of our own Union and every province of Canada. A bonfire was made of scientific books last winter as far east as Morristown, N. J.

This, then, is why prohibition and Ku Klux wane. One fox at a time.

MR. HAY AND PROHIBITION.

Charles M. Hay thinks Senator Reed has insulted popular intelligence in saying that there are so many people unlawfully engaged in making and handling liquor. He thinks the figure of 10,000,000 is high, and objects that the computation is based upon nothing more than a guess. It was a guess that in taking 172,537 stills in 1925 the General's men did not get one still in 10. How does Mr. Hay know it is a guess? Has he some information upon the subject not possessed by Gen. Andrews? The General gets his figures from the men in the field. They make no claim to rounding up more than one still in 10. It is for this reason that Congress is constantly petitioned by the department for more money. It wants more money with which to employ more men. More men are needed because there are too many stills for such a small force.

Is this guessing? Will Mr. Hay say that the department does not really need the money? Does he wish to be understood as holding that Gen. Andrews does not know what he is talking about and that he, a mere onlooker, knows more about the situation than Gen. Andrews and all his men?

Senator Reed gets his figures from headquarters. The General says each still is manned by as many as three men. It was by multiplying the number of stills seized by three that Senator Reed got his first 5,000,000. He got his second 5,000,000 by estimating that there are as many people commercially and non-commercially engaged in making and handling wine and beer as there are similarly violating the law in hard liquor. Does Mr. Hay deny this? If so, he knows very little of the world in which he lives. If he will ask the first 10 men he meets on the street whether there are as many people engaged in making wine and beer as there are occupied with hard liquor he will learn something. The shipments of wine grapes from California have leaped under prohibition from 6000 carloads to 75,000 carloads a year. Is Mr. Hay so ingenuous as to believe that none of these is made into wine? Does he think the great business that has sprung up in malt has nothing to do with beer making?

The trouble with Mr. Hay is that he knows very little about prohibition, whereas both Gen. Andrews and Senator Reed know a great deal about it. It ought to be a good idea for him, disadvantaged as he is under the circumstance and certain to get chewed up, to get out of the controversy while he is intact.

Oliver T. Remmers, chairman of the St. Louis Republican City Committee, says God is his judge and not Senator Reed. We will now wait curiously to see what happens to anybody who mentions Senator Reed second.

ELECTROCUTION IN PLACE OF HANGING.

One of the proposals which will be made by the Missouri Association for Criminal Justice to the State Legislature in January will be to do away with hanging and to substitute electrocution in its place.

It is astounding with what tenacity we of Missouri continue to cling to the antiquated in laws, procedure, methods and machinery. What force impels us to persistently sit tight is problematic. Be it antecedents, environment, climate or just cussed cantiousness, we do continue in many ways to live up to our almost internationally recognized battle cry, "I'm from Missouri. Show me!"

How long do we have to be shown before we recognize that our present system of legally killing human beings by dangling them from a rope's end is bungling, cruel and barbarous?

Long since other states have adopted electrocution as the efficient and merciful way of imposing the death sentence.

If human life must be sacrificed to protect human society, let us do it decently by banishing the county jail-yard hangings for electricity and the quiet of the penitentiary death cell.

Senator King of Utah has renounced travel. He cannot attend a called meeting of the Reed investigating committee because he is not going to leave out there until they lick Smoot.

Fortunately for the Democrats, it is unlikely that Senator Williams can run for Senator anything like he can run for cover.

SOMETHING IN MEN'S CLOTHES! HA! HA!

Ever since Eve donned the fig leaves, women's clothes have been denounced. By whom? The men. Why? In an endeavor to answer that question, we wrote down every possible objection to women's clothes and successfully answered all but one. This stupendous task took three weeks, eight pencils, a box of cigars and nine packages of cigarettes. There is only one reason for male objection to female attire—objecting to women's clothes diverts attention from what men wear. Take the derby—throw it in the ash-pit. Whoever conceived that an inverted tureen with a brim is suitable headgear for the lord of creation should have been drowned years ago. Take the high hat—bury it. That monstrosity could only have been conceived in the brain of a fiend. Take Oxford bags—so far away they can never come back. We affect loose trousers, but not trousers so loosely biased that they are four times as wide where they are plural as they are where they are singular. Take stiff collars and then arsenic. But why prolong the agonizing list? Men, he-men, fellow-men, the women are wiser. They have had their clothes denounced, and as a result they wear comfortable garments. We have been content to wear what things were thrust upon us. A moral crusade will save us. What blasphemies have resulted from the wearing of stiff collars! How many boys have embarked on a path of crime from not resisting that first impulse to hurl soggy tomatoes at a high hat! How many love dreams have ended in alimony, merely because a man had to pour himself into formal evening clothes seven nights a week! Men, our clothes are as much a menace as those of the ladies. Let's have a few denunciations, and then we can be comfortable!

NOTES FROM A TRANSATLANTIC DIARY

Brussels is called the little Paris. One dines on the sidewalk and drinks whatever he will at any hour. Early in the morning I have seen men drinking beer when I was merely finishing my breakfast. In one restaurant I was astonished to see a man on a platform waving his hands about and using his lips without making any noise. I was told that all the patrons of that restaurant were either deaf or dumb and that twice weekly lessons in sign language and lip reading were given as an inducement to come there and partake of a glass of beer or vin rouge.

I don't know whether it is due to the joie de vivre or what, but I find sleeping very difficult owing to the incessant tooting of taxi horns. A good taxi driver keeps one hand on the horn all the time and most of the taxi drivers are fairly expert, so that one retains the impression received the first night in Brussels that a whole zoo had escaped and gone mad.

The franc here, as in France, is very low, but here the attitude towards Americans is not so pronouncedly antagonistic and prices are not raised accordingly as they are in France. An excellent meal with wine and other liquids well-nigh priceless in the States can be had for 30 francs or less. A tailor-made suit sells for 300 francs. When multiplied by 3 cents in our money these prices seem very cheap, and are so. Added to that, Belgium is the only country an American is not charged $10 to enter and stay for three months. The proprietors of restaurants don't go out to lunch because it is cheaper to eat at home, so if you come to Belgium you will be sure of a good meal.

BALLADE.

'Tis sweet to love, but still I brood
O'er my poor luck, I must confess;
Of all the many girls I've wooed,
Not one of them has yet said "Yes."
All dreams of mine to ruin go,
Since all the girls my suit decline;
Yet each adds, as she murmurs "No;
"But, boy, you have an awful line."

'Tis sweet to love, but Ah! 'tis still
To woo a miss, and woo in vain;
Despite the many girls I've had,
My single state I still retain;
My hopes of bliss long since have fled,
No love may cheer this heart of mine;
Yet with her "No" each girl has said,
"But, boy, you have an awful line."

Each lovely miss I chance to meet
Is soon assured she is the first;
By no mistake would I dare treat
A girl as if I were well versed;
Though for pursuit I have a flair,
My lack of skill I must repine;
Yet each adds, as I get the air,
"But, boy, you have an awful line."

L'Envoi.

Sweet Prince, I'll throw my books away,
The poets to the flames consign;
I'm tired of hearing women say,
"But, boy, you have an awful line."

JUSTICE AND POLITICS.

From the Chicago Tribune.

A MONTH ago three Federal agents, led by a local preacher, raided a still in the hills near Tacoma, Wash. One of the men found at the still was killed by the officers. The minister was armed, but it was not alleged that he used his weapon. The officers explained that they had shot the bootlegger because he had attacked them. But the bootlegger had been shot in the back. A companion says he was shot while running away. The local prosecuting attorney at first declared the shooting was cold-blooded murder and he arrested all parties. Yet now we hear the prosecution is dismissed. The local prosecuting attorney, who started so bravely to bring the official killers to justice, changed his tune. He dismissed and then resigned. His reasons for the dismissal are worse than weak. The real explanation is said to be politics. It is not necessary to go into the ramifications of the political situation in Washington. It is enough for the decent American if politics is paralyzing justice and setting a murderer free. The victim was an obscure individual, apparently a Japanese, apparently a lawbreaker, without influence. But that he was brutally slaughtered while trying to escape seems the only possible conclusion from the published facts, and if he was his blood cries out for justice. He was run down in the name of public morals by agents of the law, led by a man of high office though armed with a deadly weapon and he was shot down, shot in the back.

GREAT SPIRITUAL AWAKENING.

GREAT expectations of a revival of religion in America are voiced with increasing frequency in the pulpits and in a section of the press. Speculations as to the precise shape that this movement will assume vary according to the temperament of the prophets, but the discussions in the main are held well within the traditional bounds. Mr. Glenn Frank, a theologically-minded layman, sees "a vast and sweeping popular movement which will compel the historian a hundred years hence to write that 'along about 1933 the Western World was caught in the sweep of an unprecedented spiritual awakening in which the best aspiration and the best knowledge of our time met and merged, a movement that must be set along side the Renaissance, the Reformation, and the Wesleyan revival." Dr. Frank Crane writes: "All that is needed is for some magnetic prophet to arise, some man with the spiritual endowment of Loyola, a Luther or a Wesley" * * * a popular movement needs a figurehead, some personality around which it can drape its traditions, its mysticism, and its hagiology. It needs some stupendous man who will embody the desires and longings of the devotees, and thereby slope mysteriously upward into infinity. * * * The forces which have shaped the American soul and thereby the American religion cannot fail to bring forth the longed-for leader at the appointed hour. He may be among us, indeed, already serving his period of probation.

ting in the cheap trip cars because the great human heat of the mob conceived that they were enriched. At the very bottom of the hatred of the French for the German is the obscure feeling that he is ugly and powerful; for the English the feeling that he is proud and cunning. At the bottom of the new-born feeling for the American is the conviction that he is rich—all rich, all money lenders, all insatiably lustful for the blood of the poor.

I read that Ambassador Herrick (some days before the Clemenceau letter) denies that any trace of such feeling exists. I did not see that he found the mutilation of (the Volunteers' Monument worth a word. Even if the biting hate, the world-embracing snarl that jumped from America to England, sinister recapitulation of war cries and boasts and reproaches in that letter, which the whole of France accepted as the perfect expression of every man's inarticulate loathing of France's neighbors, does not confute the disavowal, the affair of the monuments puts such visible evidence as only a witty nation could compress into one act. A Russian in the presence of and at least undeterred by them hammers off the limbs of the stone doughboy who symbolizes not the huge influx that broke Germany but the first unslanderable aid of Americans. It was a monument to gratitude, to the dead, to volunteers. Not one single line of regret appeared in the whole breadth and length of the French press. The attitude of the crowd that watched but did not actively assist was that of the nation. The only apologetic wreath on the wreck was that of the American volunteers themselves.

Before a symbolic act has occurred any inquiry into the feeling of a nation risks being fanciful. The reception of Wilson was one of those acts, as unmistakably as was the assassination of Serajevo, as unmistakably as the assassination of this effigy of gratitude and remembrance and the silent France which watched it done. One might find stories to account for it if some drunken Parisian chipped off Washington's nose, or even if he threw a stink bomb at the embassy. But the American tourist who chooses to go first of all to look at what they have done to Alan Seeger's cenotaph will have no doubts henceforward as to what deep ugliness toward his nation this nation has on its mind. From Wilson to the monument—how long and wide are seven years!

English Hostility Is Cold, Ugly and Direct.

The colder climate of England has produced an interesting variety of that fine flower of hatred of Americans which has blossomed in Paris. In France it is democratic, that is vulgar and unreasonable. In England nothing that the people think counts very much; their betters never "hate" but "justly resent."

So the grotesque and laughable which half disguises the seriousness of the movement in France is not visible over here; the ugliness is cold and hard.

No English statesmen in public or private ventures to hint at abominable conspiracies to buy their country up, as Clemenceau did. No stones are thrown. No expectoration, street shouting or monument maiming.

But without any of this steam, the English manage just as formidable a hostility. The accusation is direct, and more concentrated. It confines itself to the collection of the debt. It was adequately summed up by Churchill in his public argument with the State Department; in plain words that America is a usurer who falls mercilessly on the backer of her allies' bills. Nothing will shake this belief in England; it has been added to the unwritten constitution.

On this new article of the Credo there is naturally a varied exegesis. The ruling families explain the "extortion" as a part of an American plan for world domination. The Tyrrels and their like who shape the foreign policy of the empire, in secula seculorum, hold that the United States is bent on crushing England out of existence. Their policy has to have an enemy. It was Russia, then Germany, then France. Now it is America. On two occasions these impassive gentlemen and the galaxy of imperialist financiers who carry on the tradition of Rhodes around them made the slip of showing it. Once in the Edgar Mackey letter to the Times in March, 1920, in reply to Senator Gore of Oklahoma, which revealed the enormous designs of the Imperial oil interests with the conclusion:

"Before long—in 10 years—America will be obliged to pay millions of pounds sterling yearly to British companies for the oil she needs and which she will no longer be able to draw from her own resources."

The second was more recent, when rubber went near a dollar a pound and even in public British statesmen could not help smirking at the prospect of winning back all their country had to pay for the debt.

Vast Economic Blockade Forming Against United States.

It is this raw materials policy, which apart from the incalculable effects of the general wave of xenophobia observable everywhere in Europe, is the most important result and consequence of the belief that America is willfully strangling Europe. But all the combines depart from the limits of mere business, appear in the minds of their organise and their fellow countrymen as counter offensives in an industrial war against the American "invaders" and are supported with a unanimous public opinion, by overt or open Government countenance and approval.

It is the mere beginning of a policy of reprisal for the American debt, in which the Old Continent uses the only weapon at her disposal, a hold-up of the raw materials of her colonies. Financially at America's mercy, commercially unable to do without her, there is shaping a vast economic blockade in which, perhaps, there is a danger of non-European haters of the States joining.

Such a bogy is of course far off. It is one of the features of the situation (good or evil?), as noticed especially in France that Americanophobia tends to excite a general mutual detestation among Europeans, especially among the lower classes. The debt does not unite Europe. They detest each other, as well as the "enemy," like prisoners of war in a camp.

Debt Demands England's "Last Penny."

If a sudden fall of the sterling made prices lower than the world level, and higher than the wage level, as in France, no doubt the traveler would see in England the same phenomenon of respectable statesmen urging traders to cheat and raise their prices to a foreign accent.

In Englad, then, is observable first an unevolved dislike of Americans, still tangled in a general dislike of all foreigners, among the lower classes.

A state of things which the propaganda of the ruling classes—such cartoons as the Uncle Shylock of the Daily Mail—is trying to shape to its own feeling. This is a mixture of resentment of a conceived injustice, a grim determination to retaliate by every arm. There is no counter action. Not a voice is raised among Radicals, Pacifists, Socialists, against what is as near a definite national hostility as that felt toward Germany from 1911 to 1914.

The reason for passivity or encouragement of so dangerous a feeling, complex in appearance, is at base simple; as simple as despair. If it is a puzzle to anyone that the sum of money behind all this commotion is so disproportionate to its effect, they may be told that it stands for the total superfluity, the maximum possible for the next two generations out of which to buy all but the bare necessities of social life.

It corresponds to a payment of the last coins in a workman's pocket, his tobacco money.

All plans for social improvement, the extension of education, the corporate betterment of the health and standard of living of the nations subject to the American tribute are impossible, while it is being paid. It is a mere penny, but it is that most important of all pence, the last. Its payment puts the most moderate progressive program out of the question, as the MacDonald Government were horrified to discover. To Radical as well as to Imperialist, the debt means ruin; he has not even the latter's satisfaction of weaving schemes for making it up by cornering raw materials.

Belgium, Most Helped, Hates Hardest.

In Belgium, if anywhere, the sensitive American must legitimately hope to have left the bailiff zone behind, the reproaches, the slanderers, the plotters, the yahoos. This is a nation that he saved, fed, healed, financed. Yet in some ways, partly because of this, Belgium is more humiliating and depressing than the debtor countries from whom some repayment is claimed. It is not merely that Belgium customs officers have dirtier hands, that their ticket collectors and passport examiners are more officious and patriotically insolent, that the trade politeness of the hotel keepers is not of the same quality as elsewhere. All these are manifestations of self-expression current among the small fry nations created or restored by the war.

But it is only at Brussels that a hotel porter would think of warning Americans that to unfold an American newspaper on the terrace of a cafe was compromising and provocative. Only in Belgium do laws and customs divide humanity into good and bad in reverse ratio to their national currency, and find the bloated gold countries in mass. Belgium manners are a trial at any time, but the particular offensiveness of their shopkeepers at present, who cannot yet have sold out the vast masses of German goods they emigrated in hordes to Cologne to buy when the mark fell, is a bodily danger o both client and American customer.

I will not attempt to seek the material reason for the change of feeling to America; economists can explain no doubt why the Belgian franc is so tied to that of France, that it suffers the same or even magnified reverses. The Belgian press explains that as America ruins France and France ruins Belgium, there is no doubt as to the culprit. It might add to complete the explanation why the French are only insulted sotto vote, and the American with full frankness, that France is very near and America far away. It is enough that in the extreme case of Belgium can be measured the whole lamentable difference between what was and what is, between the days, when if there had been no quota barrier, there would have been an emigration from Europe such as history has no precedent for, across the Atlantic; and now. At that time there was not a country in Europe, Germany included, France included, where hundreds of thousands of citizens did not feel an affection and a respect for the United States greater than for their own; for President Wilson, for his ideal, for the people that produced and spoke through him.

Will Hope for Day of Retribution.

No empire ever existed that enjoyed such prestige, which stood above the mere fear that other empires have acquired, as high as the 14 points stood above the French policy of the Rhine.

It is the truth that the Western masses held off from Leninism because of the rival hope of Wilsonism. With shrewd judgment, the European proletariat was never affected by all the material good works of Hoover to the tenth fraction of what it was by the large dream of Wilson. Weigh, then, disillusionment as the half-forgotten origin of their present hate. Europe has long forgotten the free meals and the delousing of the good Red Cross; it will never forget being left to Clemenceau and Lloyd George and Poincare, and to all the Mussolinis yet to come.

It is this deception that causes the charge of hypocrisy that seems so strange to Americans. Rich, he can understand, though not how it harms a European shop keeper. Greedy—all creditors are greedy. But hypocrites? The thousand-fold nauseating joke of an Uncle Sam whining into his handkerchief as he takes the bread from the children, the repetitive cartoon of Uncle Sam—when they've paid up, I will send them a Relief Commission.

Yet this is the picture they are giving the children. I told you once of the school history they use in Italy which ends, "Then the treacherous Serbs aided by the hypocritical Wilson and our faithless allies joined in robbing Italy of the fruits of her victory." In some such light thousands of school teachers in Belgium and France are showing America to their pupils today.

So gradually, in exchange for the greatest prestige and affection any nation ever had, which they did not want, the United States is now become bogy to scare babies with. . . . No doubt the coarse phase we are going through will fade away, when self-interest of the tourist countries manages to put in its word.

But on every interest day for 62 years, this feeling will recur, which in course of time will harden into a doctrine as unquestioned as was that of colonial imperialism in the nineteenth century, without a protest or a dissident that all is fair against the Americans, from the deliberate, legal overcharge of the Belgium hotels, to the corner in oil and rubber and coffee. Hoping, of course, for that blest day that some extra-European foe will affront face to face the power, which after conquering Europe, chose only to exploit it.

INTERNAL REVENUE COLLECTOR 'SCALPS' AMATEUR SCALPER

Man Makes $14 on Series Tickets, But Is Taxed $7 and Fined $10.

The Internal Revenue Collectors' office is making a check of all tickets sold by scalpers during world's series games here, preparatory to collecting 50 per cent of their profits as the required Government tax.

Each scalper who went into the business openly was required by law to register his name and address with the Collector and to write on each ticket he bought and resold the resale price with a statement of his profit.

Amateur scalpers, those who sold their tickets to professionals for a profit, are voluntarily walking in with statements as to their transactions. Twelve such men have appeared thus far. One man said he sold his tickets at a profit of $14. He was taxed $7 and fined $10 for failing to declare as required by law. So he lost $3 on the deal.

A concerted policy between herself and her colonies would prove a precious benefit to her in the time of sore need. The empire—and especially the dominions—constitutes Britain's best customers and Britain is the largest purchaser of Empire products. There are still vast unexplored possibilities of trade within the Empire. There can be no further advance on the road of imperial preference unless Britain abandons her present fiscal system. That, the Baldwin Government is pledged not to undertake during he lifetime of the present Parliament. But there is a great deal that can be accomplished by improving communications within the empire. That subject is bound to come up for serious discussion.

Immigration an Issue.

Bound up with the question of trade is the problem of overseas settlement and this will form an important item on the agenda. In view of the grave state of unemployment here, this matter assumes a special urgency. The difficulty now, as always, is in the type to send overseas. The dominions will accept none but the fit and skilled, where as it is a suicidal policy for this country to encourage its best men to leave. To take our skilled workmen who cannot be replaced, especially skilled agricultural workers, is drawing the life blood from the veins of Britain. The question of emigration from the mother country to the dominions and colonies has never really been grappled with as an entire problem. There is a suspicion in the home land that the dominions are not too keen to welcome immigrants.

The restriction in immigration in the United States is largely responsible for the high wages now paid American workmen. Labor in our dominions has not been slow to draw the inference. Australia has already learned the season. The workers are not anxious to encourage competition from the low waged countries of Europe in their labor market. Politics also enters into the spirit with which the dominion governments view immigration from various countries. But here I am treading on dangerous ground. And those reasons, potent though they may be, will not be avowed by those whom they influence most.

Altogether, an anxious conference for British imperialists. I feel that all will go well.

DAVID LLOYD GEORGE.

We Urge You to Visit Your Radio Show

Once a year at the Radio Show are gathered together for your inspection the newest developments in radio—the latest set models, the most advanced types of loud speakers. In fact, everything new in radio.

Many of the world's most brilliant radio engineers are devoting their lives to improving and perfecting radio for your enjoyment.

To see the result of their labors is in itself a liberal education. We urge you to attend.

There are five Kolster models—two six-tube and three eight-tube—all single controls, some for antenna others for loop operation. Prices are from $85 to $375. Each model has exclusive Kolster features. Every Kolster is fully guaranteed.

Brandes Reproducers range from the Table Cone at $12.50 to the Power Cone at $250. Each model incorporates the results of eighteen years of continuous development work in radio accoustics.

But Remember

Looking at the radio sets reveals only a partial story. What you hear is the all-important thing. Claims mean nothing. Anyone can make them. Demonstration is the only safe way to judge radio.

Kolster Sets and Brandes Reproducers have won hosts of friends as the result of demonstrations.

Of course, they are beautiful. And they are advanced in engineering. But to really judge them, we urge you to hear. Visit our display at the Radio show. We will gladly answer your questions.

Then ask your nearest Kolster-Brandes dealer for a Kolster-Brandes demonstration. Should you not know where to find him, phone to our distributor, whose name appears below.

themselves. Combination and organization give you mass production. I have even tested it out with steamship travel, one of the most difficult commodities to reduce to mass production.

"The White Star and Red Satr Lines are using the Filene plan and have been advertising a four-weeks' trip to Europe with everything included for $225."

In the new industrial scheme Filene fits the farms to a semi-industrial classification. He believes, with Ford, that mass production methods must come to agriculture and farms must be cultivated intensively. Various agricultural experts have demonstrated that with modern machinery and increased fertilizer ratios American farms could be made to produce twice or three times as much as they do today.

"Farm labor can be reduced to four months a year," he continued, "and by distributing industrial units through farming regions a way can be found to employ farmers in shops the other seven or eight months. Ford is doing this now successfully."

The question of labor and hours of work then came up for discussion.

"I am for unionism," he declared, "because I do not think that we business leaders or any men are good enough to hold complete power over our workers. But I am against any labor policies that irrationally interfere with high production from which alone sustained high wages and salaries can come."

Returning to the tariff, Filene made clear that a high protection policy was incompatible with low prices, and that low prices are necessary to stimulate consumption, on which the success of the mass production era must depend.

The interviewer wished to know what Filene, as a Democrat, believed to be the prospect for early defeat of the Republican tariff. Would a revived and united democracy win at the polls in 1928?

He said the time was not ripe to make predictions, but it looked to him as if tariff revision must come more slowly by educating producers and their employes. He seemed sad about the Democratic party, but mentioned, hopefully, several men who he thought could unite the Democrats and lead them to victory. Neither Al Smith nor McAdoo nor James A. Reed were included in his list.

The Problem for Europe.

Next, he took up the European situation, and here, he said, the doctrine of mass production was just as applicable, even more so. Without money and credit European countries must produce enormously more than they have been doing so they can enter the world's market on a barter basis.

His detailed explanation of this idea follows:

"While there have been improvements of conditions in certain lines in all countries, yet the general business conditions and the outlook for the future is worse than last year. The next two or three years will be years of very great difficulties for all European nations.

"My reason for the above statement is, that every country will be forced to increase its exports in order to give sufficient work to its citizens, to pay for its necessary imports and to keep its money stable.

"This forced export will bring about a super-competition that will destroy profits for all nations excepting those that manufacture and distribute with the most modern and most scientific methods. Before the war international business competition, as a rule, ceased when profits ceased. Under present circumstances every nation will be forced to sell even without profit and as business men cannot do business continuously without profit, they will be forced to try to lower wages and perhaps increase the hours of work. This will bring not only business and financial dangers, but also social and political dangers. Under these conditions, all the nations will be forced eventually to reorganize their production and distribution according to the best and most successful methods of any nation.

"At present the methods that are the most scientific are those of mass production and mass distribution—the methods employed in France by Citroen, in the United States by Ford, by Bata in producing shoes in Czecho-Slovakia, etc. —methods by which products are made that can be sold profitably for 25 and 50 per cent less than those manufactured by methods still prevailing in many European countries."

In conclusion, the reporter wished to show if the manufacturers protected b ythe tariff ever sold their products lower than the tariff price so as to underbid the flood of European competition which they claim threatens the American market.

Filene smiled.

"I never heard of such a thing," he asserted. "But perhaps——"

"But," protested the interviewer, "surely they do not always need the tariff except when pressed by actual foreign competition?" "The general rule, I believe, is to sell at the tariff profit except when pressed by foreign competitors and then shade under a little to catch the trade," was Filene's answer.

FUNERAL OF E. A. KOERNER TO BE HELD THIS AFTERNOON

Funeral services for Ernst A. Koerner, 73 years old, who died Friday at his home, 3559 Halliday avenue, will be held this afternoon from an undertaker's chapel at 2623 Cherokee street, thence to the Missouri Crematorium.

In pre-prohibition days Koerner had been a prominent figure in the restaurant business in St. Louis, and, for almost three years afterward he was equally prominent in the Federal courts, having been arrested four times by prohibition officers on charges growing out of violation of the Volstead act. Sentenced to serve six months in the St. Charles County Jail in 1922, he escaped that punishment, the order for imprisonment being "forgotten" by the Circuit Court of Appeals, which had affirmed it, when physicians testified that because of diabetic complications he would never live through such a jail term. He recovered his health, for a time, by dieting, but the prison commitment remained "forgotten."

His restaurant for many years was a rendezvous of bon vivants, and he established St. Louis' first summer season of light opera in Koerner's Garden, in the early '80s. He is survived by a widow and two sons.

MOTORMAN OF CAR THAT KILLED CONDUCTOR IS HELD

Coroner's Jury Places Blame for Accident on Page Line on W. T. Wright.

William T. Wright, motorman of a Page boulevard street car which Thursday night fatally crushed L. M. Lemon, conductor of the car ahead, who was adjusting its trolley at Hodiamont and Etzel avenues, was held under $5000 bonds on a charge of criminal carelessness, following a Coroner's inquest yesterday.

Lemon had climbed out on the rear shoulder of his car to replace the trolley, which had left the wire on the curve on Etzel, when the car following rounded the turn.

Passengers testified that, although Lemon's car was dark while the trolley was off, it could be distinguished by street and other lights at that intersection. Lemon was 40 and resided at 4352 Washington boulevard. Wright is 25 and lives at 4676A Page boulevard.

ROLLA STUDENT FINED $50 FOR HUNTING OUT OF SEASON

Paul G. Waddell, 36, Pleads Guilty in Federal Court, but Said He Got No Ducks.

A fine of $50 was imposed yesterday by Federal Judge Davis upon Paul G. Waddell, 36 years old, a senior student in the Rolla School of Mines at Rolla, Mo., on his plea of guilty to a charge of violation of the migratory bird act.

He was hunting ducks at a lake near Rolla, April 8, but had seen none and killed none, when he encountered Federal Game Warden Harry Barmeier, who was there because he had heard Rolla students were shooting ducks out of season.

Waddell is married and formerly was in Federal Service as rural mail carrier, then as Postmaster at Galloway, Mo. Judge Davis said to him: "You are a man of experience and should be able to restrain the impetuosity of youth. I understand the temptation to shoot ducks if ducks are around, but the migratory bird law is a good law. It ought to be enforced merely because it is the law, but people are learning more about bird life and the migratory law is being strengthened greatly by public sentiment.

"Under the peculiar circumstances and because it is probable that you have suffered enough humiliation to restrain you in the future, I will fine you $50 upon execution."

WOMEN NOW ARE DRIVING TAXICABS IN PHILADELPHIA

So Far City's Experiment Has Been Counted a Success—They Do Not Work Late at Night.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 16.—Philadelphia is making an experiment. Women now are driving some of its taxicabs. The feminine taxicab driver is only a step forward from the feminine ambulance drivers of World War, and so far, the experiment is counted a success.

The women drivers do not work late at night. Their uniforms follow the general plan of those of the Red Cross drivers during the war. One company provides its drivers with riding breeches, another provides short whipcord skirts. All the drivers wear puttees and little overseas caps.

ns and Individuals Pledged $100,000 to Cover Any Loss That Might Be Incurred.

he loss incurred by the Chamof Commerce in the Greater St. s Exposition was approximate-36,000 and guarantors were inned yesterday that they will be d upon for that amount.

Louis business firms and induals pledged $100,000 in adof the Exposition's opening ke up any deficit that might urred. As is known, rain fell many of the days during which exposition was open.

The Chamber of Commerce ed to guarantors a statement nances that showed receipts of ,785.96 and disbursements of ,961.27, leaving a balance of $3924.68. However, outstanding obligations of $55,193 remain to be adjusted. There is collectable revenue of $15,260 outstanding. From these figures the Chamber deduces $36,018.52 deficit.

The Exposition opened in Forest Park on Sept. 4 and was to have closed on Sept. 19. On that date, however, there was a deficit of about $16,000 and it was decided to run a week longer with curtailed entertainment expenses. Besides there was desire to give Ben G. Brinkman, banker and owner of Forest Park Highlands, chance to recoup $30,000 which he had paid to the promoter employed by the Chamber, John S. Berger, for a half interest in Berger's contingent share of the profits. Berger was to have received 50 per cent of any profit the Exposition made.

HONIG TO STUDY SKYSCRAPERS

Will Note Their Effects on Light and Air Conditions.

Effect of skyscrapers upon air and light conditions of American cities is to be studied by the Height Limitation Committee of the National Association of Building Owners and Managers, of which L. O. Honig, assistant manager of Boatmen's Bank Building, is chairman.

Honig, who is president of the St. Louis Building Owners' and Managers' Association, will report to the convention of the national organization in Detroit next June.

A. A. BUSCH OFFERS HOGS FOR CHOLERA EXPERIMENT WORK

Would Ship Cross-Breeds He Believes Immune to States Where Infection Is Raging.

August A. Busch yesterday offered to ship a cross-breed of hogs which he owns and believes to be immune from cholera into cholera-swept Illinois, Iowa and Nebraska for experimentation.

He telegraphed his offer to Secretary of Agriculture Jardine, State Veterinarian Laird of Illinois and the Iowa and Nebraska Colleges of Agriculture.

Busch's hogs are crossed between an imported German wild boar and domestic sows. He brought the German boars to this country several years ago and since that time his herd has several times been infected with cholera. All but the cross-breeds died. They seemed immune.

He adds that he believes his cross-breeds also provide a higher grade of pork.

CONSTRUCTION PROCEDURE IN ST. LOUIS IMPRESSES EDITOR

Ira L. Smith of Washington, editor of "The Constructor," a national contractors' publication, who spent several days here last week, sees St. Louis as following "sane construction procedure."

"In many cities the feverish desire of inhabitants to escape urban congestion has been capitalized by speculators, who erect whole subdivisions of flimsy homes with no other thought than making a profit," Smith said. "St. Louis is fortunate in having a minimum of this sort of building. It is also noticeable to the visitor familiar with construction that there has been no wild creation of 'space' in the form of superfluous office buildings and hotels. While a wide range of building activity is generally regarded as 'good business' by individual contractors and the building crafts, the conservative program in St. Louis will be of far better eventual benefit."

Smith declared the new Southwestern Bell Telephone Building here to be a "material inspiration for creativeness," and pointed out that the building construction necessary under the Olive street widening plan indicates the wide range of adaptability of present day building ingenuity. He departed for Washington Friday, having stopped here en route from the Associated General Contractors' Convention at Kansas City.

Bankers' Group to Meet Oct. 27.

PROHIBITION ZONE CHIEF DESCRIBES ENFORCEMENT JOB

O. D. Jackson Says Considerable Reliance Must Be Placed on Public Opinion to Get Results.

SMUGGLING ON GULF CUT 90 PER CENT

Co-operation of Coast Guard and Customs With Dry Law Agents Stopped Traffic, He Says.

Considerable reliance on public opinion in favor of law enforcement is becoming necessary for support of prohibition, in the belief of O. D. Jackson of New Orleans, recently appointed Federal zone supervisor of prohibition in 11 states, who was here yesterday and Friday. He told reporters yesterday that he felt public sentiment was growing in this direction.

Jackson is Federal administrator for the district comprising Louisiana, Mississippi, Alabama and Arkansas, and is supervisor for the gulf zone including that district, the Missouri-Kansas-Southern Illinois district, which has headquarters here; the Kentucky-Tennessee district and the Oklahoma-Texas district. He left here for Fort Worth, Tex.

As supervisor he is responsible for co-ordinating enforcement activities as between districts but especially as between three distinct units of the Treasury Department—the prohibition service, the Coast Guard and the customs.

Smuggling Cut Down.

"Smuggling of liquor into the gulf zone has been cut down 90 per cent in the last two years," Jackson declared, at the office of District Administrator Phillips in the Title Guaranty Building. "This is due largely to the co-operation of the Coast Guard and the customs with the prohibtion servce, but also to the treaties entered into with Great Britain and Cuba by the United States. The remaining smuggling is small in volume; it goes by way of Mexico and drifts into this country.

"Illegal diversion of liquor from bonded warehouses was the first big source of illicit supply. That has been regulated. Smuggling was the second. That has been nearly stopped. Diversion of "permit" alcohol from legitimate uses was another source. New regulations are taking care of that."

Administrator Phillips interrupted to suggest that not only whisky supplies but the "real beer" of breweries had been largely eliminated, and Jackson assented.

"The next course of supply," the supervisor continued, "is from within the United States—moonshining. That has been the case in the St. Louis district for a year, but appeared only recently in mine. It is being eliminated rapidly. To wipe out these local sources of supply, municipal and State authorities are being asked to co-operate.

Prohibition More Popular.

"It comes down to a question of asking the community for better enforcement. Probably the big task for the Federal forces now is to stop transport of liquor from one section to anther, but the Government is always going to work on the sources of supply. Moonshining is a source so we will try to knock it out of business.

"I find a growing change of sentiment toward better law observance and enforcement, and I believe prohibition is becoming more and more popular, due to the way it is being enforced now, in a gentlemanly way. We are getting away from roughneck tactics and won't tolerate them. No doubt some infringement of rights has occurred in the past."

Jackson would not hazard a guess as to how readily and in what quantity liquor may be obtained in St. Louis.

Gen. Lincoln C. Andrews, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, in charge of prohibition, is expected here Wednesday or Thursday to confer with Administrator Phillips, presumably about the discussion of adding Madison and other counties of Southern Illinois to this district to facilitate enforcement.

Parole Disapproval Upheld.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16.—The right of the Attorney-General to disapprove the actions of the Federal Parole Board was upheld today by the District of Columbia Supreme Court. Benjamin H. Covell, a prisoner at Leavenworth Penitentiary, whose parole had been recommended by the board, brought suit to compel the Attorney-General to approve the finding. The court held that Congress had vested discretionary powers in the Attorney-General and the court had no jurisdiction to review his acts in such matters.

Fire at Ambassador Theater.

Fire in the electric sign of the Ambassador Theater at an hour after beginning of the continuous show, 11:30 a. m. yesterday, started apparently from crossed wires and caused some damage to the sign.

10-MINUTE RUN FOR OVERLAND

New Trolley Service To Delmar Loop Announced By U. R.

A 10-minute schedule between Overland an the Delmar loop has been announced by United Railways, to begin tomorrow, with four and five-minute service in the rush hours.

About eight automobile owners have operated a service line from Overland to the loop for about two months, and residents of the suburb have patronized it heavily. Previous competition of a bus line, which withdrew, and many complaints by patrons of the car line, had not resulted in any marked improvement of car schedule.

Westinghouse Engineer to Speak.

L. H. Hill, transformer engineer of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Co., will speak at the October meeting of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers, St. Louis section, at 8 p. m. Wednesday at the Engineers' Club, 4359 Lindell bdulevard.

Correspondence of the Post-Dispatch.
PARIS, France, Oct. 16.

FALL and winter activities of the American colony in Paris are noted among various social organizations, the leading members of the colony having returned from seaside resorts and vacation centers.

The American Library of Paris at a recent meeting of the Board of Directors, formulated definite plans for enlarging the scope of the organization's activities and for providing a fund for endowment and building purposes.

Regular meetings at the American Chamber of Commerce of which Benjamin H. Conner, formerly of Connersville, Ky., is president, will be resumed next month. There also will be meetings of Paris Post No. 1 of the American Legion and of the Legion Auxiliary, to plan the winter program. The regular tea concerts at the American Women's club of Paris have been resumed, with Miss Catherine Purner, California soprano, entertaining the guests. The monthly club luncheons already are being held and Saturday afternoon tea dances started last week.

The winter programs at the fashionable hotels and clubs will be started soon with special tea dances and entertainments for guests. Meanwhile, the autumn aspect of the boulevards, the haze in the air and chilly winds, all indicate that the outdoor season of 1926 soon will be past.

Petring of 4548 West Pine boulevard, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. George H. Petring. The news was told at a tea Friday given by Miss Lewis' mother, for Miss Etolia Moore Simmons of New Orleans, who is the guest of her grandmother, Mrs. William G. Moore of the Buckingham Hotel.

Miss Lewis is a graduate of Mary Institute and is a senior at Washington University. Mr. Petring is an alumnus of Washington University. The date for the wedding has not been announced.

Guard of Honor For Queen From All Parts of U. S.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 16.—An honor guard of notable women from every state in the Union is being appointed by the Governors of the states to go to New York on Oct. 18 to greet the Queen Marie of Rumania in the name of their commonwealths and escort her to Washington, where she will ibe presented to President and Mrs. Coolidge at the White House.

This pretty tribute to a Queen whose name stands for world-wide philanthropy and interests in woman's movements generally was evolved by Ira Nelson Morris, former Ambassador to Sweden, who has obtained the co-operation of the Governors.

While in Washington this honor guard will be feted and entertained by the State groups in the city. The official entertainments for Queen Marie for her first visit to Washington on Oct. 19 will be confined to the dinner at the White House and the reception to follow it. When she comes again to the Capital City at the close of her tour several receptions and dinners will be given for her by officials.

Washington hostesses are hurrying home to take part in the welcome to the Queen, and it is certain that the display of jewels and gorgeous gowns at the White House dinner and reception will rarely have been equalled in the history of Washington society. The Queen and her immediate entourage will stay at the Rumanian Legation during her two days' visit to Washington. The legation has been redecorated and refurnished in her honor and the Department of State will detail a special aid to accompany her on her tour.

A pleasant yet sad duty fell to Mrs. Coolidge's lot this week when she went to Mercersburg, Pa., to attend the dedication there at the Mercersburg School of the Memorial Chapel erected in memory of the 1700 lads from the school in the World War and her young son, Calvin Coolidge Jr., who died in Washington several years ago. Mrs. Coolidge motored to Mercersburg and was accompanied on the trip by White House officials, the President being detained by official business.

Mrs. James M. Thomson, daughter of the late Speaker of the House of Representatives, Champ Clark, left Washington Wednesday for New Orleans by motor. Mrs. Thomson, who was appointed by Louisiana to represent that State in the guard of honor of prominent women from each State to welcome Queen Marie of Rumania, was obliged to decline because of previous engagements in Louisiana.

Mr. and Mrs. Silas Strawn of Chicago were guests at the White House for part of last week.

Vice President and Mrs. Dawes and Gen. John J. Pershing will be among the World War notables who will attend the Victory ball to be held in New York on Armistice night this year.

Mrs. Emily Newell Blair and Mrs. Minnie Fisher Cunningham were among the Missouri women at the forum luncheon at the National Woman's Democratic Club Wednesday. Among the other guests were Mrs. Burton K. Wheeler, wife of the Senator from Montana; Mrs. Huston Thompson, Mrs. Robert Lansing, wife of the former Secretary of State, and Mrs. Ollie James, wife of the late Senator from Kentucky.

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Fuller of St. Louis have become members of the Dinner Dance Club at Wardman Park which meets Saturday evenings.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard N. Tucker, the latter formerly Miss Bessie McKeldin, daughter of Mrs. Leigh C. Palmer, entertained at dinner at the Carlton Hotel this week. They had 20 guests whom they took to the theater and to dance afterwards.

Mrs. Howard L. Hodgkins and Mrs. William Wolff Smith are among the women who took tables for the card party Saturday for the open forum of discussion of current topics.

Capt. and Mrs. Edward Dorn entertained informally at tea last Sunday.

Mrs. Howard L. Hodgkins will be among those who will receive at the reception to be given by the District of Columbia Daughters of the American Revolution in honor of the president-general, Mrs. Alfred Brosseau, this week. Mrs. Hodgkins is a past national officer and a past State regent.

The Speaker of the House and Mrs. Nicholas Longworth, who are now in Cincinnati, will come to Washington early in November for the season. Baby Paulina Longworth, their only child, will be brought here in advance of their coming by a nursery governess for several days, as Mrs. Longworth plans a shopping trip in New York before settling down in Washington for the season.

Mrs. John B. Henderson entertained at luncheon at Boundary Castle on Tuesday, when her guests included members of the diplomatic corps. Mrs. Henderson is planning to start her Monday morning dancing classes, which she gives each season for her friends in the ballroom of her home. These dances are very much enjoyed by Washington society, although Mrs. Henderson does not allow any of the so-called jazz steps. She dances as long as any of her guests, in spite of her advanced age.

Kotalko Did It

Mary H. Little's hair flourished like a weed—was beautiful. Yet for years her head, as she describes it, was as bare and bald as the back of my hand.

When Mrs. Little's hair began to fall, she tried to stop it by using various shampoos, oils and lotions. Yet her hair continued to come out until she had lost all. She persevered, continued trying to get new hair. But nourished a special desire but her aims. Her only hope seemed to be in having a wig.

Lastly she learned about KOTALKO, and used it. Watching to how to use this new aid in developing Particularly she applied KOTALKO, and the hair continued to grow. It became long, strong and silklike. The picture above at first her photograph.

Cornered!

Try your wits on a few questions the children ask!

Why does a ball bounce?
Why do the leaves change color?
What is the sun made of?
Why has water no taste?
Why is yawning catching?

ARE these questions really easy? Could you answer them correctly and clearly, so that a child would understand? Or, if you were cornered, would you hesitate and fumble and say in rueful despair, "Oh, don't ask foolish questions!"

The child who is made to feel that his questions are trival or unimportant will presently stop asking, and will lose interest in learning.

In more than a million homes

The Book of Knowledge is the children's rich mine of information on all the topics that interest them. They find each question answered clearly, vividly. Again and again the child's curiosity pushes open the door to new fields of knowledge, and he is guided step by step, from the simplest ideas and facts to the most profound truths.

The BOOK OF KNOWLEDGE

based on questions asked by children every day

Here is all the really essential knowledge of the world—Nature with the animals, birds, fishes, insects, trees and flowers; the history, manners and customs of a hundred different countries; the worlds in the skies and the teeming life of the waters; science; invention; manufactures; literature; art; things to make and do; games and playtime activities. Children read the Book of Knowledge for hours at a time, completely absorbed. Every page teaches them something they want to know.

There are fifteen thousand striking educational pictures in gravure, in the true colors of nature and in halftone—every picture a short cut to a fact. The lessons they teach live, clear and distinct, in the memory.

Helps school work

Children who have the Book of Knowledge stand high in their grades at school. They learn to think for themselves, and give clear and intelligent answers in class. They have made a long start in the race for knowledge.

By special arrangement with the publishers the new 1926 edition of the Book of Knowledge will be distributed in St. Louis only through the Stix, Baer & Fuller Co. and the authorized representatives of the publishers.

The Women's South Side Study Council held its monthly meeting at Barr Branch Library, Jefferson and Lafayette avenues, Tuesday.

The club at this meeting discussed the manner in which they would take up the study of "American Women" for the new club year. The next meeting will be held at the Barr Branch Library Nov. 9.

A tea for the young people of the Second Presbyterian Church, Taylor avenue and Westminster place, inaugurating the season, will be given this afternoon at 6:15 o'clock. The young people's society is to have a meeting at 7 p. m., at which will be started a series of lantern slides in missions, showing "The World's Fellowship." Miss Helen Westcott will tell the story.

The Twentieth Century Art Club opened its season Oct. 11 at the Jefferson Memorial. The program "Art and Artists of Florence," indicated the subject of the year's study, a continuation of last year's work. The president, Mrs. W. M. Whelpley, presided. Miss Hazel Howe, recording secretary, gave a report of the last meeting of the club, May 24, the annual play day, which was held at the home of Mrs. S. C. McCormack of Sulphur Springs, Mo. Mrs. McClinton P. Headley read a report of the benefit bridge party given by the club at the country home of Mrs. C. M. Champ in June. The proceeds were used to help defray the expenses of furnishing the library in the new St. Louis School of Fine Arts.

During the meeting the members paid tribute to the memory of two members, Mrs. E. S. Morall and Mrs. Edgar Beach, who died during the summer. Mrs. Walter L. Michener was the leader of the program and read a paper on "The Highways and Byways of Florence." Mrs. B. R. Brown gave a sketch of the life and work of the artist, Edwin Howland Blashfield. Tea was served in the library. Mrs. Ivan Osborne presided at the tea table and was assisted by the following members of the Hospitality Committee: Mrs. Mary E. Gravely, Mrs. F. Huntington Smith and Mrs. Frank B. Coleman. The next meeting of the club will be held Oct. 25, when Mrs. William Z. H. Hughes will be the leader.

Chapter C. K. of P. E. O. held the first meeting of the year Wednesday at the home of Mrs. E. C. Teuscher of 435 California avenue, Webster Groves. The subject for study this year will be "Modern Europe." Mrs. R. H. Schuett read a paper on "The New Map of Europe." Plans were discussed for the State convention, which is to be held in St. Louis in May. The next meeting of the chapter will be Oct. 27, at the home of Mrs. W. P. Evans, at Jefferson Barracks.

Chapter E. B., P. E. O., held its first regular meeting of the season, Oct. 8, at the home of Mrs. H. B. Ressler, 200 Jefferson road, Webster Groves. After a luncheon a surprise shower was given for Mrs. L. L. Scott of Berry road, who is preparing to move into her new home. The chapter will meet Oct. 22 with Mrs. O. E. SULTAN'S WIDOWS QUIT EXILE

Three Live Near Yildiz Palace, Constantinople, Once Their Home.

By the Associated Press.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Oct. 16.—Three widows of Sultan Mohammed VI have returned from exile to make their home in a small house of the old quarter overlooking Yildiz Palace, of which they were once the mistresses.

The fourth widow, daughter of a former palace gardener, and said to be the youngest and prettiest of the group, does not accompany the others on their return, preferring to enjoy European freedom. The widows fled from Turkey three years ago, after the Sultan's dethronement, but hardship and penury drove them to petition the new Turkish Government for permission to return, which was recently granted. They are remaining in close seclusion.

A Short Life, but Not Very Merry

Bootlegging may be a very profitable occupation if it does not seem to be a very healthful one. Too many sudden casualties to make it attractive to a peaceful person.

Good health is not a matter of chance. You have to live up to the rules for good health as with any other game if you want proper results. One of the first rules is to have your eyes tested at regular intervals.

My Scientific System of Eye Testing has been uniformly successful for over 25 years. My Glasses are now worn by over 30,000 persons. Have me test your eyes this week. I will guarantee you complete satisfaction.

15 YEARS ARE ADDED TO ROBBER'S SENTENCE

P. M. Jornigan, Under 10-Year Penalty, Pleads Guilty of Three More Charges.

After pleading guilty of first degree robbery and being sentenced to 10 years in the penitentiary by a jury in Circuit Judge Wurdeman's court at Clayton Sept. 30, Peter M. Jornigan, 22 years old, pleaded guilty yesterday to three other charges in connection with the same case and was sentenced to five years on each, the three five years terms to run concurrently.

The charges grew out of the robbery May 21 of the home of Thomas F. Imbs of Pine Lawn. In the first Jornigan was charged with robbing Imbs of $150 in cash, a $10 watch and other articles valued at $90. His pleas of guilty yesterday were to robbery of Mrs. Marion Imbs of a $500 diamond bracelet and $125 diamond ring, burglary and assault with intent to kill, the latter charge arising out of the fact that Imbs was knocked down with a "billy" wielded by the robber. An additional charge of carrying concealed weapons was dismissed.

After the robbery Imbs wrote a letter to a St. Louis newspaper severely criticising law enforcement and later moved from the county. However, he failed to identify Jornigan when the latter was arrested June 10, and the prisoner was held upon an identification by Mrs. Imbs. Jornigan was arrested with a man who, after being made to remove sun glasses, was recognized by Deputy Sheriff Kick as Robert Kleeson, an escaped convict.

POLICE PENSION DRIVE BAND CONCERT TODAY

Department Musicians to Play Near Municipal Theater Entrance, Starting at 3 P. M.

A parade and concert this afternoon by the police band and drill team will launch an intensive campaign in St. Louis for the proposed constitutional amendment, Proposition No. 2, on the ballot for Nov. 2, which would make possible the establishing of a police pension system.

The band and drill team will march from the Lindell-Kingshighway entrance of Forest Park to the Nathan Frank bandstand, near the Municipal Theater entrance. The concert will begin at 3 o'clock.

A one-reel moving picture, sponsored by the Police Board, speakers, the radio, ward workers and other means will be used to inform voters the purpose of the amendment. Business houses have offered to send out literature to their mailing lists. The Chamber of Commerce and other organizations will co-operate and both the Republican and Democratic parties have indorsed the amendment.

Women will work for the proposition at each polling place, said Mrs. J. Scott Porter, chairman of the woman's division of the Citizens' Committee. She said about 1000 already had volunteered to help get out the vote, but that at least 1000 more were needed to cover every precinct systematically. Everett Paul Griffin is chairman of the Speakers' Committee.

Committees have been formed in many counties in a systematic campaign which has been under way in the State for several weeks. Although cities only are affected by the proposition, rural and metropolitan voters alike will pass on it. The only difficulty anticipated outside the cities is getting voters not to overlook Proposition No. 2 on the ballot.

Wed Frances Samuel, St. Louis Belle of That Time, in 1889; Active Civic Worker.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, Oct. 16.—John A. Spoor, 81 years old, a Chicago capitalist, and active in many civic and philanthropic enterprises, is dead at his home here.

Born in Freehold, N. Y., he was educated in Hudson River Institute at Claverack, N. Y. In 1886 he came to Chicago, and three years later married Miss Frances Samuel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Webster Marshall Samuel, and a St. Louis belle of that period.

HARRY TURNER AND ALICE MARTIN GIVE BOND

Editor and Publisher Charged With Mailing Obscene Matter; Were Held Overnight.

Harry Turner, editor, and Miss Alice Martin, publisher and business manager of "Much Ado," an occasional publication, were released from the city jail yesterday at 11 a. m. under $5000 bond each to answer a charge before United States Commissioner Atkins on Oct. 25 of sending obscene matter through the mails. They were sent to jail Friday at 5 p. m.

The charge was based upon an article in the current issue of "Much Ado." It was a reprint of an article on the Aimee Semple McPherson case in Los Angeles for which a San Diego newspaper was suppressed and its editor arrested. Turner added comment of his own under his signature. Miss Martin formerly was a dancing teacher.

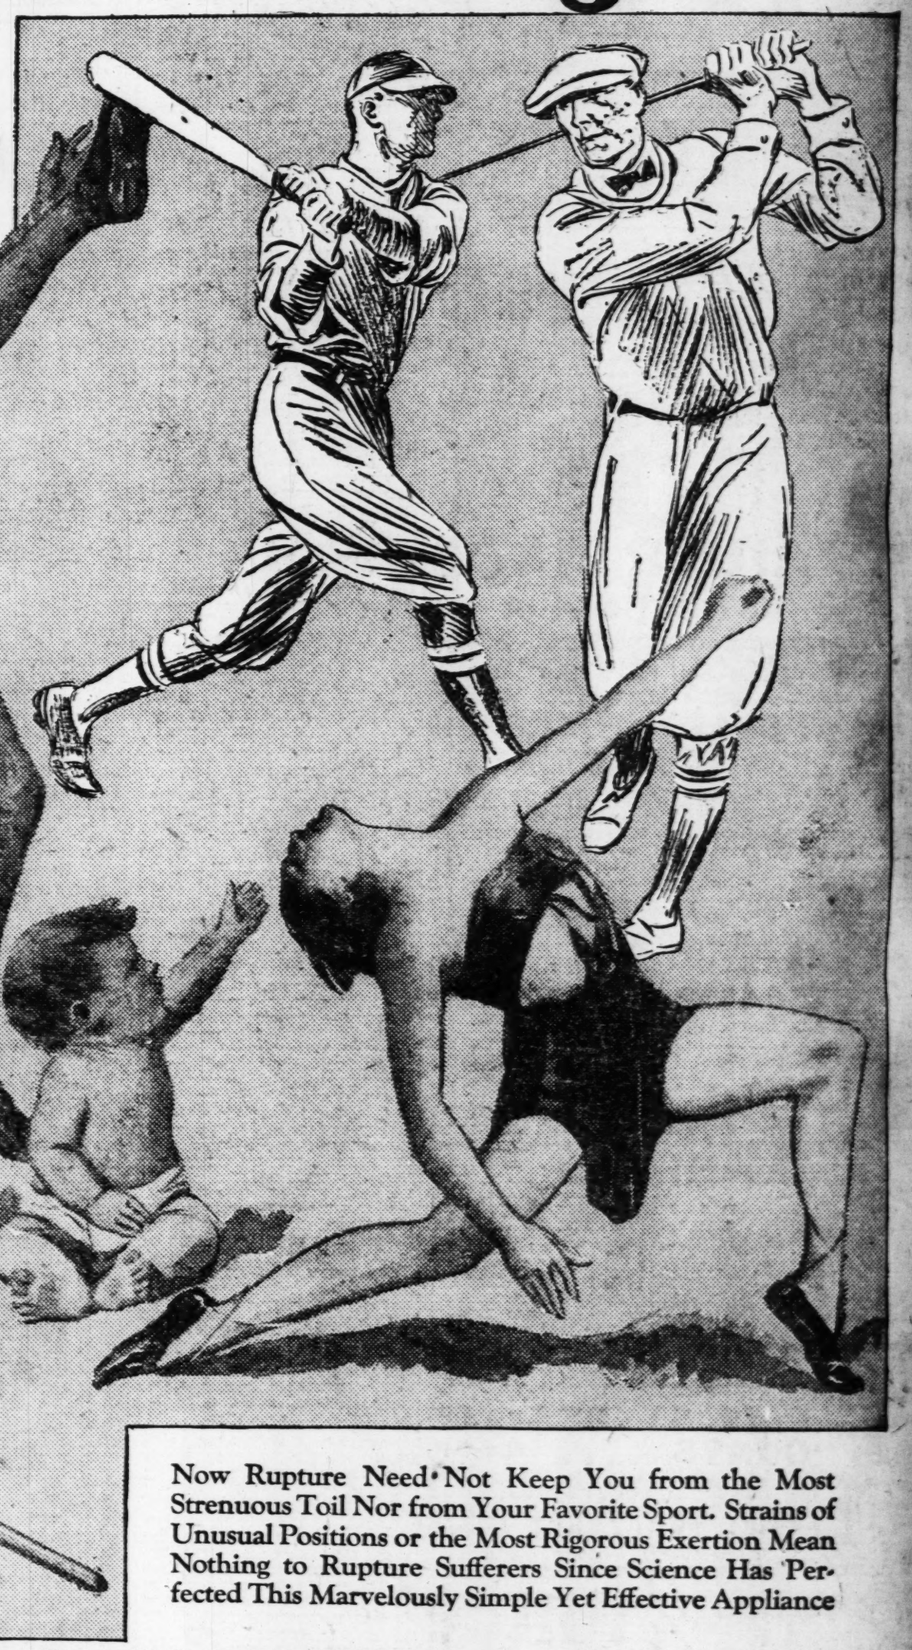
Rupture Quickly Banished

Without Operation Pain or Danger

Try this New Way FREE!



Now Rupture Need Not Keep You from the Most Strenuous Toil Nor from Your Favorite Sport. Strains of Unusual Positions or the Most Rigorous Exertion Mean Nothing to Rupture Sufferers Since Science Has Perfected This Marvelously Simple Yet Effective Appliance

AT LAST you can rid yourself of Rupture safely — quickly — SURELY! Science has shown the way—has definitely proved it in literally thousands of cases. You can, if you choose, enjoy all the invigorating sports you see pictured above—or if your work calls for vigorous activity or strain, you need never fear that your rupture will ever again bother you to the slightest extent. It can be safely held in place under any or all forms of activity. What is more it can be healed—you can throw away your truss FOREVER!

Henceforth, in all likelihood, new generations will look upon Rupture as a mere minor ailment—at its worst, but temporary. For Rupture HAS been conquered—its pain, and grave possibilities eliminated by an appliance, light, safe, and sanitary, which not only comfortably and surely retains the rupture—but assists nature in completely healing it. Now, no matter how severe, or long standing, your case may be, you can forget your Rupture troubles—resume your normal physical activities—and soon be well and sound once more.

As you read further, you will be convinced by actual letters published from former sufferers, who have used this wonderful contrivance, that this unique invention does all that is claimed for it here. It is for you now to decide whether or not you want to be burdened by the great physical handicap of rupture—whether or not you can ever be content with the temporary relief afforded by an old-style, cumbersome truss which offers no hope of permanent benefits. Surely the logical answer must be that this new, safe, harmless appliance which untold thousands have used so successfully is worth at least a trial.

Just What Is Rupture?

In order that you may perfectly understand the function of the new Brooks Appliance, it is essential that you also clearly grasp the nature of Rupture, or Hernia, as it is termed in medical circles. Rupture is really a breach or tear in the wall of the abdomen. It is usually caused by strain or overexertion and results in a portion of the intestine or bowel protruding through the opening.

With the many victims of rupture in its lightest form, there are days—sometimes weeks—when they will feel only occasional discomfort. Then there are thousands who fear to make the slightest unusual motion—a sudden turning, twisting or bending—because of the frightful pain that is sure to follow. But whether you have a slight rupture or a severe one, your physician will tell you that it is potentially dangerous. Slight ruptures, unless immediately guarded and remedied, almost invariably become worse; while with severe ruptures, besides the terrific pain and physical handicap, there is the constant grave danger of intestinal strangulation which often demands emergency measures on the part of the skilled surgeon.

Authorities Recognize Danger

Indeed rupture should never be lightly regarded. The insurance companies fully realize its hazards. One of the questions asked of the applicant for a policy is whether or not he is ruptured, and unless some corrective measures are taken, he is not considered a first class risk.

Physicians long since admitted the futility of medicines in healing a tear beneath the surface of the skin, or in helping to retain the protruding intestine. They accepted the old-style truss because, in spite of its cumbersome, unhygienic qualities, it was nevertheless a step in the right direction. But at best, the old-style truss was a mere groping which accomplished one purpose, but often aggravated the very condition it was designed to relieve. And no hope of ultimate permanent relief could be entertained by the sufferer.

A New Idea Evolved

In the late '80's, C. E. Brooks, a resident of Marshall, Michigan, and himself a victim of rupture, determined to find relief that he could not hope to attain by means of the types of trusses then recommended. Mr. Brooks was not a physician but he was a well educated man with a love for scientific problems. He studied his own case, observed it closely and evolved the theory that any appliance, to be truly beneficial, must prove corrective while affording relief.

With his knowledge that surgery depended upon the recuperative powers of human tissues through proper circulation of the blood, he sought to accomplish the same results by external means. The few typical expressions; but read them and judge for yourself.

J. M. Oakley, of East Chicago, Ind., states: "Never felt better in my life and owe it all to the Brooks Appliance. I can't praise it too highly, for I can lift almost anything and work twelve hours daily. In fact, haven't been wearing it for three months for I feel no sign of the trouble."

From Howard Hilyer, Bobcaygeon, Ont., Can., comes this happy communication: "About six years ago, I started wearing your Brooks Appliance. Continued with it for two years and then laid it away. In the last four years, I have never been troubled and my work is mighty rough and heavy."

A railroad yard brakeman, E. W. Morgan, of Newport News, Va., says: "I had a bad rupture and was operated on three times but every time my trouble came back. Spent a lot of money on trusses but nothing did me any good until I tried your Brooks Appliance. Now I am glad to say the trouble is healed. In spite of the hard work of setting brakes, running and jumping, I don't even have to wear it any more."

No longer wearing his Brooks Appliance these last few months, John W. Frederick, of Montreal, Mo., writes: "I believe my rupture is entirely healed. Never feel any more pain or swelling so stopped using it. Am certainly glad I got your appliance for I feel fine now."

Children Quickly Healed

Happy to see the complete recovery of his child who was ruptured in infancy, C. J. Akers, of Lilly Brook, Va., writes: "When my son was a baby, I was advised to have him operated on for rupture, but I thought him too young. Then I saw your advertisement and sent for a Brooks Appliance. The little fellow is now six years old and perfectly sound and well. He does not have to wear it any more."

The gratitude of another fond parent is shown in this note from Mrs. J. S. Williams, writing from Bonny Brook Farm, Lonira, Alberta, Can.: "I wish to tell you that your appliance healed my little boy's rupture. He wore it three years and has been without it for two years. We never see any signs of its returning and certainly want to recommend the Brooks Appliance to anyone afflicted with this painful trouble."

Instantly a Success

The result of Mr. Brooks' labors fulfilled his every expectation. He healed his own rupture and then immediately set out to give the world the benefit of his accomplishment. The Brooks Appliance eliminated at once the rigid steel spring and hard, unyielding pads. Soft, washable materials were substituted to encircle the body and support the light oval cushion that rests gently over the rupture.

Since Mr. Brooks originally presented his marvelous invention to the world—a great enterprise has arisen specializing in the production of his appliance. Its instantaneous success only made the inventor more keen to go farther. He organized a research laboratory and worked constantly to improve and perfect his appliance until today its merits are held in such world-wide favor that physicians everywhere highly recommend it to ruptured patients.

Thousands Tell of Benefits

It is little short of amazing how every mail now brings scores of letters expressing satisfaction and gratitude for the immediate relief and ultimate healing the Brooks Appliance achieves for sufferers. Limited space permits our publishing only a

...r. Thompson was the last of 10 children, five boys and five girls. He was born June 20, 1843, in the town of Virginia, Cass County, Illinois. His father, Nathaniel B. Thompson, conducted a general store there for 35 years, moving to St. Louis a few years before his death in 1882, at the age of 71.

William was the eldest son, and a legal career was his ambition. His early education at Virginia was supplemented at a school in Springfield, his school mates including Robert T. Lincoln an dothers who later became notable. Then he attended the law school of the University of Michigan at Ann Arbor. Following his graduation and admission to the bar in his early 20's, he came to St. Louis.

Advancement came slow with him, as with many other young lawyers, but gradually he built up a large practice and was connected with considerable important litigation. He specialized in corporation law.

In later years he took into partnership his son, Ford W. Thompson. Their office is in the Merchants-Laclede Building. One of the cases in which they worked together was that in which they represented stockholders of the Missouri Edison Co. who sued the Union Electric Light and Power Co., alleging their interests were not protected in the merger of the two companies. The litigation lasted nine years, with the stockholders obtaining $607,026, and the Thompsons a fee of $75,723.

Mr. Thompson was elected State Senator from St. Louis in 1875, making his campaign as a Democrat in a district normally Republican. He served as chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee.

In 1869 he married Miss Camilla Stiles, who survives him. Also surviving are two daughters, Misses Grace and Ethel Thompson, and two sons, Ford W. and Wirt L. Thompson, an investment banker of Philadelphia.

ROBBERS BEAT VICTIM WHEN COMPANION CALLS FOR HELP

Martin Rivera, 27 years old, 4064 McPherson avenue, a Mexican, suffered a skull injury and lacerations of the scalp early yesterday, when he and a companion, Manuel Cervantes, of the same address, resisted three Negroes who attempted to hold them up in front of 2935 Olive street. When Cervantes called for help, one of the Negroes struck Rivera on the head with a revolver, knocking him unconscious. The robber then took $5 from the pockets of the prostrate man and the trio fled.

William Brush of 4825 Fountain avenue had just closed the gasoline filling station of which he is night manager, at Pine boulevard and Beaumont street, at 12:30 a. m., and was starting home, when he was set upon by two men he had seen waiting near the place in a Ford automobile. They robbed him of $70, of which, he said, $40 was his own money.

When Lewis Morrowe of 5601 Botanical avenue arrived for business at the vegetable market at Laclede avenue and Sarah street, at 3:30 o'clock, he found two robbers waiting for him. He was slugged and robbed of $35, the robbers escaping.

MRS. STOCKSTROM KILLED BY SKIDDING CAR, DRIVER SAYS

Douglas I. McKay, Charged With Manslaughter and Driving When Drunk, Testifies in Own Defense

DENIES TOUCHING LIQUOR SINCE 1917

Prosecution Produces 11 Witnesses, Several of Whom Say He Appeared to Have Been Drinking.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

BARNSTABLE, Mass., Oct. 16.—When the Commonwealth closed its case yesterday against Douglas I. McKay, former New York City Deputy Police Commissioner, on trial before a jury for manslaughter, dangerous driving, and operating his automobile while under the influence of liquor, McKay took the stand and denied having touched liquor since 1917, blaming the fatal accident in which he figured to wet roads, skidding and the other driver.

Patrolman McLoughlin, who arrested McKay following the accident in which Mrs. Mary Stockstrom, wealthy St. Louis woman, was killed, testified:

"I smelled liquor on his breath and asked him if he had been drinking. He said no. Later I asked him again and he replied: 'Who the hell cares?' Then he began to laugh. I said, 'This is serious; someone is killed.' He again said: 'Who the hell cares?' His eyes were bloodshot and hazy, his speech thick and silly."

Liquor Found in Car.

Patrolman Lavoie, Dr. J. H. Higgins, first physician at the accident, Edward Maguire and Jeremiah O'Leary, and Mrs. Margaret Reardon all testified that they smelled liquor on McKay's breath. O'Lear yand Maguire, Boston detectives, who rode in an automobile passed by McKay, asserted that he bore down on them at a "terrific speed" and narrowly escaped striking their car. They estimated his speed at 40 or 50 miles an hour.

Eleven witnesses testified against McKay. Sheriff Ames declared that Naumes, chauffeur of the second automobile, asked to have himself and McKay arrested. He also testified that he found a sealed bottle of liquor in McKay's car. Naumes said that McKay bore down on him on the wrong side of the road and to escape a head-on collision he turned to the left, where the accident occurred.

Denies Being Drunk.

McKay took the stand after Dr. William Kenney had testified he smelled no liquor on the former Police Commissioner's breath. McKay said he was 48, a West Point graduate, had served as Lieutenant in the army, resigned, and reentered the service during the war. He said he had not touched liquor since 1917, and knew nothing of the liquor found in his automobile.

"I was driving about 25 miles an hour, passed another car and skidded as I tried to turn back. As I swerved the oncoming car cut across the highway and the collision came," McKay testified. He denied saying "Who the hell cares," or that he asked another witness if he were a Mason. Eleven witnesses were sworn for the defense, which will be resumed today.

Mrs. Stockstrom, who was the wife of Arthur Stockstrom of 6425 Wydown boulevard, Clayton, assistant secretary of the American Stove Co., was killed the night of Sept. 6, near Mashpee, Mass.

EARL OF STRATHMORE INCORPORATES HIS ESTATE

Converts Holdings Into Limited Company to Evade Taxes and Death Dues in England.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Oct. 16.—The Earl of Strathmore, father of the Duchess of York, like the Duke of Devonshire and other great landed peers, is converting his vast estates into a limited liability company so as to be able to deduct the expenses of carrying the estate from his income tax and to avoid the payment of death dues.

The property of the Duke includes the famous haunted Glamis Castle in Scotland, which occupies the site where by legend Macbeth murdered Duncan, King of Scotland. The Prince of Wales recently visited Glamis Castle and is said to have been disappointed because the ghosts failed to materialize for him.

Bishops' Residences Designated.

By the Associated Press.

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa., Oct. 16.—Appointment of the residences of the six Evangelical Bishops who were elected for service in America, was made by the general conference of the Evangelical Church here today. It was agreed that the five Bishops re-elected should retain their present residences, while Dr. John S. Stamm, newly elected, will reside in Kansas City.

AUTO ENGINEERS SEEKING WAYS TO SHORTEN ENGINE

Progress Toward Cars of High Power but Short Wheelbase Blocked by Motor Size.

By WILLIAM ULLMAN.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16.—When smaller engines are built, cars generally will be shorter, in the opinion of some leaders in the industry. The American car buyer demands comfort and plenty of room, power and flexibility, as well as gasoline economy. He also would like to be able to use his car more extensively for shopping, business and theater-going. This is he would like a car of short wheelbase.

Short Wheelbase Progress.

Most American automobile manufacturers came to the end of progress in short wheelbases two years ago. The number of manufacturers who lengthened their wheelbases for 1926 models was surprisingly large. For 1927, long wheelbases are to be the rule. One manufacturer is distributing steel running to 146½ inches, the largest passenger car in America.

What is the meaning of the lengthening of wheelbase at a time when there is so much discussion about European-type cars .. midgets?

An analysis of the short cars coming on the market for the 1927 season reveals that they carry the smaller, less powerful, high-power plants. The significant fact that there is no reduction in wheelbase for high-powered cars.

Some Phases of Problem.

The American motorist wants power, comfort and ease in parking. Only a few cars at present approximate this ideal on all three points.

The main trouble appears to be with the engines. Eight cylinders take up too much room for a short wheelbase. Six require just enough extra room to preclude the possibility of bringing the wheelbase down to 100 inches or less without sacrificing leg room. Four-cylinder power plants come nearest to providing the space for driver and passenger needed with short car.

Make the engine shorter but keep it powerful, and wheelbase can be reduced without sacrifice of comfort. That is the guiding thought in automobile design today on this side of the Atlantic. It is considered regrettable that a straight eight should require much hood space. In several makes of cars, the hood is now one third or more of the length of the car. The V-eights would allow less hood length; but require much greater width that designers are afraid a V-eight short could look ungainly.

Experiments are going forward with a view to developing the two-cycle engine. This type one is quite common.

A two-cycle engine provides a push on each piston each time it goes down, which is twice as often as pistons are pushed (powered) in present-day four-cycle design. It is not generally known that the present revival of interest in the two-cycle engine represents an effort to provide eight-cylinder space.

A four that could do the work of an eight would be the answer to the present dilemma in the industry which is keeping manufacturers after manufacturer floundering around from shorter to longer cars and vice versa.

Progress Toward Cars of High Power but Shorter Wheelbase Blocked by Motor Size.

By WILLIAM ULLMAN.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16.—When smaller engines are built, cars generally will be shorter, in the opinion of some leaders in the industry. The American car buyer demands comfort and plenty of leg room, power and flexibility, as well as gasoline economy. He also would like to be able to use his car more extensively for shopping, business and theater-going. For this he would like a car of short wheelbase.

Short Wheelbase Progress.

Most American automobile designers came to the end of progress in short wheelbases two years ago. The number of manufacturers who lengthened their wheelbases for 1926 models was surprisingly large. For 1927, long wheelbases are to be the rule. One manufacturer is distributing a model running to 146½ inches, the longest passenger car in America. What is the meaning of this lengthening of wheelbase at a time when there is so much discussion about European-type cars classed as midgets?

An analysis of the short cars now coming on the market for the 1927 season reveals that they carry the smaller, less powerful, lighter power plants. The significant fact is that there is no reduction in wheelbase for high-powered cars.

Some Phases of Problem.

The American motorist wants power, comfort and ease in parking. Only a few cars at present approximate this ideal on all three counts.

The main trouble appears to be with the engines. Eight cylinders take up too much room for a short wheelbase. Six require just enough extra room to preclude the possibility of bringing the wheelbase down to 100 inches or less without sacrificing leg room. Four-cylinder power plants come nearest to providing the space for driver and passenger needed with short cars. Make the engine shorter but keep it powerful, and wheelbase can be reduced without sacrifice of comfort. That is the guiding thought in automobile design today on this side of the Atlantic.

It is considered regrettable that the straight eight should require so much hood space. In several makes of cars, the hood is now one-third or more of the length of the car. The V-eights would allow for less hood length; but require much greater width that designers are afraid a V-eight short car would look ungainly.

Experiments are going forward with a view to developing the two-cycle engine. This type once was quite common.

A two-cycle engine provides a push on each piston each time it goes down, which is twice as often as pistons are pushed (powered) in present-day four-cycle design. It is not generally known that the present revival of interest in the two-cycle engine represents an effort to provide eight-cylinder grace.

A four that could do the work of an eight would be the answer to the present dilemma in the industry which is keeping manufacturer after manufacturer floundering around from shorter to longer cars and vice versa.

An Interesting Motor Trip to Northwestern Illinois

A TOUR that takes the motorist to a picturesque country which relatively few have seen has its climax in the boldly rolling landscape of Northwestern Illinois, a region of high hills, deep glens, broad views to distant river bluffs, and any number of sweeping vistas over the Mississippi River and its islands. Its historical interest centers chiefly in Galena, where Gen. Grant resided before and after the Civil War, and where he was given a home that is preserved as a memorial.

Along the Illinois River.

The route crosses the McKinley Bridge and follows Illinois highway No. 4 to Springfield, then No. 24 to Peoria, and No. 29 north from Peoria. For miles out of Peoria the road runs along the Illinois River, at times almost on its bank, at others turning inland among low hills. For some miles the river is really a broad lake, with numerous summer cottages on its shore. The lake is two miles or so wide much of the way, and often one has a 10-mile vista of shimmering water, ruffled into wavelets by every passing breeze. In places, its blue is oddly streaked and patched with the yellow and yellowish green and rusty red brown of weeds growing thickly on the shallows.

For some distance the road presently traverses a coal and clay brick mining country, with varicolored dumps and occasionally one smouldering with evil sulphurous smell that taints the whole countryside.

In time one comes to the junction of highways No. 7 and No. 29, and presently has a splendid view from the summit of a long grade down over the river valley. Following No. 7 to La Salle, one swings off on No. 2 and follows it to Dixon, whence No. 26 is followed to Freeport. The road traverses pretty prairie country, with spacious views as one nears Freeport.

Miles of Splendid Views.

Westward out of Freeport, one follows No. 5 through a country that gradually becomes more and more rolling, with more patches of woods and broken land dropping down into steeper and steeper ravines. Climbing the grade out of Stockton, one starts almost immediately down another long slope with splendid views off to the faraway ridges along the Mississippi River. Then come several miles of "roller coaster" road with more fine views—at sunset, a golden red glory behind the dim blue wonder of the hills.

Terrapon Ridge, and another gorgeous view to the right across woods and variegated fields to more dim blue ridges. Now the road runs along the top of a narrow ridge from which is view after view. Then down a long grade into Elizabeth. Up a two-mile grade and presently a winding, but finely engineered, ridge highway. Grade after grade, curve after curve, view succeeding view, each seeming finer than the one just enjoyed. Down into a gulch that, for Illinois, is quite a canyon, then seemingly miles of climbing to the top of another ridge and a sweeping view down over Galena, into which the road descends for nearly a mile and a half over a road that has plenty of mean, rough spots.

Along Mississippi River Banks

One can return over the same route to La Salle, then follow No. 7 to Starved Rock park, a picturesque public preserve with high bluffs, and a level place for a resort, along the Illinois river. Here is a pretty and well appointed public motor camp. From Starved Rock, one can motor back to La Salle, then home via Peoria, or can drop south from La Salle on No. 2 to Bloomington, then home over No. 4.

Or, if the weather has been dry for a day or two, it will pay one to take the Savanna-Rock Island-Burlington route back. About two and eight tenths miles out of Galena, go right with brick school house ahead, then up a grade with a fine view back over the town and still finer views to south and west. The road is dirt, gravel and chat, at times good, at others only fair. There are numerous beautiful stretches through valleys and up on the ridges.

Nearing Savanna, one runs under towering bluffs, some of them frowning down in 200-foot precipices, and presently has a lovely view of the Mississippi and its islands. Beyond Savanna, the route is not so interesting for some miles, and some of the road is sandy, though not difficult. From Albany south, however, the road is generally very fair to excellent oiled macadam, and runs mostly along the river bank or within sight of the river for many miles to Moline and Rock Island, with many pretty islands, ranging in size from sand spits big enough to dance a Highland fling on to heavily wooded islands of many acres.

Picnicking spots are numerous on the river bank, and there are quite a number of places where one could pitch a camp. At the river towns, of course, one can hire guides and boats for fishing. Incidentally, one of the most enjoyable experiences one can have in this part of the country is to "float" down the river from Galena to Savanna.

Alternative Routes Home.

From Moline, one can run down through Illinois, following No. 7 to its junction with No. 29 and then No. 29 to Peoria, No. 24 to Springfield and No. 4 to St. Louis.

Or he can go to Rock Island, cross the river to Davenport, Ia., and go south along the Iowa side of the river following No. 20, most of the way near or in sight of the river, to Muscatine, then No. 20 across prairie country to Burlington, then continue south along the river on No. 20 via Ft. Madison to Keokuk and its gigantic dam and power plant, and south on Missouri highway No. 9 through Hannibal, Louisiana and Troy to Federal highway No. 40 and then via St. Charles to St. Louis. There is considerable dirt road south of Burlington on this route.

The trip through Illinois both ways is between 800 and 850 miles, depending on how one varies his route. Going south from Galena through Savanna, Davenport and then south on the west bank of the river, the distance will be around 900 miles. It can be made in three days, and is a fine four or five day trip.

Fine for Duck Hunters.

It is well worth while at any time of the year, but especially at this season when the autumn coloring is on the foliage. If a man wants to try his hand at duck shooting, Galena is ideal for headquarters, for the sloughs and islands within a few miles, that are easily accessible, give every chance for sport, especially when the season has been a rainy one and sloughs and ponds are overflowing.

If the duck hunter wishes to take his family with him on a trip of this sort, they can spend their days in Galena with much to interest and amuse them. The city is built along the narrow valley and on the bluffs encircling it, the highest point being 210 feet above the river. From the business section of the city one reaches the residences on the bluffs by long flights of steps from terrace to terrace, and several trips daily up and down the several hundred steps will furnish about all the exercise the average person requires.

Galena Grant's Old Home.

Galena is one of the old towns in Northwestern Illinois, and in the early days was larger and much more important than Chicago. It is on the Galena River (in early days called Fever River), about four miles above its junction with the Mississippi. The first white explorer, Le Seuer, reported rich lead mines in the vicinity as early as 1700. These mines were worked by the Indians for years, most of the labor being done by the squaws. In 1820, the first white settler in the present city of Galena arrived. He was a Frenchman, and for some years the place was known as Frenchman's Point, or La Pointe. A number of American settlers arrived soon afterward and a trading post was established. Records show that Galena was formally laid off and organized in 1826. Many houses still standing date back to those days.

Galena is very proud, not only of her early history, but of her many prominent sons, among them U. S. Grant, for whom the city park is named and where a fine monument of the Civil War general has been erected. There are plenty of old residents whose delight is to direct the visitor to points of interest, and to tell tales of the past, many of them unique and interesting.

Nor is local pride centered entirely on the past. The residents are proud of Galena today, and some of the older men insist that the county (Jo Daviess), of which Galena is the county seat, is not only the best county in Illinois, but the best in the United States, that in addition to its enormous mineral deposits it is wonderful as a farming section, where anything grows that can be raised at that latitude, and where for 50 years there has never been a total crop failure, no matter what other sections have suffered from climatic conditions.

waste of hood space as an important point in considering the practical, short wheelbase car. If engines were placed ahead of the front axle, instead of several inches behind it, the passenger compartment could be put that much nearer the front of the car and the entire vehicle could be shortened.

Another criticism concerns the fan. Quite a bit of space must be allowed between radiator, fan and engine block in the conventional car, it is pointed out. By eliminating this space the hood could be made shorter. Steam cooling, or a better system of cooling than now is found on cars, is expected to enable some headway in this direction.

Rotary Engine May Be Developed.

Inventors rapidly are coming to the belief that the principle of piston motion as a basis of power is wrong. A piston must stop dead and reverse its direction of travel twice with every revolution of the crankshaft. At a crankshaft speed of 3000 r. p. m. each piston is stopped and started 6000 times a minute.

Rotary motion, many declare, must supersede piston action for engine power. The chief problem in connection with the gasoline turbine has been compressing the gas. But newer types of fuel and the super-charger may make the rotary gas engine practical for use in passenger automobiles.

This would permit the desirable short hood and development of short wheelbase cars could go ahead with no sacrifice of power, flexibility or room for passengers.

Whether the auto engine ever will be placed anywhere but under the hood and in front of the driver is problematical. Where there is little room to spare, as in the short car, the problem seems to be more one of reducing the engine's size without sacrifice of power and flexibility than in relocating it.

Traffic Could Be Increased.

The volume of traffic in many New York streets could be increased 30 to 200 per cent, it is asserted, by more intelligent control of vehicles.

CHEVROLET SEPTEMBER OUTPUT 81,158 UNITS

Company Produced 593,281 Cars and Trucks in Nine Months of 1926.

The Chevrolet Motor Co., largest manufacturer of three-speed cars, shattered two of its marks in September when it established a new monthly record of 81,158 passenger cars and trucks and attained a production total of 593,281 units for the first nine months of 1926, eclipsing the half-million production of the entire 12 months of 1925, Chevrolet's greatest year.

The September production averaged 3381 units daily for the 24 working days of the month. This also is a new record. The 81,158 total for September followed several recent months of record-breaking production. April, May and June, with respective productions of 71,157, 74,617 and 77,241, each established successive production records. July production was restricted somewhat to permit the tooling and other changes necessary to effect several further improvements in the Chevrolet models. August production then went up to 76,551 units, only 690 fewer cars than were built in June, which stood as Chevrolet's high record until outdistanced by September.

Chevrolet's production in 1925 was 519,060. This is 74,221 units less than the 1926 production to the end of September. The 1925 total was passed during the second week of September.

Chevrolet's progress may be shown by the fact that the company has produced so far during 1926 a number of units approximately equal to the entire Chevrolet production from 1912 to 1920, inclusive, the first nine years during which Chevrolets were manufactured.

"These records are primarily the result of public confidence," said W. S. Knudsen, president of the Chevrolet Motor Co. "We are all grateful for this confidence and will continue our efforts to merit the high indorsement which the public has conferred upon the Chevrolet car."

SEPTEMBER sales of cars by the manufacturing divisions of General Motors to dealers totaled 138,360, compared with 134,231 in August, and with 89,018 in September a year ago. Retail sales were 118,224 cars by dealers to users in September, compared with 122,305 in August, and further with 83,519 in September, 1925.

In the nine months ended Sept. 30, sales to dealers totaled 996,321, compared with 612,047 in 1925, an increase of 63 per cent. In the same period retail sales by dealers to users were 962,295, compared with 624,389 in 1925, an increase of 54 per cent.

"Cannon-Ball" Baker, who on Sept. 21 finished a New York-Los Angeles run in a Ford car in 5 days, 2 hours and 13 minutes, thereby setting a new one-man transcontinental record, returned through St. Louis in time to attend the first world series game played here. He came as the guest of George A. Cope, secretary of the Cupples Tire Co., whose tires he used on the record trip.

Baker, who made the trip in high gear all the way, the low-gear and transmission bands having been removed from his Ford, reported that mud caused him to detour 300 miles in Western Kansas. The car was plastered with mud when he reached St. Louis.

Baker's car was a standard Ford, with accessories, including special AC spark plugs, Panyard piston rings, Boyle valves, forced feed oiling and front-wheel brakes of his own design.

NEW 1000-CAR GARAGE IN PARIS HAS PRIVATE BOX TO ACCOMMODATE EACH

A new garage in Paris contains a private box for each of 1000 cars it can accommodate. Each box has water, compressed air, electric light and a metal locker for the driver's personal effects and spares. The floor slopes to rear, where there is a drain allowing a car to be washed in its own box, and the water is filtered to prevent gasoline or oil reaching the drains.

This garage, with a ground area of 45,000 square feet, is a concrete six-story structure, having a swimming pool in the basement, covered tennis courts on the roof and a 10 per cent ramp 21 feet wide on the straightaways from the ground to the top floor.

MANY BODY TYPES AT CADILLAC SALON

Much local interest was created by the salon held by the Oliver-Cadillac Co. the past week to exhibit a number of the 50 different body types and 500 odd color combinations now available for Cadillac motor cars. The salon was part of an eight-day nation-wide display of the new Cadillac in more than 900 cities, held to celebrate the entrance of the Cadillac Motor Car Co. into its twenty-fifth year of automobile manufacturing.

It was in June, 1902, that a group of Detroit business men organized the Cadillac Automobile Co. and produced in September of that year its first unit—a model "A," one-cylinder car. The engine was suspended amidships beneath the front seat and was cranked from the side. It had patent leather mud guards, and offered as extra equipment all of the ultra-modern trappings of the day, such as brass kerosene headlamps and tail lamps, and detachable tonneau with entrance from the rear.

Almost Indestructible.

With minor changes 16,503 of the one-cylinder models were produced. They were wellnigh indestructible and many are still in operation. One of these sturdy pioneers, stripped and geared high, was driven a mile by Don Lee, new California Cadillac distributer, in the then marvelous time of 1:07 4-5, and five miles in 7:14, defeating a 16-horsepower two-cylinder machine of a well-known make. The same model, with tonneau, luggage and two to four passengers, was driven from New York to the St. Louis World's Fair in 1904, winning a perfect certificate for the entire trip and first place at the finish.

A four-cylinder Cadillac was introduced in 1905, and in 1908 a sensation was created by the announcement of a Cadillac "thirty" to be sold at $1400, a hitherto unheard-of low price for a car of its grade, size and power. In the same year Cadillac was awarded the Dewar trophy by the Royal Automobile Club of England for the establishment and maintenance of a policy of complete standardization; that is, every part was manufactured to such close measurements that it was an exact duplicate of every other part of the same kind and fitted in any car assembly without hand preparation.

Due to general performance, including the performance of its newly developed electric starting, lighting and ignition system, the car was again awarded the Dewar trophy in 1913. It was the first American car to receive such recognition abroad, and it is the only car in the world so honored twice.

The forerunner of the present Cadillac was put on the market in 1914 with production of the first "V" type, 90-degree eight-cylinder car in America. The V-63, presented in 1922, was a further improvement on this same V-8 principle. The engine was inherently balanced, its compensated crankshaft eliminating vibration and solving a problem which for years had baffled automotive engineers.

The new 90-degree eight-cylinder Cadillac was presented in August, 1925. In the next 12 months, the company's sales showed an 87 per cent increase over the sales for the preceding year. Four months later, the 200,000th Cadillac V-type, 90-degree eight-cylinder motor car was produced.

Stop that Ford! with 4 Wheel Brakes

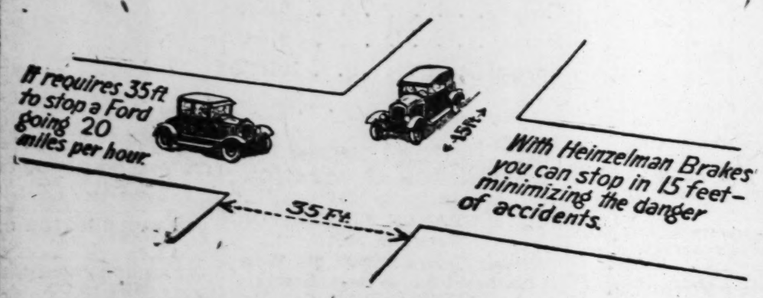
Four-Wheel Brakes

—are being universally adopted for motor cars. Safety demands them. The light car needs them more than the heavy car. Traffic congestion is getting worse. You never know when you will have to stop quicker than ever before.



With Heinzelman Brakes you can stop your Ford in half the distance now required—even on slippery streets. Half the width of a street may mean the difference between safety and accident—Why take chances? "Any Ford owner can afford them."

A Free Demonstration

We will be glad to let you drive a Ford equipped with Heinzelman Brakes and feel the difference—there's no obligation. Call VIctor 5125—or see them at the P. B. Brake Shop, 3134 Washington Boul.

DETAILS OF AUTO WILLYS PLANS TO SELL FOR $17,500

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

LONDON, Oct. 16.—The new British Daimler car which John N. Willys, on his return from England recently, described as the most powerful stock car ever built" and possessed of the most powerful brakes, has a 12-cylinder engine, known as the "Double six," which, with Knight sleeve valves, develops over 150 horsepower. According to reports in England, Mr. Willys has arranged for the exclusive selling rights of this car in the United States by the Stearns Motor Co.

The 12-Cylinder "V" Type Engine.

The engine of this impressive car has a bore and stroke of approximately 3¼ inches by 4½ inches, which gives it a piston displacement of 435 cubic inches. Its 12 cylinders are set in blocks of six arranged as a "V" with 60 degrees between them. There are two seven-jet carburetors, one at each side of the engine, two magnetos, two separate coil ignition distributers and two water pumps. The ignition timing control is automatic, though a hand lever over the steering wheel supplements the governors of the automatic equipment.

The seven-bearing crankshaft has two connecting rods on each crankpin, and, at its extreme front end, outside the crankcase, is a torsion vibration damper (a small flywheel driven by a friction clutch) which also serves as the driving pulley for the fan. The latter is half enclosed by cowling, which extends over the engine from front to rear and shuts in the space between the cylinder blocks; below the cowling (in the V shaped space) there are the two ribbed exhaust manifolds running to downtake pipes at the rear, and these are considerably cooled owing to the current of air that passes over them directly from the partly enclosed fan.

The two distributors of the coil ignition are at the top of long aluminum standards at the front end of the engine, where they are driven by bevel gears from a slow gear-driven cross-shaft, which, at each extremity, drives the magnetos. The water pumps are driven by a similar cross-shaft located under the crankshaft center.

Climbs Any Hill on High.

Although the car will run on high gear at speeds ranging from 2 to over 80 m.p.h., accelerates almost like a bullet from a gun and climbs any hill on high, it has a four-speed gearset with central control.

The braking consists of a hand-operated expanding brake with a drum at the rear end of the gearset, and four sets of expanding shoes in the wheel drums.

The four-wheel brakes are operated by pedal through the agency of a vacuum actuated servo device, and no more than a light pressure on the pedal (merely enough to overcome the take-off spring of a small valve) will bring the brakes into full effect. The vacuum device consists of a piston in a cylinder to which the negative pressure in the induction manifolds is conveyed through a pipe and control valve, and although immensely powerful when the valve is opened wide, it can be controlled with remarkable precision, giving just the degree of retarding effect required at any movement without shock, jerk or jar.

This servo device is extremely simple and is as reliable as any other part of this exceedingly high-grade car. It is known as the Dewandre equipment and will be fitted to many European cars for 1927. But, in order that the four-wheel brakes may be used when the engine is not running, the control pedal has a direct connection with the usual brake linkage. If by any remote chance the servo device should fail, the brakes can therefore be applied as usual by pedal pressure alone.

163-Inch Wheelbase.

To keep the engine space as clear as possible and to arrange the steering column well away from (over) the pedals, the steering gearbox is attached high up on the rear of the aluminum dashboard, and from the usual worm-wheel shaft lever a link runs down to a bell crank with a bearing on the side rail of the frame at a point where the steering gearbox is generally located; the vertical lever of the bell crank serves as the orthodox worm wheel shaft lever and is connected as usual to the drag link through a spherical joint.

This new car has a wheelbase of 163 inches and a track of 60 inches; its overall length is 18 feet 7 inches, and overall width 6 feet 4 inches. The chassis weighs 4760 pounds, and its price in England is £1950, or, with a luxurious landaulet body, £2800. A somewhat shorter model is made for open cars which cost £2450. The price in America after the import duty, freight, etc., have been allowed for, is expected to be in the region of $17,500.

Balloon tires 37 inches in diameter and 7.3 inches in cross section on wire wheels are fitted.

The fuel tank holds 24 gallons and the consumption, according to careful road tests, is 10 m. p. g.

SEVERAL IMPROVEMENTS IN MOTOR CAR MADE BY DODGE

Two of the most important improvements ever made by Dodge Brothers have just been announced. They are a two-unit starter, replacing a single unit, and a five-bearing crankshaft, replacing a three-bearing crankshaft.

"Vibration is, to all intents and purposes, eliminated. The flow of power is velvety smooth. Instant acceleration and greater road speed have been achieved. In addition to these advantages, numerous other refinements in beauty, performance and ease of operation have been added. These include an air cleaner of the centrifugal type and temperature regulator, increasing mileage and protecting the engine from grit and dust. This can now be installed on any earlier production Dodge Brothers motor car.

"Steering ease has been increased to a surprising degree by an important improvement of the steering unit design. Spark and throttle levers are now placed above the steering wheel for greater accessibility and an attractive new instrument panel, with white dials, has been adopted. Indirect dial lighting, bullet-shaped headlamps and cowl lamps for the De Luxe and sport types are provided.

All Dodge Brothers touring cars and roadsters, like the closed cars and sport roadster, are now available in color. The hoods and bodies of the touring cars and roadsters, the new sport type excepted, will be in coolie blue lacquer, with cartouche stripe below the belt line. This blue, in contrast with the lustrous black of the fenders and shields, accentuates the graceful lines of the smart low-hung bodies.

The standard touring car and roadster have blue wood wheels and the special types natural wood wheels with black dagger striping on the spokes. Enameled steel disc wheels are available on either at slight extra cost. Tires are 31x5.25 inches.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Oct. 16.—The most enthusiastic reception ever accorded a new car at the Paris Salon marked the debut of the Erskine six, Studebaker's new 2½-litre car, according to cables to A. R. Erskine, president of the Studebaker Corporation, called by the Paris Temps the "clou du salon"—the hit of the show—the Erskine six drew record throngs of Continental motorists to the Studebaker booth in the Grand Palais.

Continental dealers and motor car critics alike said the Erskine six was the outstanding development of the salon, and were outspoken in their admiration of the new car as a combination of the best features of European and American design. Critics foresaw in the car a new trend in European design, declaring the Erskine six to be the first car built to American standards of comfort, power and finish that actually met the demand of European drivers for economical operation, compact design and low initial cost. The new car is Continental in every aspect of its appearance, but differs from its European prototype in its riding comfort, roominess and power.

BUS OPERATORS TO MEET

The Missouri motor bus operators have issued a call for a meeting in Jefferson City Oct. 25.

SALES OF NEW BUICK CARS, IN SIXTY DAYS, TOTAL 57,100

The 1927 Buick in its first two months has broken all Buick sales records for the same period. Since Aug. 1, when the new Buick was introduced, 57,100 have been delivered to owners.

According to E. T. Strong, Buick general sales manager, this delivery mark breaks that of any previous model for a similar period by more than 17,000 cars. The 1926 Buick held the former high record with 40,067 deliveries during its first 60 days on the market. The 1926 Buick held the pace established during these first two months and finished the year ending July 31, 1926, with a grand 12 months' total of 240,424 deliveries. On the basis of its remarkable showing during August and September this year, Strong predicts that the 1927 Buick will prove to be an even more sensational sales success.

Because of the heavy demand for the new Buick, production has been limited only by the resources of the company. The factory is at its capacity of more than 1200 cars a day. President H. H. Bassett recently announced that $5,000,000 would be expended for a new gray iron foundry to take care of the increased production, and ground already has been broken for this improvement.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

TOLEDO, O., Oct. 16.—John N. Willys, discussing the general Willys-Overland situation says: "Our Whippet car and campaign have been an unqualified success. We have to date produced and shipped 40,724 Whippets in a period covering approximately 70 working days.

"In other words, average daily production has been 575 cars since the first of July.

"Total car sales for September were in excess of 16,000. This volume is going directly into consumption, as we have insisted upon the policy of keeping dealers' stocks at a minimum.

"It has only been possible in the past week or two to take advantage of the big export market which assuredly awaits the Whippet, and exports for October will be the largest in the company's history. Volume of export shipments is now running at the rate of between 35,000 and 40,000 cars per annum.

CHANDLER SEDAN, IN 'SECOND,' RUNS 235 MILES IN 81-2 HOURS

Officially sealed in second gear with clutch pedal removed, gear shift lever disconnected, oil intake and radiator sealed, a 1927 Chandler "big six" metropolitan sedan made a record-breaking 225-mile test run from Butte to Bozeman, Mont., and return. Speeding over the Continental Divide, through the Jefferson, Madison and Gallatin valleys to Bozeman, the Chandler engine maintained a steady 2258 revolutions per minute for 8 hours and 28 minutes.

NEW MARMON '75' IN 14 BODY TYPES

Six Custom-Built Models by Locke and 8 Standard Open and Closed Cars in Line.

Marmon's new series "75," which is being shown by the More Automobile Co., a continuation of the Marmon which the company has developed for more than 11 years, is as exceptional in body types and new body features as it is in the number of new mechanical advancements. Six new body types are offered. One of them, the town coupe, is an exceptional achievement for Marmon. Built and finished in standard Marmon quality, this new type lists at $3195, said to be the lowest price at which a Marmon has been offered. This car has very wide doors, and is built for five passengers.

The "75" series presents a new group of custom-built creations by Locke. Three of these are closed vehicles and the fourth, a seven-passenger touring speedster, presents quite a novel type to those who still love the open car and desire it built and finished along exclusive lines.

The seven-passenger, custom-built sedan is another of the new Marmon body styles by Locke. The auxiliary seats in this body face forward and accommodate three persons. A five-passenger custom-built sedan is also provided. A custom-built sedan-limousine for seven completes this custom-built line by Locke. An almost limitless variety of color and finish options are offered with these custom types.

Eight standard Marmon body types are continued and greatly refined in the new series. The open styles of this line are the two and four and the five-passenger phaeton. The closed standard types include the two-passenger coupe, the four-passenger victoria, the brougham and five and seven-passenger sedans.

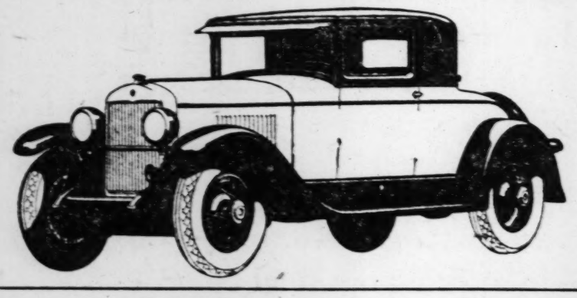
No other manufacturer of fine cars has ever built anywhere near the number of cars that Cadillac has produced.



Ask yourself whether it is possible, in this day, for Cadillac to outsell all other cars at or above its price, by two to one, unless the Cadillac outstrips all others in fact, as it does in sales.

That being true, what justification is there for considering any other car as comparable to the great new Cadillac—which even now is still further increasing Cadillac prestige.

An hour at the wheel of the great new Cadillac will prove to you that no car in America is its equal.

Owners will tell you that on the basis of dependability and durability quite as much as on luxury and comfort, Cadillac is the soundest kind of an investment.

SOLUTION OF BROADCAST PROBLEM SAID TO BE NEAR Transmitter That Eliminates Carrier Wave and Suppresses One Side Band Is Being Perfected for Station Use.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16. — Development of a new type of transmitter may provide a solution of the present broadcast problem, according to Dr. J. H. Dellinger, chief of the radio laboratory of the Bureau of Standards.

Dr. Dellinger has been following the experiments of one or two commercial companies with a new transmission system in which the carrier wave is eliminated and one side band suppressed. He believes the experiments will not only be successful but will revolutionize present methods.

The usual broadcast signal sent out now consists of two side bands and a carrier. Under this arrangement it has been necessary for a 10 kilocycle separataion between broadcast channels to avoid interference. The 10 kilocycle separation has resulted in limiting the number of channels available for broadcasting.

Has Three Advantages.

With the new system, the signals are sent out on a single side band. If it works out, it will nearly double the number of available broadcast channels and accommodate twice as many stations.

The new system has three advantages, Dr. Dellinger points out. First, it increases efficiency and enables a greater distance range with less power. The ordinary radio signal consists of the energy at the carrier frequency, energy distributed in the frequency band extending from the carrier upward and energy in the band extending from the carrier downward. The power of the carrier frequency alone makes up somewhat more than half of the total power even when the modulation is as good as possible.

For this reason twice as much volume may be obtained under the new arrangement as under the old. This means greater distance and better signals.

Reduces Exposure to Noise.

The second advantage of the single side-band is a decrease in interference. A narrower frequency band from the transmitter permits the use of more selective circuits at the receiving end. This reduces the exposure to noise thus improving the signal to noise ratio.

The third advantage is the smaller frequency band required thus enabling a big increase in the number of channels for broadcasting. If the separation between channels could be reduced from ten to five or six kilocycles, most all of the present stations could be accommodated without their interfering with each other.

"Although there are a number of problems that must be solved before the new transmission system can be put into every-day use," says Dr. Dellinger, "I have no doubt that we are surely coming to it. Nor do I believe that it will revolutionize present-day receiving sets or that sets in use now will be made useless because of the change. Instead, it will result in better service which, of course, is what must be furnished if the public interest in radio is to be maintained at its present high peak."

WOK IS BROADCASTING ON TWO WAVE LENGTHS

Station Also Using Two New Transmitters for Six Nights a Week Programs.

WOK listeners in the United States will be interested to know that WOK is now using two new transmitters and broadcasting on two wave lengths.

WOK goes on the air each evening of the week, excepting Monday evening, at 6 p. m., central standard time. From 6 to 7:45 p. m. one transmitter is used to broadcast on 238 meters and from 7:45 to 8 p. m. is silent to allow changing over to the other transmitter. From 8 to 9 p. m. WOK broadcasts on 217.3 meters and from 9 to 9:30 p. m. will again be silent and switch back to the other transmitter and broadcast from 9:30 to 12 midnight on 238 meters.

Sunday WOK will broadcast from 6 p. m. to 12 midnight on 238 meters.

The large transmitter is of the super power type, developing 20,000 watts. The other transmitter develops 5000 watts.

WEW TO BROADCAST MUSICAL PROGRAMS THURSDAY NIGHTS

The WEW musical programs on Thursday nights this winter will include selections by the St. Louis University Glee Club and Orchestra, the Scholastic Choir, the St. Louis University Hawaiian Serenaders, the newly organized 30-piece student band and sacred music from the Kilgen organ of the College church. Lectures on Sunday night at 7 p. m. will be delivered by faculty members of the School of Divinity on matters of Catholic teaching.

The programs will be in addition to the regular broadcasting of stock and market reports and the newly established Government farm school.

NATIONAL BROADCASTERS TO MEET HERE WEDNESDAY

In connection with the radio show at the Coliseum a meeting of the National Association of Broadcasters in this district has been called by E. H. Rollestone, regional chairman, to be held at Hotel Mayfair at 10 a. m. Wednesday.

Earle C. Anthony, president of Station KFI, Los Angeles, will preside, and others expected to attend are Paul B. Klugh, executive chairman, and L. S. Baker, executive secretary. About 35 members have notified Harold J. Wrape, president of the St. Louis Radio Trades Association, of their intention to attend.

BELIEVES RADIO WAVE TRAVELS ON SHADOW

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, Oct. 16.—Describing experiments to test his theory that shadow is the conductor of radio waves, Alvin J. Musselman, radio engineer, says that "ether is simply an arbitrary name for something that cannot be seen, weighed or measured. On the other hand, it is easy to visualize darkness. Darkness acts as the real carrier of radio and other waves."

Ionization does not give a satisfactory reason for the difference between day and night reception, he said.

In air mail field tests at midnight, under ideal night conditions, a radio set was placed in the searchlight tower. Across the field, about 1000 feet away, a Government radio operator sent signals steadily for a half hour. At given intervals, a searchlight of 450,000,000 candle-power was switched on and trained on the antenans of the sending station. An audibility meter on Musselman's radio set registered the strength of the signals. When the light was off, the signals were strong; when it was on, the signals were weak.

"Of course it must be kept in mind that the 450,000,000 candle-power searchlight could not anywhere near approximate the power of sunlight, but in a very small way I was provided with daytime conditions which enabled me to make my first test," he said. "I am satisfied that the test bears out, at least, in part, my theory that shadow is the conductor of radio and other electromagnetic waves."

'AIR SIGNATURES' IS NEW PHRASE BROUGHT BY RADIO

Each new invention has brought its new words and radio is no exception. The latest new phrase is "air signature."

For instance, the Sundial Serenaders and the Bonnie Laddies, who broadcast from WJZ every Friday night, have a certain introductory song, and when they retire they use another song saying goodnight. The hello song of the Happiness Boys on WEAF and the last section by Vincent Lopez, whenever his orchestra broadcasts, called "On the Radio," are typical examples of "air signatures." Judge Jr., one of WJZ's artists, always opened and closed his broadcasts by executing a crescendo on the piano.

NEW RECEIVING SETS SIMPLE AND EASY TO OPERATE

Show Visitors Will Find, However, That Selectivity and Sensitivity Have Not Been Sacrificed.

Simplicity and ease of operation, selectivity and sensitivity, and beauty of cabinet and console design, make the radio receiving sets that will be displayed at the St. Louis radio show this week the most interesting ever exhibited. Visitors to the show will find that considerations of common sense and attractive appearance have weighed heavily with radio engineers and factories.

There has come a general trend toward lower prices. Never before could the radio buyer purchase such an efficient outfit, tube for tube, for so little as he will have to pay this fall. Constant research by engineers, as well as by radio experimenters, has resulted in a general increase in efficiency in receivers. Mass production, summer manufacturing for the export market and cutting of costs through improved assembly and wiring have contributed to lower costs.

Tone Quality Greatly Improved.

This year there is nothing radically new in circuits. However, standardization of radio circuits has done much to turn the attention of the set manufacturer to fidelity of reproduction of radio programs. With a great majority of receivers on the market this fall, the claims for splendid fidelity of reproduction are supported by the performance of the set in the purchaser's living room. This perfection of tone was obtained without sacrificing distance getting.

Until a relatively short time ago, little attention was paid to the audio frequency side of the sets which is largely responsible for the good or poor tone quality of a receiver. Great stress was laid on the development of the radio frequency stages, where the signals from various stations are separated and passed on to the detector and audio amplifier.

Shielding in Many Sets.

The radio frequency end of the receiver can contribute noise or distortion through picking up and amplifying local disturbances such as X-ray machines, electric elevators or a sparking motor, regardless of care of the operator in tuning it. Further, the set may be tuned too sharply in an effort to eliminate local noises. The result is "cutting the sidebands" or losing the harmonics and overtones which mean complete and faithful reproduction of musical programs.

To overcome these two troubles, most of the 1927 receivers are partially or totally shielded. This shielding aids in minimizing all forms of local interference, permitting the incoming signal to be received only through the antenna and ground systems and further permitting reception of the full volume of the transmitted signal.

Efforts to better tone quality have even carried to the detector tube and its circuit. In former days, when distance-getting was every radio owner's favorite pastime, the squealing of the oscillating detector was used as an aid to tuning. Today the radio owner realizes that squeal means a definite loss of tone quality. Regeneration, or an oscillating circuit, means distortion or imperfect reproduction due to "cutting of the sidebands" or failure to bring out certain harmonics or overtones.

Most of the 1927 receivers have elaborate filters and by-pass condensers to eliminate oscillation in the detector tube. Yet little or nothing has been lost, since a good radio frequency amplifier will supply the detector tube with as much energy as it can handle, and special detector tubes recently placed on the market give sensitivity virtually equal to that of an ordinary tube used in a regenerative way.

Provision is made in nearly all the newest models for the new power tubes, such as the 112, 120 or 171, not that there is any appreciable gain in volume with these tubes, but rather so that one can hear the kettledrums o rlow bass notes on a piano as they are sounded. The general, all-purpose tube would handle the treble notes of a piano or violin, but failed on the lower end of the musical scale. The energy needed to move the diaphragm of a loud speaker to reproduce a low note is 20 to 50 times greater than that needed for equal volume on a high note.

Light Socket Operations.

When one considers that these power tubes require from 135 to

Exhibits of Receiving Sets And Equipment Elaborate

Almost Everything New in Radio Will Be on View—Leading Manufacturers and Wholesalers Have Displays.

The second annual Southwest national radio exposition, presented by the St. Louis Radio Trades Association, will open its doors tomorrow at 2 p. m. at the Coliseum to welcome the many thousands who have witnessed with increasing enjoyment and wonderment the astonishing development within the past twelfth-month of this now firmly established industry.

Officially, the exposition will be opened at 8:30 p. m. tomorrow by Mayor Victor J. Miller, who will be introduced to the visible and invisible audience from the Crystal Studio by Harold J. Wrape, president of the St. Louis trades association. The speakers will be presented by Graham McNamee, of station WEAF, guest announcer, who is heard nightly over KSD. McNamee will be introduced by George Junkin, director of KMOX, host station of the occasion.

Large Number of Exhibits.

Set in an oval, lavishly ornamented and decorated, the exposition will unfold to the eye a brilliant ensemble of color—the product of months of work of the Show Committee of the St. Louis Trades Association.

Visitors at the exposition, which ranks in interest and comprehensiveness with the New York and Chicago radio shows, will find for the first time under a single roof in the Middle West all the new radio equipment that only a few months ago was in the experimental stage in a hundred research laboratories.

Represented in the exposition are 121 of the leading manufacturers and jobbers of radio receiving sets, as well as the larger distributers in this territory. In attendance will be hundreds of dealers in the St. Louis trade territory, attracted here to examine the array of equipment assembled.

Because of the amazing increase in popular interest in radio, attributed to the broadcasting of recent sporting events of wide appeal, exposition officials expect an attendance which will tax the facilities of the show during its five days' duration.

The exposition itself, in its exhibits, will be not only a demonstration of the tremendous advance in radio engineering, but the sets themselves will be encased in de luxe cabinets that make radio not merely a luxury or a plain necessity in the home, but an actual adornment as well.

Beautiful Set Shown.

One of the outstanding features of the radio show will undoubtedly be the fine furniture in which manufacturers are now housing their receivers. The mechanical appearance of the early receivers will be displaced by beautiful cabinets which can play a graceful part in the home. This better appearance, and the greater simplicity of operation, will convert many a hesitant purchaser who has feared the mechanical aspect of radio.

Housed in graceful cabinets and marked by the absence of confusing dials and indicators, radio has reached a point where anyone can operate a receiver. Many of the sets also have adaptations to operate from the light current, and this advantage will win its share of new converts.

The radio show will demonstrate the industry's right to a niche in American big business, and will enlighten the public as to the present status of radio entertainment.

Interesting Things to See.

Of especial interest to the thousands of amateurs and casual experimenters in radio will be several models of "A," "B" and "C" battery eliminating sets, as well as "A" and "B" battery eliminators, and "A" battery chargers, among which the so-called "trickle" charger is becoming a favorite.

There will also be numerous devices serving as power amplifiers and "B" current supply, combination "A" batteries and trickle chargers and devices which operate "B" battery eliminators while also keeping "A" batteries fully charged.

Many specimens of audio amplifier units, affording greater volume and clarity through resistance and transformer coupled amplification than has hitherto been attainable, are also to be on exhibition.

New style straight line frequency condensers, rheostats, potentiometers, grid leaks and dials will likewise be shown. Cone and disc speakers and reproducing instruments encased in cabinets rival the horn type speakers, while many new styles of antenna and set wiring are also to be exhibited.

The exposition has been prepared, and will be conducted, by the St. Louis Radio Trades Association. The exhibitors are exclusively manufacturers and wholesalers, except for booths prepared by St. Louis newspapers and the public library. Exhibitors are not permitted to make sales at the show.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16.—Women may not yet be very keen about watching a boxing bout, but they are outdoing the men in long-distance enjoyment of the thrills of the prize ring, according to officials of local broadcasting station WRC.

Having had their ears first opened to what goes on at a prize fight during the broadcasting of the Dempsey-Firpo battle, and having had more of the same recently when Gene Tunney knocked Jack Dempsey loose from the heavyweight crown, many women are asking for more.

The telephones at WRC were kept busy just before the Wills-Sharkey fight in Brooklyn, bringing in requests for a ringside account of the bout. More than 50 per cent of the calls were from women.

SPECIAL STAGE ACTS TO BE SEEN AT SHOW

Vaudeville Program Will Bring Artists Well Known to Radio and Theater Fans.

While visitors at the Radio Show at the Coliseum this week will find an abundance of entertainment through the amplifiers and the program broadcast from the Crystal Studio, special diversion will be provided by the Show Committee. This will be a program to be presented nightly from 8:30 to 9:30 o'clock on a large stage at the north end of the Coliseum.

The variety acts to be presented will introduce Russ Wildey and Billy Sheehan, better known to radio fans as the "Ray-O-Vac Twins." They will sing a repertoire of late numbers. By courtesy of Skouras Brothers, Paul Sporleder and his novelty orchestra, billed as "The Twelve Tuneville Teasers," will furnish a special program, including three specialty numbers: "A Night on the Radio," "A Burlesque Skit on Broadcasting," a drama with music ("A Fireside Fantasy").

Then there will be the Mitchell Sisters, dancing and singing, and "The Six Vixens," a dancing sextet. The Mitchell Sisters will introduce the Charleston Black Bottom, the latest of the Charleston variations.

A Charleston contest will be a feature of the entertainment.

STATIONS WMAQ AND WLS TO BROADCAST LIGHT OPERA

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, Oct. 16. — The WMAQ-WLS Light Opera Co. has been formed to broadcast light opera exactly as produced on the stage.

The two stations, jointly, will present four light operas, beginning with "Chimes of Normandy" Friday, Oct. 22, at 8 p. m. Two hours will be required.

"Chimes of Normandy" will be followed by "Iolanthe," "Pirates of Penzance" and "The Mikado" on subsequent Friday nights at the same hour.

WMAQ and WLS will broadcast the performances simultaneously on their respective wave lengths.

SHIELDING FOR SELECTIVITY

Shielding of sensitive sets increases selectivity. Line the cabinet with copper or brass sheeting to keep unwanted energy from coils, but then keep the shield out of the field of the radio frequency instruments.

ANNOUNCERS OF NOTE TO APPEAR AT EXPOSITION

McNamee and "The Hired Hand" Among Them — Allen McQuhae, Famous Tenor, Expected at Show.

NEW THREE-GANG CONDENSER

A three-gang condenser has just been put on the market by Amsco Products, pioneers in development of single control operation. This is probably the first triple condenser designed with the peculiar requirements of tandem tuning in mind. A feature is the small compensating condensers, electrically paralled to the variable units, which make it possible to compensate capacity variations in the circuit due to wiring and juxtaposition of parts. The condenser plates are designed to give equal wave-length spacing over the entire tuning range with average coils, simplifying the recording and tuning of stations. Employing shielded coils, this new Amsco unit may be substituted for the individual condensers in neutrodyne and similar two-stage tuned r. f. receivers.

RADIO DEAD SPOTS CAUSE IS EXPLAINED

Due to Land Topography or Peculiar Obstacles, Says Dr. Dellinger.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16.—Radio dead spots are caused by the topography of the land, or by the presence of peculiar kinds of obstacles, according to Dr. J. H. Dellinger, chief of the Radio Laboratory of the Bureau of Standards. Dr. Dellinger is planning to study dead spots this winter in the hope of finding some way to counteract them.

"There are frequent complaints of the existence of dead spots," says Dr. Dellinger. "They are tied in with the fact that radio transmission is better in some directions from a station than others. These differences can usually be explained in terms of topography of the land or presence of particular kinds of obstacles.

"The radio waves travel better and are less absorbed over water than over land, and hence tend to follow rivers. They are impeded by mountains which, so to speak, cast a shadow or cause something of a dead spot in the region beyond them.

Several of the 1927 receivers operate directly from the electric light socket or wall socket, doing away with A, B and C batteries.

Many others of the new sets are equipped for operation with a B battery eliminator with storage A battery which is kept constantly charged by an automatic trickle charger feeding current to the battery continuously at a low rate. There are also a number of A battery eliminating devices on the market which find ready use with most of the new sets offered this fall.

A set is no better than the speaker one uses with it, no matter how fine an output the receiver may deliver. The one quality will be lacking if the speaker is inefficient or poorly made. The reverse is also true.

Most of the 1927 receivers are designed for use with outdoor antenna. However, a number of well-known sets give choice of loop aerial or outdoor antenna operation. Shielding, which has been so much responsible for improved quality of tone, has also been largely responsible for the return of loop reception to popularity by allowing the use of multi-stage radio frequency amplification without instability or excessive oscillation.

Many of the 1927 receivers are either double or single control with some means of compensating for minor circuit differences.

In many sets using three stages of radio frequency amplification, two double condensers are usually employed to give dual control. This method is altered in some of the new sets to give single control on local stations and individual stage control on distant or weak signals by means of a drum on the panel. The drum is divided into individual sections, any one of which can be moved independently of the rest for fine tuning.

In the last two years transmitting amateur experimenters have demonstrated the high efficiency of short wave lengths, thus causing several prominent manufacturers to design receivers for reception on these high frequencies. Also, a number of the larger broadcasters are experimenting with short wave stations, most of them broadcasting regular programs. Such programs are usually the same as those transmitted on standard broadcast frequencies. As a resut, there has developed a tremendous interest in short wave reception.

Most of the manufactured short wave receivers employ regenerative circuits without radio frequency amplification and a system of interchangeable coils, so thatall wave lengths below 200 meters may be received.

Never before have radio sets been housed in such varied and expensive cabinets. One who has his own ideas as to just what type of cabinet he should have for his living room should have little difficulty in finding the cabinet. There are console cabinets, treasure chest cabinets, de luxe art cabinets, highboys and hand-carved period cabinets.

The day when women objected to radio as an eyesore is gone.

PROGRESS MADE IN USE OF RADIO AS TEACHING AID

Several Cities Have Installed Receivers in Schools That Students May Listen to Instruction.

Schools in a number of cities in the United States have made considerable progress in using radio broadcasting as an auxiliary to education. Radio has become not only a means of entertainment, but also a subject of instruction in the St. Louis public schools.

Pupils in the high school physics courses are given rudimentary information about this modern marvel of communication. In early stages of the course some reference is made to it in the study of sound and later, when electricity is under consideration, a week's time is devoted to the theory and workings of radio. Apparatus is displayed and explained in this phase of the work.

At the Soldan High evening school there are two classes dealing with radio. One, taught by a commercial expert, deals particularly with training of young men to become operators, with special attention to the code used in radio telegraphy.

Theory of Reception Studied.

The other night class, taught by the day teacher of physics, and meeting every Monday and Wednesday evening, takes up the theory of radio reception and transmission. Construction of receiving sets by the pupils is emphasized and members of the class have built everything from a little crystal outfit to a big superhetrodyne. The work is done in the class room sometimes, but usually at home, and class periods are devoted to explanations and discussions.

There are about 25 members of this class, including several women, youths and a number of men. It has been in existence for five years.

Students of the intermediate (day) schools are encouraged to become familiar with radio and given advice by teachers in their voluntary clubs.

At the Franklin Intermediate School, there is a continuation course, in which about 1000 employed boys between the ages of 14 and 16, attending school part time, are registered. They spend four hours a week in classes. Members of this group built between 30 and 40 radio sets for themselves last year. Most of these were crystal outfits, though some used one tube. These boys are permitted to use school hours for their hobby if they have time left after finishing tasks on the regular curriculum, and the teachers provide them with diagrams and advice.

World Series Broadcast.

The schools are realizing the possibilities of educating and entertaining boys and girls through important programs broadcast across the country from time to time. In the recent world series baseball games many of them had high-powered sets and loud speakers in operation and either all of the children or those not engaged in recitations were permitted to listen to the accounts of the Cardinals' march toward victory. For example, at Soldan High, the big auditorium was filled to capacity the day the first game of the series was played here and all classes were suspended. For the remaining week-day games the outfit continued in use, but only for those students not reciting.

Now the schools are prepared to receive any important programs, such as speeches of the President, which may be broadcast in daytime. In addition, teachers frequently call attention to notable programs which may be heard after hours in homes equipped with radio sets.

Radio in Rural Schools.

In Connecticut educators are giving receiving sets installed in all the rural schools, where through the co-operation of Station WTIC at Hartford, special programs are heard daily. These programs deal with the subject of musical appreciation, but it is planned to extend the scope of the broadcasts so as to include other subjects pertinent to the classes under instruction in the rural communities. The system may be extended to the urban schools if it proves successful.

In Atlanta, Ga., a different plan is in operation. Every school in the city is equipped with a first-class receiving set and practically every hour of the day one class or another is assembled in a spacious room in the school to listen to instruction via radio. Many subjects are covered and after school hours children not entered in school and their parents have the privilege of attending what is called the "Atlanta air schools."

Since the announcement of the adoption of radio by the Atlanta schools, keen interest has been evidenced by educators in other Georgia cities within daylight range of "The Voice of the South." And it is expected that before very long many rural and city schools of the state will join in obtaining the benefits made possible through the backing of one of the biggest and finest educational systems in America.

Household Program.

The inaugural program included addresses by Dr. R. M. Eubanks, president of the Atlanta Board of Education; Prof. Willis A. Sutton, Superintendent of Schools; Mrs. Charles J. Foster, president of the Atlanta Parent-Teacher Council; W. D. V. Hopkins, president of the Hopkins Equipment Co., who arranged the installation of the Atwater Kent receivers, and Mal. John S. Cohen, president and editor of the Atlanta Journal.

At least two other important broadcasting features have been made possible by WSB's hook-up with the schools. The Atlanta parent-teacher organization will conduct a daily period every morning from 11 to 11:30 in the interest of the average housewife, giving instructions on preparing the family daily menu, housekeeping, sewing, decorating, care of children and a thousand and one other items of successful home management.

So far both these schemes appear to be working satisfactorily, with the result that school boards in practically all communities are seriously considering attempting it in their districts. Besides the purely instructive features, the children are also enabled to receive radio entertainment, something many of them cannot hear at home.

The Governor of Lower California is also said to be planning to equip all the rural Mexican schools with radio receivers, so that the pupils may listen in to available radio talks and entertainment.

Musical Radio Course.

A new course of musical appreciation for public schools of Cleveland and Northern Ohio is to be broadcast by WTAM twice weekly, beginning Oct. 18.

This course was begun last year as an experiment by WTAM and the Cleveland Board of Education. The lessons were so successful that a much more elaborate course has been worked out for this year.

These lessons will be broadcast each Monday and Wednesday afternoon, beginning at 1:30 o'clock, central standard time.

Although the course was originally planned by Miss Alice Keith, supervisor of the Cleveland School Board's department of music appreciation, for school children of Cleveland, schools all over Ohio, Indiana, Kentucky and Pennsylvania have notified the Willard broadcasting station that they made regular use of last year's lessons and have arranged their schedules to include the course this fall and winter.

Concerts by the Cleveland Orchestra are included in the programs planned for fall and winter. The schedule, up to Christmas, includes three concerts and 25 other broadcasts.

Programs will be broadcast Mondays from 2:30 to 2:50 for the first and second grades, and from 3 to 3:30 for the third and fourth grades.

Programs for the upper grades and high school will be broadcast at 2:30 Wednesdays. The Cleveland Orchestra concerts are in this group.

A series of morning musicales, talks and lectures will be broadcast over Station WMAC, Chicago, this winter.

The programs were prepared by Miss Fanny R. Smith, principal of the Goudy elementary school, and Miss Judith Walker, director of WMAQ. Miss Smith took the initiative in offering to co-operate with the station when it seemed that the results of experiments in this line were delaying a theoretical opinion as to the value of radio lessons in schools.

As a result two or three mornings a week a 35-minute program starting at 9 o'clock will be received by a picked group of students in the school assembly hall. The subjects and speakers have been selected carefully. And a number of other schools in and near Chicago have taken advantage of an invitation and will likewise make use of the programs.

A score of the leading university and college presidents of the East have been secured for a series of educational lectures over WTIC, which will be handled in the schools in the same manner. Other cities are planning similar activities.

It will be easy for many schools to adopt this work this year, for both in Chicago, New York, and other centers many institutions used radio receivers informally in their work last year. Private schools and academies, which have used radio in the past, also will widen their interests this year for the reception of addresses by President Coolidge and other leaders as well as outstanding musical broadcasts.

The microphone of Station WDAF, Kansas City, will serve school children of the Middle West in a musical appreciation course, a new and practical adventure in the radio field. The school system of Kansas City, the Kansas City Symphony Orchestra Association and the Kansas City Star have combined efforts in this radio program which each Monday afternoon, 3:30 to 4 o'clock, will enter the school room to explain and demonstrate in an entertaining manner the fundamentals of musical understanding.

It is the hope of the Star that this effort to utilize radio in a practical way will meet the approval of the schools of this territory, particularly those schools of rural communities that lack the opportunity to reveal to their children the beautiful music of a great symphony and an intelligent explanation of music fundamentals by an authority. Anyway, the opportunity will be theirs.

They Will Broadcast During Radio Show Week

GREAT IMPROVEMENT IN RADIO SET PARTS

Decided Progress Made in Design and Construction This Season.

The radio amateur and professional set builders, as well as the fans who like to build sets for themselves or for friends, will be delighted with the progress in design and construction of parts.

The parts manufacturers have learned that the greatest market is the experienced set builder. He has developed into a cautious buyer and serious experimenter.

The majority of part buyers today are well informed. The knowledge they have gained in the school of experience is brought into play when they buy, whether it be a rheostat, transformer or condenser, and they can well judge whether or not a new part is of particular merit.

The dealer is also aware of this new school of part buyers and is confining his own purchasing to lines that are honestly represented and manufactured by reputable companies.

So with this new understanding between manufacturer, dealer and set builder, it is not surprising that with the approach of the new season there is such marked improvemnt in parts construction.

RADIO-TELEGRAPH STATION OPENED AT OAKLAND, CAL.

Lieutenant-Commander Ellery W. Stone, president of the Federal Telegraph Co. of California, announces, at his offices in the Woolworth Building, the opening of a radio telegraph station in Oakland, Cal., where Federal will send and receive regular and rush telegraph messages, day and night letters for transmission between all major Pacific Coast cities and points reached by United States Government lines in Alaska. The new office will be in constant touch with all radio-equipped ships on the Pacific.

The new station is centrally located to serve the cities on the east shore of San Francisco Bay, and is an important link in the chain of Federal radio stations on the Pacific Coast. The company in 1911 established the first successful city-to-city commercial wireless service in the world. Today it carries more telegraphic business along the west coast than all other companies combined.

Federal Telegraph Co. of California is the oldest radio communication company still operating under its original name. The company is a subsidiary of Federal-Brandes, Inc., manufacturer of Kolster radio sets and Brandes speakers.

Cause of Static.

Static is caused by lightning flashes, often many hundreds of miles away. The lightning flash sets up a train of radio waves, which, when they strike a receiving set antenna, interfere with the reception of station.

The new Balkite Radio Power Units supply power for every radio need from the light socket. They are the last word in radio convenience.

Balkite "B" eliminates "B" batteries entirely and supplies "B" current from the light socket. It is the proved, popular light socket "B" supply. Over 75,000 Balkite "B"s are giving satisfactory service. Many have been in use for over three years. To our knowledge not one has ever worn out. It is made in three models for all types of sets.

Either the new Balkite Charger or the popular Balkite Trickle Charger, once connected to your "A" battery and the light socket, may be left on permanent or trickle charge. They automatically keep the battery at full charge and in effect make your "A" battery a light socket "A" power supply.

Balkite Light Socket Power is noiseless power. It is never low and never runs down, but is always exactly what is required by the set. It is permanent power; Balkite Radio Power Units have no bulbs, and have nothing to replace or renew. They require no other attention than the infrequent addition of water. Other than a negligible amount of household current their first cost is the last. Ask your dealer. Fansteel Products Co., Inc., North Chicago, Ill.

NEW FORD RECEIVER HAS DX ABILITY AND GOOD TONE

One of the new Ford 5-tube receiving sets fitted with Ford 101A tubes, performed excellently in a test in St. Louis two nights the past week. It was worked with 90 volts of "B" battery, then with 135 volts of "B" using a Ford 201A tube in the power tube socket. There was no distortion, and the reproduction quality was very good with standard cones and horn type loud speakers.

This set was used throughout KDS's broadcasting of the opera, "The Bohemian Girl," and handled all solos, duets and orchestral numbers clearly and well at varying degrees of volume up to very loud. The Ford is a low priced set, but in the test it reproduced with a naturalness worthy of comment.

During the two evenings, between 7:30 and 10 o'clock, the set brought in with good volume WJZ, New York; WGY, Schenectady; WWJ, Detroit; KDKA, Pittsburg; KVOO, Bristow, Ok.; WFAA, Dallas, Tex.; WSMB, New Orleans; half a dozen Chicago stations, and most of the Southern and Middle Western stations. It separated the local stations on the lower wave lengths well, and, altogether, performed on the level expected from much higher priced receivers.

KSD SYMPHONY CONCERTS TO BEGIN SATURDAY NIGHT

WILL CONDUCT KSD'S SATURDAY NIGHT CONCERTS

WALTER DAMROSCH.

One of the greatest musical treats ever broadcast will begin next Saturday evening when KSD will send out, direct from WEAF, New York, the first of 13 weekly concerts to be given by the New York Symphony Orchestra under the leadership of Conductor Walter Damrosch. These concerts have been arranged by the Fansteel Products Co. of Chicago, and will be given every Saturday night at 8:00 o'clock, from stations KSD, WEAF, WEEI, Boston; WGR, Buffalo, WFI, Philadelphia; WCAE, Pittsburg; WSAI, Cincinnati; WTAM, Cleveland; WWJ, Detroit; WGN, Chicago; WCCO, Minneapolis-St. Paul; WDAE, Kansas City, and WOC, Davenport.

Plans for the Concerts

The first concert will be a symphony program by Damrosch and the orchestra. Thereafter the concerts will be arranged as far as possible in pairs. Each symphony program will be preceded by a piano recital by Damrosch. In these recitals he will discuss, explain and play important parts of the programs of the following week. In this way, it is expected that the programs can be made not only of the greatest entertainment value, but be made to substitute a liberal education in music as well.

Overture "Tannhauser"....Wagner
Polonaise for strings....Beethoven
Largo from "The New World"....Symphony .....Dvorak
(a) Valse lente, from "Sylvia"
(b) Pizzicati, from "Sylvia" Delibes
Wedding March from "Midsummernight's Dream" Mendelssohn

Damrosch was one of the pioneer orchestra leaders in the country. Perhaps no other person has done as much as he for the development of music in America. He grew up with American music, and to many his name is synonymous with its growth. Today he is one of the most popular and best known of conductors.

Damrosch Enthusiastic.

With his standing as a conductor, Damrosch combines an amazing knowledge of the musical world. He has known personally most of the great musicians of the last 50 years, including Liszt and Wagner. A great deal of his experience he has written in his book "My Musical Life," but the greater portion of it, based on intimate and close contact with music and musicians, is material that can hardly be told except as anecdotes. Damrosch not only knows endless musical anecdotes, but he can tell them as no one else can. This alone should make this series of concerts and recitals one of interest to every lover of music.

While Damrosch is now enthusiastic about broadcasting regularly, this has not always been so. The following story is told about him:

He had been approached on several occasions on the subject of broadcasting on the air. He was skeptical and not at all interested, fearing that orchestral music could not be broadcast with accuracy. He was afraid it would be distorted beyond recognition, and for a long time refused to consider the proposal.

Finally, however, there came an evening when one of the large Eastern symphonies was broadcasting. A member of his family had a radio set put in the room next to Damrosch's library where he was working. When the concert began the set was tuned in. For some time Damrosch paid no attention to it. Then he entered the room to listen. For some time he sat without comment. But after a few minutes the attempt to listen idly by while an orchestra was playing proved too much for him. He got up, took his position in front of the receiver and proceeded to conduct for the remainder of the entire concert exactly as if he had had the orchestra before him. When it was over he was as spent as by an hour's work on the stage.

He was asked whether he thought the music well reproduced and admitted that he hadn't noticed, so it must have been well done. From that time his only objection to broadcasting was removed, and immediately afterward plans were laid for him to go on the air.

...Y CONCERTS ...ATURDAY NIGHT

One of the greatest musical series ever broadcast will begin next Saturday evening when KSD will send out, direct from WEAF, New York, the first of 13 weekly concerts to be given by the New York Symphony Orchestra under the leadership of Conductor Walter Damrosch. These concerts have been arranged by the Fansteel Products Co. of Chicago, and will be given every Saturday night at 8:00 o'clock, from stations KSD, WEAF, WEEI, Boston; WGR, Buffalo, WFI, Philadelphia; WCAE, Pittsburg; WSAI, Cincinnati; WTAM, Cleveland; WWJ, Detroit; WGN, Chicago; WCCO, Minneapolis-St. Paul; WDAF, Kansas City, and WOC, Davenport.

Plans for the Concerts

The first concert will be a full symphony program by Damrosch and the orchestra. Thereafter the concerts will be arranged as far as possible in pairs. Each symphony program will be preceded by a piano recital by Damrosch. In these recitals he will discuss, explain and play important parts of the programs of the following week. In this way, it is expected that the programs can be made not only of the greatest entertainment value, but be made to constitute a liberal education in music as well.

Overture "Tannhauser"....Wagner
Polonaise for strings....Beethoven
Largo from "The New World"....
Symphony .....Dvorak
(a) Valse lente, from "Sylvia"
(b) Pizzicati, from "Sylvia"
Delibes
Wedding March from "Midsummernight's Dream"
Mendelssohn

Damrosch was one of the pioneer orchestra leaders in the country. Perhaps no other person has done as much as he for the development of music in America. He grew up with American music, and to many his name is synonymous with its growth. Today he is one of the most popular and best known of conductors.

AUDIO AMPLIFICATION INTENSELY DEVELOPED

Owners of Old Sets Can Modernize Them and Get Remarkable Improvement

The modern audio amplifying system is one branch of the radio set which has been under intense development. There are three major audio systems in use today These are transformer, resistance and impedance amplifiers. Which is the best is a matter of conjecture, and engineers will never agree in this matter.

However, audio reproduction is a matter of taste, and the type of amplifier that one likes best is judged purely by ear. It is a good practice to hear the various amplifiers before building one.

At one time it was generally accepted that the resistance amplifier was superior to all other forms, but transformer engineers got busy and the result is that a large majority of experts prefer the modern transformer system. The new transformers do not have the limitations of the old. Most of the new transformers reproduce over the entire scale without favoring any particular band. The capacity has been kept at a minimum, and the transformer iron which is used today does not saturate as did previous material.

If one has an old audio amplifier it would pay him to equip or have the set equipped with modern transformers or other audio systems. He will find a remarkable difference in reproduction.

Improved design of audio frequency amplifiers has also brought forward high voltage amplifiers which are commonly called power amplifiers. Such an amplifier furthers the improvement in audio quality by preventing overloading of the power tube. The power amplifier usually consists of one stage of audio frequency, a power tube, a rectifier tube and a step-up transformer for increasing the voltage of the house current and a filter system to smooth out the plate voltage.

The receiver used was one the new 6-tube, Model 345 Stewart-Warner sets, with the new 415 kers and Stewart-Warner 501AX tubes. Only 90 volts of "B" teries were used, and the set operated 5 loud speakers. The an was strung alongside the side of the car ahead, being suspended rods stuck in the light brackets, and the ground was run down one of the wheel trucks of the car. Picture shows the A Stewart ner set operating. At the right, nearest to the receiver, is Dan Hyland, St. Louis manager for the Stewart-Warner Corp. At his are Dan McNamara, general agent, passenger department, C. & and John Wilcox, radio engineer for Stewart-Warner.

A number of passengers kept the score of the game from the adcasting, and signed cards attesting the complete success of the periment. They were in constant radio touch with K S D.

PREDICTS MORE RADIO SALES

There is no chaos in radio—just an avalanche of optimism." Arthur Freed, secretary of the Freed-Eisemann Radio Corp. says after a coast-to-coast tour, visiting the Los Angeles Radio Show and the Radio World's Fair in New York.

"The public and the trade alike are greatly enthusiastic over the new radio year. I never saw so much confidence, and I am certain that all records in radio sales will be broken.

"The public realizes that early evils in radio have been eliminated and that with efficient instruments it will receive the finest programs ever put on the air.

"The test days of radio are passed. It has become an established necessity of our everyday life—and the scoffers of past years are now installing radio equipment in their homes."

NEW MURAD "SUPER SIX" RECEIVER EXTRA SELECTIVE

The new Murad "super six" receiving sets cover wave lengths from 190 to 550 meters and have single control. Each receiver is individually calibrated in wave lengths and kilocycles. The interior is enclosed in polished bakelite, no wiring being visible, and tube sockets are of the flexible type. This receiver is said to be ultra selective and sensitive, and was designed for use with high quality loud speakers.

The Murad type "B" receiver has 5 tubes, but also is said to be very selective and sensitive. It also has a dial calibrated in wave lengths. A distinctive gang condenser construction gives a very easy single control. It is said that one can instantly switch from station to station with this set by simply turning the tuning dial.

PLUG GIVES VOLUME CONTROL

The Centralab "Modu-Plug" illustrates the trend toward refinement in radio parts. It is of particular value to the owners of good radio receivers of former years that lack the niceties of tone and volume adjustment now considered essential. It is for sets with one or more jacks and replaces the ordinary loud speaker plug. A small knob varies a noiseless graphite resistance so that any desired degree of tone volume, from a whisper to maximum, may be quickly obtained without adjusting any other control on the set. It has the further advantage of varying the output impedance of the set, thus improving tone by matching the impedance of the set and the speaker. There is also a cord type "modu-plug" for sets not equipped with jacks, or for the user of two or more loud speakers who wishes to control their volume separately.

SELF-STABILIZED CIRCUIT IN FRESHMAN RADIO SETS

The circuit designed for Freshman receiving sets is said to be the only self-stabilized tuned radio frequency circuit ever originated. There are no small compensating controls, either for sensitivity, amplification or tuning. Three tuning controls afford a maximum amount of amplification, selectivity and volume without the necessity for further adjustment. The peculiarities of the circuit are such that no self-oscillation can take place, yet the amplication at all wave-lengths is very high, is practically the same and does not vary as with other types of tuned radio frequency receiver.

In the Freshman circuit, the radio frequency transformers are placed in a certain position with regard to the end plate of the tuning condenser. This is done for a specific reason, and this method is said to eclipse methods which employ additional and complicated controls. Automatic stabilization is the highest attainment in tuned radio frequency amplification.

at five-tube cost!

THIS Radiola 20 is one of the tried, tested and perfected RCA Radiolas that are far in advance of their day. It has five tubes—dry battery tubes that take very little current from the batteries—cost little to buy and little to run. But the last tube is a power tube that gives you volume with true reproduction. And for distance, when the number of tubes counts, it has a special sensitizing control that makes the five tubes as sensitive as much bigger sets.

For musical quality—and for fine performance—Radiola 20 has no competitor anywhere near it in price.

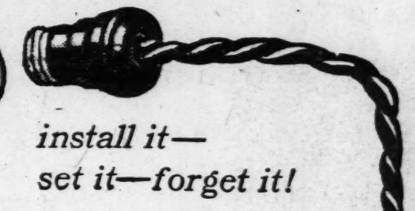
This CHARGER is different!



install it— set it—forget it!

So Different that it will revolutionize every former conception of "A" battery charging you ever had.

So Different that it eliminates not one, not some, but EVERY ONE of the inconveniences that have heretofore been considered necessary evils of "A" battery charging.

THE ELKON TRICKLE CHARGER takes care of your "A" batteries automatically. It charges them, and keeps them charged, tapering down and increasing, as current is needed, so that overcharging is impossible.

This charger is silent. It does not cause interference. It does not heat up. Short circuiting cannot harm it.

And most remarkable of all is an exclusive combination of advantages that places the Elkon immeasurably above anything yet invented.... it is bone-dry and rigidly solid. Just consider what this means. No water to replenish. No acid or alkali to fume or corrode cabinets. No tubes to burn out or break. No moving parts to get out of order.

Nothing to watch, replenish, or adjust. Install It—Set It—Forget It—it takes care of itself.

For nearly 5 years this unique rectification principle has been developed and tested. TWO NEW FADA RADIO SETS

Two new models known as Fada 8 and 6 are announced. Model 8 is totally shielded, embodying four stages of radio frequency amplification, detector and three stages of audio frequency amplification, built in both table and console cabinets.

Combination straight-line frequency and straight-line wave length condensers are used, the former for shorter waves and the latter for stations on the higher wave lengths. A control switch on the panel starts and stops operation of the set and also connects at will the first, second and third audio stages. A specially designed filter coil and stopping condenser in the last audio set adapts both sets for use with a power tube. Two controls are utilized for tuning. Provision is made for headphone reception. Model 6 is a six-tube receiver similar in construction but built only in a table cabinet.

TUNES IN 8 FOREIGN STATIONS

Those who assert that distance in radio is no longer enchanting should chat a while with H. Leadhetter, 218 West 104th street, New York City. Mr. Leadhetter was recently awarded a cup for results in reception. During the international radio tests Leadhetter tuned in eight foreign stations on 14 occasions. The Radio Digest awarded him second prize in all America. There were over 16,000 entrants in the hunt for DX stations.

Leadhetter used a stock Fada Neutrolette, which is a five-tube set of the neutrodyne variety. Out of five awards made at the time it is said this was the only award to one using a manufactured, trademarked, stock set.

MAKING 10,000 TUBES DA

With the addition of an new floor to its plant in Pro dence, R. I., the C. E. Mfg. Co said to have the largest plant voted exclusively to making ra tubes. A production of over 10 000 tubes per day is now carri on in this plant.

In the beginning this firm made only three types of tubes, known as "A," "B" and "C" types. Now 10 different types are made, to provide a tube for "every rad need." The line is complete, including power amplifiers for dry cell and storage battery use, a detector and a tube for resistance and impedance coupled amplifica tion.

A new output tube known as CeCo type J-71 has recently made its appearance. This will handle sufficient power to operate the largest loud speakers at full volume. It does not require high voltage plate supply. At 90 volts it will give 12 times the undistorted power of the ordinary type "A" tube, it is said. Another is the new CeCo "H" hard detector tube which is very sensitive.

NEW TYPE OF RADIO CONDENSER

Adaptable to a wide range of uses, a new type of Micadon condenser has been perfected by the Dubilier Condenser and Radio Corp. The condenser unit of mica and foil is protected by bakelite side plates. An aluminum shield covers the upper surface and a gasket underneath gives double protection against absorption of dampness. This design assures constant capacity under all operating conditions. The new condenser stands a 1500 volt D. C. test. It is constructed for ready assembly in series of parallel.

REPORTS NET SALES INCREASE

Charles Freshman Co., Inc., reports net sales for September of $1,007,575, an increase of 49 per cent as compared with $676,462 for September a year ago. Total sales from Jan. 1 to Sept. 30, 1926, were 50 per cent above sales in the corresponding period of 1925. President Freshman, in a statement to stockholders, says unfilled orders on hand are far in excess of any volume previously on the books.

ONE HOUSING FOR POWER UNITS

Among the new power units much in evidence this season are several which combine "B" power eliminators and amplification features under the one housing. In a unit is the Glenn L. Martin A B amplipower, which uses a rectifier tube such as CX-312 and a new CX-371 power tube. The detector and amplifier adjustments up to 200 volts are made by means of variable control knobs. The instrument is said to not only increase volume, but also add to tional clarity and fullness of tone.

RADIO PROGRAMS OVER PHONE WIRES PLANNED IN ST. PAUL

An experiment intended to give telephone subscribers of St. Paul, Minn., radio broadcast programs picked up by a central receiving station is being carried on by the Tri-State Telephone & Telegraph Co. It is proposed to install loud speakers in the residences of the telephone subscribers, and offer them entertainment picked up by a centrally located radio receiver.

Officials of the company say that they do not plan to superimpose the programs on the regular telephone lines, but to utilize spare wires for this purpose. So far it has proved feasible, and it is reported that less distortion and interference is experienced by the subscribers. On the other hand, it has its disadvantages over radio since the recipients must be satisfied with what selections are sent them.

KELLOGG ONLY RECEIVER USING INDUCTIVE TUNING

In the new Kellogg receiving sets, models 507 and 508 are all the developments of the past year, such as shielding, three stages of radio frequency amplification and wide spacing of parts.

The tuning system is found in no other receivers made in this country. The designers call it inductive tuning, since the wave-length range is covered by varying inductances rather than capacities, as is usually done. It is the usual practice to use fixed coils in each stage and vary the condensers shunted across them. The chief advantage in inductive tuning is that it gives extremely even sensitivity over the entire broadcast range.

CAUSES OF NOISY RECEPTION

Most of the noise heard in the receiver is picked up by the aerial and this noise may be atmospheric, inter-station interference, leaky electric lines, code station interference or just a hundred and one whistles or squeals from improperly operated sets in the neighborhood.

NEW ENGLAND STATIONS PICK UP 'STATIC' OVER CARDS HERE

The speakers and head phones of radio fans as far East as Massachusetts rang with the din of celebration of the Cardinals' victory when Director Rueppel of WEW, St. Louis University's broadcasting station, placed the microphone outside on Grand boulevard and picked up the noise made at Grand and Olive last Sunday evening.

A card was received at the university stating that Jay M. Harpell, Worcester, Mass., Oct. 10, at 8:45 p. m. Eastern time, tuned in and heard the cheering and cowbells clearly. He must be a Cardinal "rooter," for he writes "The static from the outside of your window, as you called the noise made by the celebration on your city's street sounded most beautiful."

NEW TYPE OF LOUD SPEAKER

The "lost chords" of radio transmission have been found, it is asserted by the Dictograph Products Corporation of New York City, which has just brought out a radically new type of speaker—the Dictograph roll speaker.

As the name implies, the Dictograph utilizes two rolls, or hollow cylinders, of different size, for sound transmission, and these give to the new instrument radically different yet artistic design in addition to introducing a new principle of tone reproduction. The upper or smaller roll handles the high notes, while the lower and larger cylinder reaches and catches the deep notes.

"CRESCENDON"
When, on ordinary radios, ears must strain to catch a station miles away, a turn of the Crescendon on Crosley radios instantly swells reception to room-filling volume. An exclusive Crosley feature.

ALL-METAL SHIELDED CHASSIS
This truly great radio achievement, found in several Crosley sets, furnishes a substantial frame for mounting elements, produces excellent alignment of condensers, shields the units from each other, prevents interstage, improves the stability of the circuit, increases selectivity and saves costs by standardizing this phase of manufacture.

THE SINGLE-DIAL STATION SELECTOR
Nothing in radio equals the joy or the convenience of single dial control. Crosley single drum control enables you to find the stations sought without log book or "tuning."

"THE ACUMINATORS"
Crosley Acuminators permit tuning in—loud and clear—weak stations passed over and entirely missed by ordinary single dial radios. In tuning high powered and local stations they are not used.

USE OF POWER TUBE
Power tube adaptability marks the Crosley "5-50," "5-75" and "RFL" sets.

U. S. AND EUROPE EXCHANGING WEATHER REPORTS BY RADIO

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16.—An exchange of weather reports between the United States and Europe has been arranged by the United States Weather Bureau and now is being accomplished by means of radio. Analysis of the European weather reports, it is believed, will mean more accurate American forecasts.

Heretofore the only daily weather report sent from the United States to European stations by radio was the dispatch sent at midstation at Lyons. Under the new arrangement a report is sent out daily by the Bellevue high frequency set for French, British and night to the French high power other European stations.

Charger Needs Little Attention.

The trickle charger perfected by the Vesta Battery Corporation, once attached to a light socket and battery, requires attention such as an addition of purewater only about every two months, and solves the radio power problem for those who are now using batteries. There is a still further improvement in a Vesta unit which includes an "A" battery, trickle charger and built-in hydrometer, all in one celar glass case. This is called an "A" power unit. It occupies less space than an ordinary radio "A" battery, and provides a neat, clean power unit. The level of the solution in battery and trickle charger is always in plain view, and the condition of the battery is seen at a glance.

PROGRESS SHOWN IN RADIO VACUUM TUBE

Broadcasting Brought Changes in Detecting and Amplifying Devices.

Properly termed the heart of the set, vacuum tubes have kept pace with the speedy progress made in the radio receiver as a whole.

Models of detecting and amplifying devices that appeared obsolete before the days of broadcasting would hardly be recognized as radio tubes.

While the early instruments were cumbersome, their delicacy required that they be carefully handled. Sometimes they performed well but more often their life was short. Some of them contained a double filament, one to be used in case the other burned out. In addition some did not have a base, merely having protruding wires to be soldered to the wiring of the receiver.

Broadcasting, which really gave the impetus to radio to carry it to its present status, quickly brought rapid changes in the tubes. The current consumption of the early types was heavy, being one ampere per tube. A three tube set of that would draw as heavily from the storage battery as does the modern 12 tube outfit.

Filament Changed.

One of the first great changes was the design of a filament that would not require so much current. This model cut the consumption to one quarter ampere and has become the modern standard. With the changes in the design of the filament other improvements were incorporated, such as the replacement of the old type metal base with one made from bakelite, and so the contact prongs at the bottom of the tube were lengthened to provide a better socket connection.

Further efforts saw the production of special amplifiers and detectors. Included were the so-called power tubes, which, with higher plate voltage, gave great volume. The power tube is intended largely for use as an amplifier. In addition there have appeared improved detector tubes whose principal purpose is great sensivity, with an increase in volume.

Consumes Less Power.

While all of the larger types require five volts and are intended for operation from a storage battery or its equivalent, similar progress has been made in the development of an instrument intended for use with dry cells. Two types have been provided, one drawing a voltagel of 1.1, while the other consumes but 60 milliamperes at three volts. Power tubes of the type also have been produced.

Attempts have been made to elimination of the filament lighting battery providing direct current to the designs of a tube operating from alternating current through a voltage stepdown transformer. There has appeared an improved "A C" tube operating at eight volts announced as a big step over an earlier model which required four. Use of alternating current as the heating element required considerable change in the tube design.

Tube construction has been extended so as to include parts of other units used in set construction.

RADIO EXPERIMENT ERA IS PAST, SAYS CROSLEY

Future Changes in Devices Likely to Be Only Refinements, He Asserts.

"The radio industry today is in the best position it has attained in its short, sensational history of six years," says Powel Crosley Jr., president of the Crosley Radio Corporation. "Events of the past nine months have placed it on a firm business foundation. About the only cloud that can be detected is the lack of proper regulatory legislation due to the failure of Congress to attack the problem in a businesslike manner. But it is safe to assume that the industry itself will not take advantage of this lack of legal restraint.

"The history of the radio business during the past year has done much to improve the industry from the manufacturing end. The radio manufacturers of today have successfully passed through the hectic and costly troubles incident to sudden expansion and over production that all new and rapidly growing business unfortunately fall heir to. As a result of these experiences the industry is far sounder than ever before.

"Much of the same experience has been had by the selling outlets. Dealers, wholesale or retail, that were not properly fitted to the exacting demands of selling and servicing radios have taken up other work. Those dealers who remain have profited by past experience with the result that they are better trained and fitted to properly care for the wants of the radio public.

Another factor that should have a material influence on increasing sales is the fact that the public realizes that the experimental days of radio are over. The more conservative of our population have delayed installing radio in their homes until they were assured there would be no revolutionary changes. That time now has been reached—not that the radio is perfect, but all its fundamentals have been standardized and from now on it is likely that the only changes will be in the line of refinements."

Crystal Set Requires Care.

Because the sensitive spot on a crystal detector is very small, not more than a pin-point, the crystal should be inclosed so dust and dirt cannot collect on it. If the mineral is not inclosed, it is difficult to keep a good point. The ordinary crystal may be cleaned with a

WILLARD 'A' AND 'B' POWER UNITS FOR RADIO ON MARKET

After several years of experimentation, Willard "A" and "B" power units for radio sets are on the market. The "A" power unit contains in the single case an "A" battery, a bulb type rectifier, a charger designed either for a trickle charge or two amperes, and also arranged for the charging of "B" storage batteries. The battery in the "A" power unit is a new style glass cased Willard of a capacity of 40 amperes. The charging unit is separated from the battery by a double thickness of steel to keep heat from the battery. A Westinghouse two-ampere rectigon bulb is used in the charging compartment. Three differently colored balls visible through a window show the condition of charge of the battery at all times.

It furnishes three voltages, a detector voltage, and low and high amplifier voltages, with a maximum power of 150 volts. The detector and low amplifier voltages are variable. The rectifier in the unit utilizes a chemical solution which will not harm clothing, rugs or furniture if spilled accidentally.

Old Time Songs on WLIB

Freddie Daw, popular radio artist, will be heard Tuesday in the first of a series of programs of old time songs, over WLIB, the Liberty Weekly station on the Drake Hotel. Daw prides himself on having one of the largest collections of old songs. Listeners who like the old time melodies will enjoy hearing the first of his programs. He will be heard Oct. 23, in the second old time program.

Low filament current tubes will run a long time off a storage battery without charging it.

Buy condensers this way

Dubilier Condenser Type 901
IT is the working voltage that determines the life and efficiency of the condensers you use. Buy "working voltage" as well as capacity.
All DUBILIER CONDENSERS are clearly marked with their recommended maximum D.C. working voltage. This tells you exactly what voltage your condensers will stand in continuous service.
The new DUBILIER CONDENSERS—Types 901, 902, and 903 may be used for any purpose where the potential at continuous operation does not exceed their rated working voltages of 160, 400 and 600 volts D.C. respectively. Each type may be obtained in 1, 2, 4 and 6 mfd. sizes at prices ranging from $1.50 to $13.50.
Look for the DUBILIER name and the rated working voltage on the condensers you buy for battery eliminators, power amplifiers and receivers.

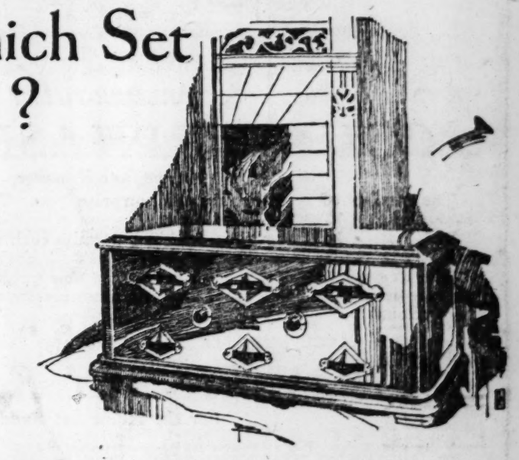
Will Price or Performance Decide Which Set You'll Buy?
You get exactly what you pay for. Performance, which gives true radio satisfaction, is not on the bargain counter. If performance guide you, you will have no regrets.


COMPARE Grebe reception with that of other sets; and don't buy until you do! Note the tone quality, the range, the selectivity, the ease with which low-wave stations are separated and tuned, the volume of distant as well as local stations.
There are very definite reasons why the Synchrophase excels in all these respects — exclusive Grebe developments, four of which are illustrated below.
In addition, with the Grebe Flexible Unit Control you have a one, two, or three-dial controlled set at will; the Dial Light makes the tuning dial visible in dark corners; the Protective Fuse protects B batteries against defective tubes.
And back of it all is the Grebe name, standard of quality for over seventeen years.
Ask a Grebe dealer to demonstrate the Synchrophase and explain the reasons for the unusual reception it gives.

543 Sending Stations in Canada.

Of the 543 transmitting stations in Canada, 67 are radiophone broadcast stations, 356 are amateur and experimental, 67 conduct regular telegraphic circles between points in the Dominion or with stations abroad, and the balance are operated to provide facilities for communication with an "aid to navigation" service to ships on the Great Lakes, Atlantic and Pacific.

NEW CURRENT SUPPLY UNITS

The new Majestic current supply units include the Majestic B current supply for alternating current, the Majestic Standard B, designed for sets having not more than seven 201A type tubes or six 201A plus one 135 to 150 volt powerful tubes; the Majestic Super B, for sets up to 12 tubes, including the new 135 to 150 volt power tubes, and the Majestic Master B. The latter has three adjustable resistances, controlling all voltages. This is essential on sets such as Radiola 23, 28 and 30, where the current draw is very low. The maximum voltage output is sufficiently high to operate not only UV-112 and UV-120 power tubes (135 to 150 volts), but also the latest super-power tube, U-171 (180 volts).

ASTONISHINGLY SELECTIVE

A test of the Slocum "Resonator" receiving set, which is designed to make four tubes as effective as eight and 10 tubes, was made in the county Thursday night, and the set, which is St. Louis-built, showed great selectivity. The Slosum set operates with either one or two tuning controls as one elects.

It was operated Thursday night with an aerial 150 feet long with lead in additional, yet its selectivity, using only one dial, was astonishing. Operated with both controls, and with the aerial compensator in use, it separated stations on the proverbial hair line. The tone quality was excellent, even on DX stations.

FIVE NEW STATIONS LICENSED, FIVE CHANGE WAVE LENGTHS

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16.—Five new stations have been licensed by the Department of Commerce while five stations have changed their wave lengths. The new stations are: KXRO, Brott Laboratories, Seattle, Wash., 240m; WDXL, DXL Radio Corporation, Detroit, Mich., 296.9m; WEDC, Emil Denemark, Chicago, Ill., 422.3m; KGCX, First State Bank, Vida, Mont., 240m; KSEI, the KSEI Broadcasting Association, Pocatello, Idaho, 260.7m.

The changes follow: WRNY, New York, from 374.8 meters to 373.8; KFWC, San Bernardino, Cal., from 211.1 to 291.1 meters; KFQB, Fort Worth, Tex., from 263 to 508.2 meters; WEMC, Berrien Springs, Mich., from 285.5 to 315.6 meters, and WGES, Chicago, from 249.9 to 315.6 meters.

The three New York stations have been awarded licenses. They are: WJUG, owned by Uda Benjamin Ross; WKBQ, the Star Light Amusement Park, Inc., and WTRC, the Twentieth Assembly District Regular Republican Club, Inc. The wave lengths chosen by these newcomers are: WJUG, 516.9 meters; WKBQ, 285 meters; WTRC, 239.9 meters.

Another station licensed by the Department of Commerce was WBRL, the Booth Radio Laboratories, at Tilton, N. H., which chose 365 meters, a potential source of interference with station WHN, New York, and the two Kansas City stations, WDAF and WHB.

Interference also may be expected from operation of WJUG, which adopted the wave length on which WJR-WCX at Detroit has transmitted its programs for some time.

WMAL, formerly a 50-watter operating in Washington at the bottom of the wave bands, has tuned its transmitters to 299.8 meters and boosted its power.

Radio Set Given to Every Man on Cardinal Team

Members of the Cardinals and the radio sets which were presented to them Tuesday at Sportsman's Park as a result of the promise of the Atwater Kent Manufacturing Co. to give every official and member of the team winning the world series one of the new Atwater Kent 6-tube sets and a loud speaker. The receivers were presented to the players by N. S. Brown, president of the Brown & Hall Supply Co., Atwater Kent distributer in the Billionarea. Sam Breadon, president of the Cardinals, commented that this was the most liberal present made, to the St. Louis players.

When Testing Batteries.

It is important that batteries be tested when connected to radio sets and with the tubes turned on. Many fans make the mistake of testing batteries when they are disconnected from all circuits. This does not show their true condition, as they show a greater charge when unconnected than when under their usual load.

COMPLETE KITS NOW FOR SET BUILDERS

Shielded Individual Units, Ready for Use, Make Construction Easier Than in Past.

Two or three years ago most radio circuits were built from the parts of many or several different manufacturers. To find all of the essentials in one radio store was a fortunate occurrence. Frequently the experimenter had to search far and wide to get even substitute parts that worked nearly as well as those specified by the designer of the circuit.

This will be the year of complete kits. No longer does one have to shop here, there and everywhere before he can even start to built his receiver.

Most Kits Now Complete.

Today nine out of ten kits can be got complete, with each part carefully designed and co-ordinated with every other part for best operation of the completed receiver. Almost every kit is accompanied by an adequate instruction booklet. Many of the manufacturers suggest the wire harness or complete color-code method of wiring. In many instances the cable is printed in color in the booklet showing just where each wire goes.

The general tendency of the designers of this year's kits is thoroughly to shield the radio frequency side of the set to increase selectivity and decrease the local noise pick-up. Usually the number of tuned radio frequency stages is increased to three. The slight loss in signal strength through absorption losses in the shielding is then more than recovered. It is obvious, also, that the trap circuit effect of the additional stage will give the operator tremendous aid in breaking through locals for distance.

The addition of the extra stage of radio frequency has made some means of oscillation control necessary in this year's kit. This may take the form of special circuits, such as the neutrodyne or mechanically or manually operated controls. The last-named is popular and usually takes the form of a variable high resistance rheostat in series with the plate supply of one or more of the radio frequency tubes. This method has been improved somewhat in some models of the new kits by addition of a choke coil and condenser in conjunction with the rheostat for smoothness and ease of control.

Individual Complete Units.

Several years ago the first tuned radio frequency amplifiers were tuned by varying the coupling of one o. more of the transformer primaries in relation to their secondaries. This control is coming back this year and several nationally exploited kits will contain this circuit.

Another popular system of R. F. control is exemplified in many of the new kits. A now prominent radio manufacturer conceived the idea of placing his radio frequency transformer adjacent to the metal and plates of the variable condensers. His theory was that the higher frequencies would suffer greater losses than those at a higher wave length and that fairly uniform amplification would result over the entire broadcast band. It worked notwithstanding, it did work and work well. This method is today probably the most popular of the various oscillation controls mentioned.

Another five-year-old idea being used today is that of the individually complete unit type of kit. That is, it is possible to purchase a complete stage of radio frequency, a detector circuit or an audio amplifier mounted and ready for wiring. Most of these units, particularly in the case of the R. F. units, are completely shielded. In this case the radio frequency stages may be built up as high as four in many of the new kits without undesirable oscillation becoming evident. The advantages of flexibility and ease of construction of this system are obvious.

For the Notebook.

Radio waves penetrate insulating material, but are absorbed by metal.

Two or three weeks is about as long as the average battery lasts on one charge.

A radio listener who insistently twists the dials of his or her set might be compared to a movie fan who entered and left 15 or 20 different motion picture theaters in a night.

RADIO POWER UNITS BECOMING POPULAR

Heavy Demand for "B" Eliminators and "A" Battery Substitutes Develop.

Circuits have been modified to permit the use of sensitive detector and powerful amplifier tubes brought out in the last few months, thereby giving the receivers greater volume and a decided tone improvement.

The most efficient power amplifier tubes so far released, such as the UX-171 and CX-371, are designed that their greatest sensitivity is attained when applied to around 180 volts on the plate and using 40 volts of C battery.

This has brought about the necessity for ample current supply. When using over 200 volts of B battery, space requirements and maintenance costs increase to burdensome amounts. The new power tubes alone requires a current of 30 milleamperes, which, when combined with the drain from the detector tubes, lowers the voltage of a battery block to the point where distortion in reception occurs. So B eliminators are rapidly growing in popularity.

Great strides have been made in utilizing the one inexhaustible supply of electric current—the lighting supply—for taking the place of batteries for the plate supply. This is accomplished by stepping up the regular alternating current and passing it through a suitable rectifier and filter system to produce smooth d. c. without pulsations or ripples.

There are also a number of power units and they bid fair to increase rapidly.

When the line voltage goes up or down, as is the case where isolated power plants supply the current, the slightest variation upsets the balance, unless the B and C voltages are supplied from the same source when variations in B voltage are offset by variations in C voltage and the resulting plate current value remains balanced at the point of best tone quality.

This radio power supply unit will deliver 85 milleampers at 200 volts with the detector voltage variable from five to 90 volts, the intermediate amplifier B supply from 125 volts and each C supply from none to 45 volts individually, thereby permitting the exact voltages to be used to operate the tubes in the receiver at their greatest efficiency.

PROGRAM OF ANGLO-PERSIAN

The program by the White Anglo-Persians from KSD, Friday evening, will offer two unusual selections, the first an "Inca Tango" by the Peruvian composer, Valdera. This is one of a series based up on the ceremonials of these ancient sun worshipers. The other concluding number, "Naomi," is an intermezzo composed by Director Louis Katzman. As the basis of this composition Katzman has gone back to the harassed woman of Bethlehem who, driven from home by famine, at last returned to her own people and to peace and happiness. The opening number will be an Egyptian dance, "Zumyrrud," by Stoughton. The Anglo-Persians will be the first to broadcast this selection, the second of a series of Oriental numbers by a composer who gives great promise of future ability. Additional selections will be, "Valse Trieste" (Sibelius); selections from "Faust" (Gounod), and arrangement of "Kiss Me Again" (Victor Herbert).

KDKA BROADCASTS OVER 10,000 MILES WITH SHORT WAVE

Program Transmitted From Pittsburg Received Clearly at Melbourne and Relayed All Over Australia.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Oct. 16.—An special program for Australian reception was successfully transmitted on a short wave length to Melbourne, Australia, about 10,000 miles distant, from Westinghouse Radio Station KDKA at 5 a. m. Miss S. David M. Dow, Australian secretary to the United States, opened the program.

After Dow had spoken on behalf of his government, eulogizing the use of radio broadcasting as an influence for promoting closer relationship between distant peoples, messages of good-will from some of the leading publishers and journalists of the United States were read by David Worrall, Melbourne world representative, and Louis L. Sidman, KDKA announcer.

Among those who sent special greetings were Ralph Pulitzer, editor of the New York World; Kent Cooper of the Associated Press; Roy Howard, United Press; Cyrus H. K. Curtis, Philadelphia Ledger and New York Post, and Arthur Brisbane of the Hearst publications.

Victor Sandek, KDKA's musical director, supervised the entertainment portion of the broadcast, which included solos by the Misses Mary Evans and Ethel Walker, well-known Australian concert singers.

Relayed Over Continent.

The distance traversed by this broadcast, the success of which is officially assured by the results of the preliminary test program transmitted from KDKA, is approximately 10,000 aerial miles.

The fact that the program was relayed at Melbourne for reception over the whole of Australia, a continent which has an area greater than the United States, adds tremendously to the magnitude of the undertaking. Some idea of the vast distance, which KDKA's broadcast covered in a split second, may be gained by recalling that the fastest mail service obtainable between Melbourne and this city today is in the neighborhood of 26 days or approximately four weeks. So great is the difference in time between the two points that the program, leaving here at 5 o'clock in the morning, reached Australia just as residents there were about to start their evening's entertainment, that is, 8 o'clock, Australian time. As indicated by the test program yesterday, voices speaking in Pittsburg were heard not only in the cities of the Antipodes but by inhabitants in the northern Australian wilderness, whose only contact with the world, aside from radio, is mail that comes every six months.

Picked Up in Florida.

Concerning the first test program three messages reporting successful reception have been received by C. W. Horn, superintendent of radio operations for the Westinghouse company.

The following message from amateur station, A 7 DX, Hobart, Tasmania (200 miles from Melbourne), was picked up by Mr. Watkins of amateur station, 4 LK, Florida, and telegraphed to KDKA: "Your whole transmission was very strong. Pretty modulation and music good."

The Melbourne Herald cabled that the test program had been received satisfactorily.

"Program received O. K." was the word received from Australian amateur station, 3 DC. This message was picked up in Florida by R. A. Rossetter of 4 TVD.

The third broadcast of the Australian series went on the air the following morning, Oct. 6, at 5 o'clock. The purpose of transmitting a test program and two following on successive days was to demonstrate that continuous communication between the Antipodes has become a practical realization.

TO BROADCAST TRUE TALES OF ARCTIC CRUISE

True tales of Arctic adventures of polar bears shot with bow and arrow and captured alive with a cowboy's lariat, of charging bull walruses, of treacherous ice-floes and hidden rocks and a narrow escape from the horrors of a fierce Arctic winter—will feature the Eveready Hour program of Tuesday, Oct. 19, through KSD direct from WEAF, New York.

George Palmer Putnam, who directed the American Museum Greenland Expedition, last summer, with members of his crew of explorers, hunters and thrill seekers, will be the guests of the Eveready Hour on that evening. Before the party sailed last June on the sturdy little fishing schooner Morrissey, for Northern Greenland, Putnam told the Eveready Hour audience about plans for the trip. Next Tuesday evening, he, H. C. Raven, Captain Bob Bartlett, skipper of the ship which carried Peary north on his dash to the pole in 1909, Knud Rasmussen, Danish explorer, Daniel Willard Streeter, and other members of the expedition will tell of the thrills they experienced in carrying out those plans.

PLENTY OF MYSTERY STILL ABOUT RADIO

"Winter Blanketing," Fading, Static and "Dead Spots" Never Adequately Understood.

There is still plenty of mystery in radio. What do we know about the "winter blanketing" that interfered with reception last year, or about fading and static? The use of radio for controlling mobile bodies and the transmission of light, heat and power may be possible. But, excepting the controlling of mobile bodies, few experiments even have been carried on in these special problems. Short-wave transmission, the latest economical and practical means of communication, is still not thoroughly understood or mastered.

Most engineers admit that we know little about what happens in the ether after a message leaves the station until it is received at another point, and in this field alone considerable research must be carried out. Only a short time ago several Congressmen indulged in a vigorous debate over what "ether" was, and as a result the word, usually used to describe the media through which radio waves are sent, was left out of proposed legislation, since the Congressmen could not agree on what it was.

Among a few of the other mysteries of radio which still withstand the efforts toward science and engineers are the effects of the Aurora Borealis and sun spots on radio and the cause of the so-called dead spots, where reception of practically any type of radio waves seems impossible.

The adaptation of radio has been applied to many practical uses besides ordinary communication. It is used to operate relays which throw switches in power houses at considerable distances from the main plant; it is used in several ways to aid navigators of the sea and air, and is now being adapted to railroads as a means of control and as a safety device. It is also found of great benefit in transmitting time signals practically throughout the world, which enables scientists and explorers to establish accurately points on the surface of the earth. Its use in peace is general, and its use in war includes many applications besides for communication, which the military and naval authorities will not reveal or discuss.

Although many practical uses have been found for radio, there are many possibilities which only the farsighted scientists can predict and only the skilled and experienced engineers can carry out.

STROMBERG-CARLSON SETS NOW USE ANTENNA OR LOOP

Its six-tube, totally shielded receiver, developed and put on the market last fall, was so successful that the Stromberg-Carlson Co. for its 1926-27 model, has left the circuit design virtually unchanged. The three radio frequency stages and the detector stage are totally shielded in heavy copper, seamless "cans." However, several refinements and improvements have been incorporated that make the new receiver universal in application and considerably broadens its usefulness.

The Stromberg-Carlson engineers have realized that in the large cities there are many places where a receiver designed to use only an antenna cannot operate, due to shielding effect of the steel framework of the building in which the owner was located. So the new receivers have been made so that loop or antenna may be used.

It was also discovered that with the ordinary receiver three switches would have to be operated if A and B socket-power units were used. In the new "universal" type receivers, provision has been made so that all such apparatus may be operated by the filament switch on the receiver panel, cutting down the operations from three to one.

The receivers will utilize any of the power tubes in the last audio stage, provisions being made on the terminal board for connection of necessary B and C voltages. This choice of tubes makes it possible for the receiver to be equipped for tone quality or distance reception or both, depending on choice of tubes for detector and last audio stage.

Thus the receivers are "universal" in every respect and fulfill all the demands which location or individual requirements may impose.

MODELED FOR HUMAN THROAT

The human throat was taken as the model for the new models of the Teletone loud speakers. There is no more perfect sound chamber than the human larynx. It is capable of producing tremendous volume from a comparatively small space. Still, this was not the entire solution of the loud speaker problem. The right kind of wood had to be used and shaped so as to give, or rather preserve, the tones developed by the sound chamber. The underlying principle of the Stradivarius violin had to be incorporated into the design of the wooden parts. That is, the correct thickness of wood had to be placed at the right position on the sounding board.

The new teletone speakers are attractive pieces of furniture. The exterior case is of fine wood hand finished and rubbed to show grain and polish.

THE Aero B Amplipower makes radio a Musical instrument. It makes possible perfect reproduction of every note, deep resonant bass and shrill high notes. Amplipower also increases volume and supplies all "B" current for the set.

RADIO CAMERAPHONE FINDS ORE DEPOSITS

New Device Readily Detects Metallic Substances Deeply Imbedded in Earth.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16.—Prospectors who sought deposits of precious metals near the surface of the earth are practically through for two reasons: These visible outcrops have practically all been discovered and cleaned up; and the remaining ore of value is buried too deep for them to discover. Now comes the modern, scientific prospector who has applied radio to this task of searching out the earth's hiding places of its valuables. Considerable success has been achieved by William A. Sharpe of Denver with his radio cameraphone.

Sharpe's cameraphone, according to his description in a report to the American Mining Congress, consists of three units—the radio, broadcaster the receiver and the photographic motion picture camera. The transmitter sends radio waves into the earth, extending to regulated progressive depths, the length of the wave advancing one foot at a time. This radio wave is returned by a closed circuit to the receiver, where the tone pitch of the sound varies according to the mineral, metal or substance at the far terminal of the wave.

Tone Pitch Higher.

Metallic substances produce a much higher tone pitch than any other mineral, and recognizable variations in tone are produced by all different minerals. These tones might be described as radio echoes, although they are not so technically.

The photographic unit of the radio cameraphone is fitted with a vibratory illuminated thin metal foil about one inch square, suspended by a fine hair spring in contact with the diaphragm of the telephone mechanism in the radio receiver. The illumination of this foil is reflected in a magnifying mirror that intensifies it 30 or 40 times, so that the tiniest vibration is caught.

The reflected light of the foil in the magnifying mirror is thrown on a ground glass screen, the vibrations appearing as lights and shadows, and these are photographed by a regular motion picture camera, which is automatically exposed. One picture is taken with each foot of advancement in the radio wave length and the photographic film developed from these exposures may then be thrown on a screen by a regular motion picture projecting machine.

Large Meteor Located.

Following his perfection of the radio seismograph in 1925 to aid in locating pools of oil and gas as well as water, Sharpe discovered he could detect metallic substances in the ground with even greater ease and with less study than he could soil, rock, liquids and gases. Experiments showed his radio apparatus reacted very definitely when metals were tested with his earth "sounding" apparatus.

A most illuminating demonstration was obtained when the radio camera photographed the steel beams of the seven floors of a Denver office building with great clearness.

One of the most interesting accomplishments of the radio cameraphone was the location of a mysterious meteor which buried itself in the earth centuries ago at Meteor Crater in Northern Arizona. Although many fragments of the shooting star were scattered for many miles around the crater, the large iron core that tore the hole had never been found.

Shaft sinking and drilling were fruitless but pictures taken by the radio cameraphone showed that the iron body of the meteor lay 100 feet south of the rim of the crater, and at a depth of 1410 feet. This showed that the meteor had hit the earth at an angle.

Ore Areas Detected.

Another important test was made in the Gold Dust section of the Las Animas mining district in Southwestern New Mexico. The mineralization there consisted of complex ores, mainly those containing lead, iron and manganese at the top of the limestone and those containing gold, silver and copper deposited in single veins or sheer zones in the andesite. The instrument responded very sensitively to the metallic enrichment in the veins and ore bodies, so that the lean and rich areas were readily located.

In the tests made in the Las Animas district 18 new veins were found, all of which have been prospected with good results.

FARRAND CONE SPEAKER PROVES QUALITY IN TEST

The advance in sound reproducers has been as great as in receiving sets. An illustration of the truth of this is the new Farrand cone loud speaker, which was tested for several nights the past week in St. Louis. This speaker has a walnut laminated wood cone, which handles voices and instrumental music with that greatly to be desired naturalness.

The Farrand was tested with a number of receivers in various price fields. The results were uniformly good, whether a local or a distant station was tuned in and whatever the volume. With some of the sets fitted with power tubes and using the highest grade transformers tone quality was extremely fine.

A Very Good Speaker.

A 36-inch cone has been added to the Farrand line. This cone may be used with a pedestal, or suspended from the wall, and is especially designed for large rooms or other locations where great volume is desired.

RECEIVES VERA CRUZ STATION 15 TIMES ON STANDARD SET

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, Oct. 16.—Results so remarkable that they would be almost unbelievable, were it not for positive verification, have been achieved by B. E. Banks, 4656 Dover street, Chicago, with a stock five-tube radio frequency receiver. Fifteen times during the recent summer Banks heard CYD, Vera Cruz, Mexico, and had his reception verified by Ramon Ferdanez, owner of the station. Reception was had on Aug. 16, when, Ferdanez writes, CYD was sending on a 275-meter wave length and using only 250 watts.

But more remarkable than this was Banks' reception of 2LO, London, and 5XX, Daventry. Both of these English stations were heard on loud speaker in daylight. Positive verification was had from both of them.

Banks bought his radio equipment over the counter and it consists of a Thorola set and loud speaker, standard tubes and a B battery eliminator. He experimented with his antenna equipment until he was able to get the results.

BASEBALL GAMES RECEIVED BY RADIO ON WABASH TRAIN

One of the new seven-tube Atwater Kent receivers was used successfully last Saturday to give passengers on the Wabash train from St. Louis to Chicago the world series game play by play. The set was supplied and operated by the Brown-Hall Supply Co.

REALIZATION of all that you have looked for in a radio set! You've wanted, first of all, reproduction that is warm and "live", that has depth and power, that is, in short, realism. You get it in this receiver because of the wonderful new Kellogg developments in both set and speaker.

You've wanted range and selectivity such that you could not only clearly and completely separate the locals, but also go out between them for distant stations. Three stages of radio frequency of advanced design give you the first—thorough shielding and sound engineering that is the result of experience, give you the second.

In these 1926-27 models, Kellogg contributes to Radio two important advances—a loud speaker with 44-inch scientifically designed air column and an exclusively Kellogg system known as Inductive Tuning. This speaker achievement is built into console model 508.

Through the use of the balanced Inductive Tuning system, models 507 and 508 are equally sensitive at all wave lengths. Kellogg's 29 years of telephone experience have indeed worked wonders in this newer field—Radio.

See these new sets at the show—Inspect the construction of Kellogg's realistic-reproduction speaker—let those in the booth show you how easy it is to tune a Kellogg set. Any Kellogg dealer will be glad to demonstrate the performance.

THE MOVING PICTURE ALBUM

By Robert E. Sherwood

THE season is now open for "world premieres" of super-special feature pictures, and the New York police force is being increased to handle the rush. Last week witnessed the first performance of Syd Chaplin in "The Better 'Ole" at the Colony, and this week brought D. W. Griffith's latest effort, "The Sorrows of Satan," to the George M. Cohan Theater. Both pictures are scheduled to run "indefinately"—which may mean anything from two weeks to ten years, depending entirely upon how the public feels about it.

The opening of "The Better 'Ole" was not so much a moving picture event as the latest demonstration of that marvelous invention, the Vitaphone, which has already been tried out in conjunction with the film, "Don Juan." On hand for the occasion was another of those brilliant audiences (all audiences at first world premieres are always "brilliant," which is another way of saying that many people wear evening clothes and don't pay for their tickets). Will H. Hays was there, talking earnestly with Jack Dempsey and Estelle Taylor. The nature of this conversation will never be known, but it is reasonable to assume that the tactful Mr. Hays avoided any discussion of pugilistic topics, and that no allusion was made to the Marine Corps. Elsewhere in the theater I observed Patsy Ruth Miller, Clive Brook, Adolph Zukor, William Powell, Helen Ferguson, Vera Gordon and Hope Hampton. Miss Hampton is as essential to events of this kind as is the projection machine.

The Vitaphone program in connection with "The Better 'Ole" is far more entertaining than that offered with "Don Juan." The Brothers Warner, promoters of the enterprise, have seen fit to make the thing a little less operatic and more popular. Reinald Werrenrath starts off with "The Long, Long Trail," and is followed by George Jessel, with a humorous monologue; The Aristocrats, four talented melody boys; Elsie Janis, with a chorus of war veterans; Gene and Willie Howard, doing their usual stuff, and finally the Mr. Al Jolson, who sings "April Showers" and "Rock-a-Bye Your Baby With a Dixie Melody." All of them good, but Mr. Jolson is no less than sensational. His expressive face and his thrilling voice—even his urgent gasps—reproduce perfectly. When he had finished, the audience applauded vehemently, actually delivering that he might be persuaded to come back and sing again if I clapped hard enough. But shows how effective the Vitaphone is. In one respect, the Vitaphone is deficient. Comedians, appearing before and through it, don't know how long to wait for their laughs. Mr. Jessel put over one joke after another, but much that he said was drowned out by the appreciative roars of merriment. Had he been there in person, he would have waited after each wheeze for a few if necessary, the last ripple of laughter to subside.

The last half of the evening's entertainment at the Colony was taken up with "The Better 'Ole," which proved to be an uproarious and highly satisfactory comedy of the British Tommies in the Great War. It is too long, but the dull scenes are readily identifiable and could probably have been eliminated before these words struggle into print. Syd Chaplin, forsaking his usual impersonations, appears as "Old Bill," the sturdy character created by Capt. Bruce Bairnsfather in dark days when it wasn't easy to make people laugh. Mr. Chaplin is splendid. He successfully submerges himself in his role and thus retains the true spirit of Bairnsfather cartoons. At times the Better 'Ole" is realistic, and at other times it bursts into wild, farcical burlesque. Needless to say, the latter moments are productive of the louder laughs.

Between the Vitaphone and "The Better 'Ole," it seems that the Warner Brothers have another substantial success on their hands—an entertainment that will draw enormous crowds everywhere. Certainly the Vitaphone is due to change the whole aspect of the amusement industry—movies, vaudeville and opera as well. It is too close to perfection now to be rated as a mere experiment. With Al Jolson singing from the screen as effectively as he sings from the stage, there is no longer any doubt about the enormous value of this incredible machine.

"Second Thoughts -- on -- First Nights"

By Alexander Woollcott

NEW YORK, Oct. 16.

THE Werfel tragedy, "Juarez and Maximilian," was forecast in these dispatches a few weeks ago and it remains only to be said that, as played at the Guild Theater, it is a sooer, interesting and, at times, truly beautiful play, superbly acted. Especially is this true of the fine, glowing tender performance of Alfred Lunt as the vague, kindly befuddled gentleman with the astounding whiskers who was the scapegoat sent across the world to his death some 60 odd years ago under the delusion of Europe that it could send a Hapsburg to rule as Emperor in Mexico.

Another of these ironic treatments of idealists, written overseas shortly after the impact of the late Woodrow Wilson with the Chanceleries of Europe, is "Le Dompteur" by Alfred Savoir, translated into English and played here at the Neighborhood under the title of "The Lion Tamer." It is a satirical fantasy, plus some of the most roguish misdemeanors in the form of French boudoir humor. It pictures an English Don Quixote haunting a French circus in the unflagging hope that some day the oppressed, downtrodden populace of the lion cage will have the gumption to rise and eat the lion tamer.

Savoir is a Pole, whom post-war circumstance drove to the trade of writing. He began by signing certain causeries with the phrase "a savoir," which might be done into our vulgate as "Getting hep" or "Wising You Up." Afterward he decided to call it a name and invented Alfred to account for that letter "a."

All of Savoir's comedies, which include "Banquo" and "Bluebeard's Eighth Wife," we owe to the war's sweeping away his family fortune. The same might be said of Edouard Bourdet, who used to be a banker and now, instead, takes in the money being earned in sundry parts of the world by his play, "The Captive." Indeed, the theater is crowded with folk whom the war drove into it. One of our stagehands was puzzled to find an old French nobleman thus menially employed at a cabaret here. He was informed in a whisper that the aged aristocrat had lost all his money in the war.

"My, my, you don't say," said the stagehand, sympathetically. "What did he do? Bet on the Germans?"

Among the new plays which have been swarming here like migrating swallows, one interested me especially because its leading role was played by an erstwhile critic. That was "Tragic Eighteen," of which the title role—a youngster in love with a chorus girl—is played by Neil Martin.

Of course all we newspapermen are resigned to hearing some one in every trade and walk of life begin all conversations by saying: "I used to be a newspaperman once myself." The older hands know enough to say, "Oh, is that so?" or "How interesting," or "Did you?" and go right on talking about something else.

Behind the Screens

WHEN Milton Sills returns to California after his trip to New York he will find a busy season of picture work ahead of him at the First National studios in Burbank. "The Runaway Enchantress," a story by Mary Heaton Vorse, in which Sills will star for First National Pictures, is being scenarized by Carey Wilson who will also manage the production. It is a romantic tale with a fishing village as a background and supplies the star with a role that is said to be one of the best he has had. The director has not yet been announced, nor Mr. Sills' supporting cast.

The Morey twins, Donald and Harold, former stars of Brown University's football squad, who made their joint screen debut as gridiron players in Richard Dix's "The Quarterback," have remained at the Paramount Long Island studio to get bigger and better film parts. One now is playing a wheat farmer in Thomas Meighan's "The Canadian," while the other is a floorwalker in Frank Tuttle's "Love 'Em and Leave 'Em."

David L. Hughes, of whom Theodore Roosevelt said, "He was always up in front," has been appointed technical adviser for the filming of "The Rough Riders."

May Robson, famous "Aunt Mary" of the stage, has completed her first motion picture after 43 years behind the footlights. Miss Robson says she was more nervous before the camera than ever before an audience.

Carmel Myers has been "a woman without a country." In "Ben-Hur' Carmel was an Egyptian; in "A Certain Young Man" she is English; in "The Gay Deceiver" she is French; in "Tell It to the Marines" she is a South Sea Island

Margaret Anglin In Two Plays Here This Week

Popular Actress to Appear in "Caroline" and "Candida" at the Shubert-Rialto Theater.

TWO of the brightest of modern comedies will be presented by Margaret Anglin, a favorite with St. Louis audiences, at the Shubert-Rialto Theater beginning tomorrow night.

Tomorrow, Tuesday and Wednesday nights and at the Wednesday matinee, the play will be William Somerset Maugham's "Caroline." This play, in which Miss Anglin first appeared 10 years ago, has never been seen here. Thursday and Friday nights and Saturday matinee and night, the bill will be George Bernard Shaw's "Candida."

"Candida" was played here some 18 years ago, but is known chiefly through the widely circulated reading versions of the Shaw plays. "Caroline," which has been called the wittiest play written in the English language since some of the works of Oscar Wilde, is about a woman, somewhat uncertain whether her status is that of wife or widow, and her devoted admirer, who appears most ardent when Caroline's husband is a living reality, and less eager when it seems that Caroline may be free to wed.

The author of "Caroline" did not bestow all the clever lines upon the star. There are the questions of Caroline's physician, when discussing her "symptoms."

"Haven't you noticed lately," the physician asks, "how young the policemen are? They're mere boys. But when you were a girl, don't you remember, they were middle-aged men? And when you're in a house party, haven't you noticed that some of the young people are very rowdy? It's lucky they keep more or less to themselves, because their conversation is very tedious. And after dancing until about 1 in the morning, don't you find you're rather tired and quite ready to go home?"

The doctor's diagnosis, as will be surmised, is "middle age."

Or take the recital of Cooper, the maid servant, when Caroline asks her how her young man proposed.

"Well, ma'am, I don't know as he exactly proposed at all. You see it was like this: I'd been walking out with him for something like two years and he never said anything that you could take hold of, so to speak, so at last I said to him, 'Well, what about it?' 'What about what?' he said. 'You know what I mean,' I said. 'Do not,' he said. 'Well, do you mean it or do you not?' I said. 'Is it a riddle?' he said. 'No,' I said, 'but I've been walking out with you for two years, and I just want to know if anything's to come of it or not.' 'Oh,' he said, 'I don't mind one way or the other.' I said, 'But I'm not going to waste my time till doomsday, and I just want to know, that's all.' 'Well,' he said, 'what do you propose?' 'Well,' I said, 'what about August bank holiday?' 'Make it Christmas,' he said. 'I get a rise then.' 'All right,' I said; 'as long as I know where I am I don't mind waiting, but I like to know where I am.'"

Miss Anglin's most recent St. Louis appearance was in July, 1925, when her rendition of the Greek drama "Electra" dedicated the Garden Theater.

The Earl Carroll Vanities come to the Shubert-Rialto Theater for one week starting next Sunday night, with matinees on Wednesday and Saturday. This week the company is in Chicago. After the St. Louis engagement it starts East to Cincinnati and Cleveland, then on to Philadelphia and Boston.

The company, which comprises 100 people, headed by Joe Cook and Lou Holtz, includes Ethel Dale, Irene French, Frances Merchant, who is the principal dancer, Jack Redmond, the trick golf expert, Renee Lowrie, the prima donna, Laura Lee, Clifford Rourke, George Romanoff and Maj. Wallace McCutcheon, the soldier of fortune. There are the usual number of models, dancers and singers.

The dances and ensembles were directed by David Bennett; the music is by Clarence Gaskill and the sketches and d' gues were written by William Grew. The decorations were designed by Willie Pogany and the art and technical direction is by Bernard Lohmuller.

A new leading woman for the Woodward Players at the Empress Theater, succeeding Bettie Wales, who joins the National Players organization playing at the Cox Theater in Cincinnati, is to arrive in St. Louis this morning and will be in rehearsals Monday in "The Woman Next Door." She is Dorothy Blackburn, whose reputation in stock is national. She studied under the famous French actress Mme. Yorska. Miss Blackburn has played with Frank Bacon, Frank Craven, Joe Laurie, Jessie Bonstelle and prominent stock companies both East and West.

ALL LOSE IN MUSIC DISPUTE

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, Oct. 16.—An American society woman and artist, a German orchestral association and an Italian composer have fought a three-cornered fight which was finally decided in favor of the Italian by a referee in the person of an Italian physician.

Mrs. Elizabeth Day of New York had engaged Ottorino Respighi, Italian composer, who has never appeared in Germany, to conduct the Berlin Philharmonic Orchestra in a program of his own works. The arias for soprano were to be sung by Mrs. Day. No sooner were the announcements out than the Gesellschaft der Musikfreundo, which gives six Philharmonic concerts each season, protested that Respighi had agreed to appear first in Germany Nov. 11 under its auspices. Mrs. Day denied she was interfering with the Gesellschaft, as Respighi was to appear as conductor at her concert and as pianist at the Gesellschaft's. A flood of telegrams descended upon Respighi from both sides. His physician finally announced that the composer was unable to appear at either concert.

In my salad days I did not know that much and once, when a group of ink-stained wretches from Park Row were boarding the late Judge O'Sullivan in his chambers and he tried to put us all at our ease by saying affably that he used to be a newspaperman once himself, I so far transgressed as to punctuate the ensuing silence by asking "Where and when?" In a silence that deepened then until you could have heard a feather crash on to the richly carpeted floor, the poor old Judge had to stammer out that, as a matter of fact, his journalistic efforts had been limited to one summer's contributions to the society notes of the "Montpelier Gazette."

But Martin really was a critic on some Midland journal and, later, he did the press work for

NEW SETBACK FOR DRYS FORECAST IN SCOTTISH ELECTION

Wives Accompany Husbands to Week-End Drinking Places and Buy Necessities There.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

EDINBURGH, Oct. 16. — The great battle between the drys and wets of Scotland, to be decided in December, proceeds with unabated energy.

At present, impartial observers think that prohibitionists will receive as big a setback as in 1920 and 1923, and, curiously enough, they believe the votes of women will be largely responsible for this defeat.

This argument sounds strange at first, because it was the women's vote that brought its few victories to prohibition in the two previous elections. But it seems the unmarried women have changed their minds in the present "dry" centers. They say that the unmarried men drift away from the "dry" towns to the wet ones, and are lost; and as they can get drink so easily elsewhere, it would be just as well if they were to procure it in their own home town.

Local Feeling a Factor.

Local feeling of this description is becoming one of the greatest thorns in the side of the prohibitionists.

A good example of this situation occurs in the tiny industrial town of Stewarttown, about 20 miles from Glasgow and five from Kilmarnock. A prohibition majority in the 1920 elections closed the nine saloons and two hotels bars of Stewarttown. The same verdict was returned in 1923. So for nearly six years Stewarttown has been entirely dry. And yet even a number of the local prohibitionists think it will go wet at the coming poll.

They admit that drinking has not diminished. It is only done in another place.

Husband Drinks; Wife Shops.

They also say that the shopkeeper's turnover has diminished because the tendency is for a woman to accompany her husband when he sets forth in search of week-end refreshment in a neighboring wet town. The husband does his drinking while his wife goes shopping.

Accordingly, on Saturday afternoon, a great fleet of motor omnibusses is in readiness to convey the greater part of the population of Stewarttown to Kilmarnock—only 15 minutes' drive. The one business street of Stewarttown is deserted and that of Kilmarnock is thronged.

Local business men say that there is more drinking done nowadays by Stewarttown people than before the place went dry. People who want to drink have to go further and they instinctively feel that the extra effort entitles them to get the utmost value for time and money spent.

Fairbanks Buys 800-Acre Ranch.

By the Associated Press.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Oct. 15.—Douglas Fairbanks is to become a "gentleman farmer." He has purchased an 800-acre ranch in the hill country, 30 miles from San Diego, describing the location as an hour by airplane from his Hollywood motion picture studio. The property is to be developed as a hacienda. The tract will be planted to citrus orchards, alfalfa and stocked with cattle. In addition to being the home of Fairbanks and his wife, Mary Pickford, the ranch is expected to prove a successful commercial venture, he said. The property was purchased from the Rancho Santa Fe and will involve an expenditure of $500,000.

cutie, and in "The Understanding Heart" she is American.

Railroad traffic is heavy at the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios these days, the congestion consisting of three trains and three stations on what is probably the shortest line in the world. One section is a specially constructed German train, tunnel and station; a Pullman is running for another picture and a theatrical "show car" is used in a third.

Graduates of the Paramount Picture School, the first institution to train young men and women for screen acting, are now reaping the fruits of their six months of their training. After graduation the sixteen students went on a personal appearance tour. Now they are back at the studio and are being cast in minor roles for practical experience.

For making the picture sequence of the department store ball in A. S. M. Hutchinson's novel "One Increasing Purpose," the great Selfridge store in London was used by Fox Films players as a set. A unique feature display was made not only of dresses but of women's underwear, as fashioned through the centuries by bone needle, hand loom and mill.

Syd Chaplin spends less money on clothes than any other Warner player, the costume department says. In "The Missing Link," Chaplin wears a suit which he cast into the old clothes bag several years ago. His expense account for costuming on this picture, in round numbers, is just nothing.

The largest order of snow-shoes ever placed by a studio was received recently by Paramount.

The webbed foot attachments, number more than 100 pairs, will form part of the equipment of Director John Waters' company which will leave for location this week at Mammoth, California, to film Zane Grey's popular novel, "The Man of the Forest" in which Jack Holt has the featured lead. Georgia Hale will appear opposite the popular Western hero.

Colleen Moore and Director Alfred Santell are having many amusing experiences taking the exterior sequences of "Orchids and Ermine" for First National in New York City. Because the crowds immediately gather in large numbers the minute a movie camera is seen, it has been necessary to mask the cameras in many ingenious ways. As a result Miss Moore has been riding unknown on the top of a Fifth avenue bus, doing her stuff while most of the other passengers were utterly unaware that anything unusual was happening.

BONES ARE THOUGHT THOSE OF PEOPLE OF 4000 YEARS AGO

Relics of Animals of That Age Also Found Under Bed of Thames River.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Oct. 16.—A woman's skull, a thigh bone of a woman about 5 feet 1 inch in height and a man's left shin bone, a man's right arm bone found under the bed of the Thames at Sudbury are believed by Sir Arthur Keith, famous anthropologist, to be those of lake dwellers who lived 4000 years ago.

The shin bone is flattened with the "squatter's foot" showing that the man spent much time in a crouching position. Bones of oxen, horses, pigs and deer also were found. An antler found belonged to an exceptionally large and early species of red deer, common in the Neolithic age.

SARRANT FORGETS ENGLISH

French Minister Once Learned Language in Four Months.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Oct. 16.—Albert Sarraut, Minister of the Interior, learned English in four months, but he has forgotten it in four years.

M. Sarraut, while at the Washington Naval Conference, managed to take, even on his busiest days, a few hours to study the English language. Toward the end of the conference, in 1922, he not only did not need an interpreter, but he was able to address the committees of the conference in English.

In receiving Hilton U. Brown, editor of the Indianapolis News, last Sunday, M. Sarraut emphatically assured him of a most cordial welcome by France to the American Legionnaires if they visit this country next year. The assurance had to be given in French. M. Sarraut rather mournfully admitted to Brown that his English had vanished.

Increase in New Life Insurance.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—New life insurance issued by United States companies was 7.6 per cent greater during the first nine months of this year than in the same period last year, the Association of Life Insurance Presidents announces. The total new insurance by the 45 companies, whose business provides the basis for the report, was $8,244,000,000 for this year up to Oct. 1. The increase for last month was 7.6 per cent over the same month last year.

"SECOND THOUGHTS" ON FIRST NIGHTS

the Portmanteau Theater, I wonder if, in the old days when it was his watchdog duty to look over the press agents' portfolios and 'see that no advance man should succeed in smuggling a 10-year-old photograph of Mrs. Leslie Carter into his newspaper's columns, he ever dreamed that one day his own picture would adorn the glittering facade of a Broadway playhouse and that, in the giddiness of that eminence, he would so far forget himself as to pose with his lips parted in tremulous, boyish wonder at this great, big, alarming world.

Mr. Martin turned actor to play in Tarkington's "Seventeen." Now, nine years later, we find him progressing to the point of appearing in "Tragic Eighteen." I suppose I can scarcely hope to live long enough to attend his premiere in "Twenty-one" or even to see him totter on in "Luscious Twenty."

Wells Root, formerly my coworker in the dramatic department of the New York World and, during my vacation, the one afflicted with the task of sending forth these dispatches from Broadway, himself started on vacation early in August, bent on a canoe trip among the fiords of the Norwegian Coast. Once safely past the Statue of Liberty, he sent bold word that he was never, never coming back. But occasionally, an item of interest to playgoers seeps through his far-flung privacy. Thus from Oslo he has written me this paragraph:

"Here in Oslo the literary protagonists are H. G. Wells and Anita Loos—a combination which might cause each some mild amusement. They have just translated the 'History' and 'Gentlemen Prefer Blondes' into Norwegian, and every book shop window is full of blurbs and copies. Of the two, I think Miss Loos is getting the greater play. I even saw a review of her book in a barren little four-page paper hundreds of miles north sandwiched conspicuously between the vitally important news of the next day's herring catch and the winning numbers in the national lottery. They have translated it under the rhythmic title, 'Herror Liker Blonde Piker.' Though they have to prefer blondes in this country or spend a lot of quiet evenings at home with their fishing tackle."

Speaking of "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes," one of its four companies is fairly booming at the Times Square Theater here. Recently a great hilarity swept its box office when some innocent Englishman, passing through New York, wished to buy two seats downstairs and within the first 12 rows for some night the following week. Baffled by the amused astonishment which greeted this modest request, he recalled that, after all, he could manage to live without seeing the piece so soon, and, since he would not be sailing back to London until the last week of the year, he would be willing to have his seats on any night between now and Christmas, for which the management could provide them.

"Sorry," said the man in the box office, as he flicked a little snowflake of cigarette ash from the cuff of his coat, "but we're all sold out for the first 13 weeks."

At such forehandedness on the part of the citizenry, such far-sighted American plannings of where one would be and what one would want to be doing on Nov. 17, say, or Dec. 12 or even Dec. 23, the visiting Englishman marveled and went his way. It was some crass native who explained to him afterward that the tickets had been sold not to play-goers at all but to ticket agents and that only aliens or Rip Van Winkles were so innocent as to go to the box office for seats to a success.

It is equally difficult to gets seats to "Broadway" and "The Captive" which are at least as popular. Indeed, I hereby risk my reputation as a cautious prophet by predicting that "Broadway" will be playing here in our town months after "The Captive" and "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes" have faded from the billboards of the five boroughs.

U. S. TO INVESTIGATE CRIMES OF CHILDREN

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16.—A psychological study to get at the bottom of causes for juvenile crime, and other physical and mental deficiencies of children has been started by the children's bureau of the labor department.

Arrangements have been made for co-operation of the Federal census bureau, juvenile courts, schools and social organizations in the preparation of essential statistics.

On the basis of census figures, officials estimated that there are 500,000 delinquent, neglected, dependent, crippled, blind and deaf children under public or private care in the United States.

Because of the inadequacy of statistics and the lack of knowledge of the situation in past years officials said that it is impossible to say whether conditions are better or worse.

Defectives Increase.

Figures show less delinquency among juveniles, but a large increase in the number of mental and physical defectives under care or institutions. It was explained, however, that this increase means that more adequate attention is being given to unfortunate children, rather than that delinquency and defectiveness is increasing.

1. Approximately 200,000 children appeared in juvenile courts last year, some being sent to correctional institutions, other placed on probation.

2. Private and public agencies are caring for 218,000 dependent children.

3. There are 200,000 blind, crippled or deaf children under public care.

4. About 135,000 mental defectives are cared for in private and public schools.

5. The average age at which juveniles appear before courts is 13 years.

The labor department has made arrangements with 24 juvenile courts for co-operation in compiling statistics as to child delinquency. An effort is being made to extend this service to all juvenile courts in America.

Experts pointed to the grave necessity of obtaining accurate statistics as to dependent, delinquent and defective children, this being characterized as the first step in bringing about an improvement.

Census to Help.

Future census figures will contain many of these vital statistics.

Poverty and ignorance, in the opinion of experts, are the primary causes of the troubles of children. Blame for condition falls upon the parents in most cases, in their lack of knowledge of training methods, or failure to take advantage of the many public and private services co-operating in child rearing.

This deficiency, however, usually can be traced back to poverty and illiteracy.

Inadequacy of government funds to direct juvenile study has led many universities and other institutions in the large cities to launch inquests into this social problem. One plan for the investigation is based upon psycho-analysis of entire families.

"The close relationship between home conditions and juvenile delinquency is generally acknowledged," according to the census bureau.

One of 26,600 juvenile cases studied it was found that only 42 per cent of the children had been living with both parents.

In frequent cases incompatibility of the parents has a wide and detrimental influence not only in the mental development but the physical well-being of the children. Divorce of parents is often found beneficial to children where the mother and father exist in constant turmoil.

60 Chosen for Cadet Band.

COLUMBIA, Mo., Oct. 15.—Sixty musicians, chosen from a field of 125 candidates, will constitute the University of Missouri's cadet band this year, according to George Venable, director. HOW TO DARKEN GRAY HAIR

Makes One Look Younger

Men and women who used to be called Grandpa and Grandma are now setting the styles by darkening their gray hair at home.

For instance, J. A. McCrea, a well-known Californian, recently made the following statement:

"Anyone can prepare a simple mixture in five minutes that will darken gray hair and make it soft and glossy. Merely take a half-pint of water, add 1 ounce of bay rum, a small box of Barbo Compound, and ¼ ounce of glycerine.

These ingredients can be bought at any drug store at trifling cost. Apply to the hair twice weekly with a comb. It does not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy and will not rub off."

GLASS CUTS OFF CURATIVE PROPERTIES OF SUN RAYS

Ultra-Violet Ray Expert Advises Housewives to Leave Kitchen Windows Open.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—Sun rays as the housewife's friend, especially in the kitchen, is a new representation of medical science to the every-day world.

"The housewife who would have her home freer from the dangerous forms of germ life should let the sun in through the open window," said Dr. William Benham Snow of New York, at a conference on ultra-violet rays. "Ultra-violet rays do not penetrate glass, and they are the beneficent rays that destroy bacteria."

Certain foods may be exposed to the sun with profit of another sort, Dr. Snow added.

"Various foods exposed to ultra-violet rays are rendered vitamine active, possessing effects which otherwise would not be present," he said.

"Flour, milk and some other foods that are subjected for periods to ultra-violet rays or to the sun's rays, receive derived properties from the radiations which cause them to become more active in the processes of body building."

Other properties of these powerful invisible light rays Dr. Snow summarized as follows: They penetrate running water and rid it of bacterial life that might cause infection; they act upon the lime salts in circulation in the blood so that it can be used in bone-building, and in this way they are the specific cure for rickets.

To Dedicate Pipe Organ.

MARYVILLE, Oct. 17.—Dr. W. F. McMurry of Fayette, bishop of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, will deliver the sermon here Sunday night at the dedication of a new pipe organ donated to the Methodist Episcopal Church of this city. The name of the donor will be announced at the same time.

QUEEN MARIE AND AMERICAN CORN ON THE COB FRIENDS

First Tasted It in England, It Being Sent From U. S., and Became Fond of It.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Oct. 16.—Yellow bantam corn on the cob and the Queen of Rumania are friends of long standing. Corn on the cob formed part of her first meal when she sailed on the Leviathan Tuesday for the United States.

Marie made her first acquaintance with the succulent and distinctively American dish years ago, when, as a guest at the home of an American diplomat in England, she engaged in her first truly American meal—with corn on the cob. The corn had been sent from the United States.

When the Queen returned to Rumania she was surprised to find that sweet corn grew in some districts of her own country. It was known there, however, only as food for the pigs. Marie has been able from time to time to obtain some luscious ears for the royal table.

Former Jersey Governor to Speak

SHEIK LIKES THE CHARLESTON

Son of King of Hedjas Enjoys Watching Gay Crowds in London.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Oct. 16.—Even the Emir Feisal, the sheik of sheiks, son of the King of Hedjaz, has become Westernized.

In spite of the fact that the Emir Feisal still wears a turban and the glorious robes and ivory-handled swords of the Arabian desert, he insists on eating his meals in the regular dining room of the Hyde Park Hotel, where he can watch the gay crowds doing the Charleston. The attendants of the Arab potentate have done everything in their power to keep their charge aloof from ordinary mankind. They insisted on having his servants quartered on a different floor from that occupied by the Prince and also arranged a private dining room in his imperial highness' suite. But he balked and insisted on eating where he could see the merry throng.

First of Galloway Recitals.

Charles Galloway will inaugurate his series of Sunday organ recitals at Graham Chapel, Washington University, at 3 p. m. today with a program in which he will be assisted by Dr. E. O. Sweetser, baritone. The concerts are an annual part of the Extension Course of the University and are free to the public. Dr. Sweetser is to sing Maunder's "Consider the Lillies," and "Invictus." Mr. Galloway's organ program includes Maquaire's Sonata, No. 1, Vierne's Divertissment, Faulkes' "Wedding Chimes," Bonnet's Variations de Concert, Russell's "Bells of St. Ann de Beaupre" and Stoughton's "March of the Gnomes."

WAGNER MUSIC SET TO JAZZ

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, Oct. 16.—The Cafe am Zoo, in the fashionable West End of Berlin has a jazz band director who has succeeded in breaking the German record for turning time-honored classics into jazz. He has arranged the Pilgrims' Chorus from Wagner's "Tannhauser" as a Charleston. This is regarded as tantamount to sacrilege by the Berlin critics, who feel that Wagner, of all composers, must not be tampered with.

One critic comments resignedly: "Lacking better inspiration, the jazz band played the Pilgrims' Chorus from "Tannhauser" as a Charleston. It did not disturb the dancers. They even applauded loudly. There is now no longer any limit set for the imagination."

MANCHUS PRESERVE ANCIENT ETIQUETTE

Pay Homage to Deposed Boy Ruler of China According to Traditional Form.

By the Associated Press.

TIENTSIN, Oct. 16.—Court etiquette of centuries casts a shadow of the once regal supremacy about the throneless majesties of China. The household clings tenaciously to a vestige of traditional form and sacredly observes respect for the young emperor without an empire.

In the small, carefully guarded house in the Japanese, concession to which Hsuan Tung, tenth of the great Manchu line of emperors and empress dowagers, adventurously fled two years ago, "Ching An! Ching An!", the quaint and musical early morning greeting of immemorial usage, are the first words that daily reach the ears of the "Son of Heaven." The Manchus still are punctillious in their observance of age-old etiquette in the present-day travesty of the once great Court now in exile.

Ancient Forms Modified.

As his tutors and more important followers tender their daily greetings to the head of the fallen Ching Dynasty, so does the second consort of Hsuan Tung repair daily to the apartment of the Empress and bid her "Ching An!".

Some of the ancient forms have been modified as a result of more democratic leanings on the part of the descendant of Chien Lung and of the foreign influences which have had so great a part in the moulding of his character and intellect. His acquired taste for many foreign things occasionally involves him in stuations at variance with traditional royal usages, but without loss of inherent dignity.

The new tastes came through his distinguished tutor, a former English official in the East, and the young Emperor has admitted to his friendship several of the more cultured foreigners in Tientsin, where his exiled household is established.

Speaks and Reads English.

He reads and speaks English, is fond of Western dancing, is learning to drive the new touring car he has just acquired and is particularly interested in Western engineering and mechanical contrivances. He recently visited the leading foreign newspaper and printing offices here and betrayed a most naive and intense curiosity in the various machines and appliances. He went, of course, incognito, and as hundreds of Chinese are employed in the establishment the foreign staff was at great pains to see that there were no untoward occurrences.

The last of the Manchu rulers does not find life too monotonous. He is an active young man with an alert and intensely curious mind, and although his movement outdoors is dictated by the cautious discretion of his followers rather than by his own eager choice, he has already seen more of the life of common people than his predecessors.

FRENCHMAN WHO WAS WAR CAPTIVE ATTACKS GERMAN

Recognizes Former Head of Prison Camp Visiting Paris and Knocks Him Down.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Oct. 16.—"You were the chief of the German prison camp back of San Quentin during the war?" asked Jean Sevellier, a French chauffeur, when his fare descended in front of the Monte Carlo Casino.

"I was the commandant," replied the portly German, who had journeyed from Nice to try his luck at roulette.

"Well, then—take that," shouted the Frenchman, landing a punch on the other's nose, knocking him into the gutter.

At the police station, Sevellier told the officials that he was willing to go to jail for a year if necessary since he had kept his vow to repay some of the cruelties he said he had endured during his days as a prisoner of war. The German officer refused to make a complaint and Sevellier was released, after the desk officer advised him to read the speech of friendship delivered by Foreign Minister Briand at Geneva, upon the occasion of Germany's entrance into the League.

"I prefer Poincare's speech at Bar le Duc," said Sevellier, referring to the Premier's statement that Germany's war guilt could not be forgotten.

FRENCH MORE MONEY MAD THAN U. S., DREISER SAYS

American Author Tells Interviewer Paris Is Owned by Finance, More So Than New York.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Oct. 16.—The United States may be a Shylock in the eyes of some Frenchmen, but in the view of one prominent American author, Paris is more "money mad" than New York. Theodore Dreiser told a French interviewer that Paris is owned by money.

"It is even worse than New York in that respect," he said, on his first visit to Paris since 1912. "The old intellectual, artistic Paris has been swallowed up by a commercialism more intense even than America's.

"Nor is the evil limited to France. There is not a corner of European soil that is free from it. The fault is partly ours. We Americans have been 'showing off' our wealth so ostentatiously."

America and Europe are moving in opposite directions—America towards idealism, Europe toward materialism, Dreiser said.

Would They Have a Home?

WHAT kind of a home would your wife be able to maintain for herself and the children if something happened to you tomorrow?

Contemplating "if something should happen" may not be altogether cheerful, but since things inevitably do happen, it's only sensible to take stock and consider such a possibility.

Have you provided your family with a home of their own?

Could you possibly give your wife and children any better guarantee of being able to manage than to give them a home, so that whatever the income, or lack of it, from other sources, they would have a roof over their heads?

No matter how capable a woman or what her training, after several years devoted exclusively to home making, she is indeed the exceptional woman who can step out into the contest of modern commercial life and earn food and raiment and shelter for herself and the children.

If you cannot so order your affairs as to leave your family independent of all financial worries, the very best one provision you can make is to give them a home.

Don't let another day go by without making a definite move in this direction.

In and around St. Louis are attractively located homes and home sites which will prove an investment not only in happiness and contentment, but in financial returns from increasing real estate values.

Children Cry For Fletcher's CASTORIA

Why Castoria?

Years ago Castor Oil, Paregoric, Drops and Soothing Syrups were the remedies in common use for Infants and Children; Castor Oil so nauseating as to be almost impossible and the others all containing Opium in one form or another, but so disguised as to make them pleasant to the taste, yet really to stupefy the child and give the appearance of relief from pain.

It required years of research to find a purely vegetable combination that would take the place of these disagreeable, unpleasant and vicious remedies that from habit had become almost universal. This was the inception of, and the reason for, the introduction of Fletcher's Castoria, and for over 30 years it has proven its worth, received the praise of Physicians everywhere and become a household word among mothers.

A remedy ESPECIALLY prepared for Infants and Children and no mother would think of giving to her baby a remedy that she would use for herself, without consulting a physician.

Fletcher's Castoria safely relieves

Constipation	Wind Colic	To Sweeten Stomach
Flatulence	Diarrhea	Regulate Bowels

Aids in the assimilation of Food, promoting Cheerfulness, Rest and Natural Sleep without Opiates.

To avoid imitations, always look for the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher. Proven directions on each package. Physicians everywhere recommend it.

FILES A DEFENSE OF PARTY GOVERNMENT

Illinois Attorney-General Replies to Taxpayer's Attack on Primary Law.

By the Associated Press.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Oct. 16.—A defense of party government was filed in the State Supreme Court Friday by Attorney-General Oscar E. Carlstrom, in answering the attack of William J. McAlpine, tax payer of Lee County, on the Illinois primary law.

"McAlpine," the Attorney-General's brief said, "was too anxious for a law suit. He could not wait for the gong to sound. He began his pugilistic drives at all primary laws before they struck at him or before they had threatened to strike at him—he attacked them in their sleep.

"He would have us do away with all primary laws merely because the Legislature failed to provide a method to determine the number of votes a precinct committeeman should have in case his districts should be changed by the Board of Supervisors.

Parties Outgrowth of Custom.

"Neither the State nor the Federal Constitution confers any partisan rights. And inasmuch as political parties are merely the outgrowth of custom, and inasmuch as they are not voluntary associations in legal sense, there are no members thereof in any legal sense. Hence that which the complainant claims should be constitutionally protected is, at most, a mere partisan privilege, and is subject to all such regulation and limitation by the Legislature, as the Legislature deems necessary for public welfare.

"He is asking the court to erase from the statute books of this State all primary legislation and the only basis for this request is that by reason of the redistricting of two precincts in Lee County, the voting power of such committeemen to be elected in the future in such districts will not be free and equal as guaranteed to him under our Constitution.

"If, as he asks, we should discard primaries because it costs money to hold them, it is equally reasonable to do away with elections if they cost money.

Says Charges Are Pessimistic.

"It is reveling in pessimism to charge that our Government is weakened, our public officials distrusted and inefficient, our people dissatisfied, and to base such charges upon the primary law. Neither is the charge true nor the basis of such charge justified.

"During the past 20 years the State has been functioning under state-wide primary laws. The great party of Lincoln and the great party of Jefferson have indorsed and enacted these laws to protect the voters in their selection of candidates to be placed upon their election ballots. Never was party government stronger nor more respected. Regulation begets confidence and respect, and without that confidence and respect in its government, the State would not have made its wonderous increase in population; its miraculous gain in wealth; its stupendous growth in educational facilities and its unparalleled progress in nearly every line of endeavor.

SOVIET MINISTER TO MEXICO, A WOMAN, EXPECTS SUCCESS

Says She Believes She Will Do Country Much Good in New Post.

By the Associated Press.

MOSCOW, Oct. 15.—Mme. Alexandra Kollantay, the world's only woman diplomat of ministerial rank, is confident that she will be able to achieve results in her new post as soviet minister to Mexico. Before her departure, she said:

"I am naturally delighted at my appointment to Mexico. With my knowledge of languages and foreign affairs, and my previous diplomatic experience (she was formerly minister to Norway), I think I can be of great service to my country.

"If the American authorities will give me a visa, I will go to Mexico City by way of New York, but if they decline, I shall take a boat from a German or French port direct to Mexico.

"It is difficult to say in advance how much I shall be able to accomplish in Mexico, but I am confident at least of bringing the two nations in closer sympathy culturally, economically and diplomatically.

"I already have begun to study Spanish, which comes easily to me because of my broad knowledge of the other Latin languages."

Asked if she expected to continue her literary labors, especially touching on marriage, motherhood and birth control, her favorite subjects, she said she feared her diplomatic duties would preclude other pursuits.

BURMAH PINK ELEPHANT SOON TO QUIT LONDON ZOO FOR U. S.

British Keepers Happy to Be Rid of Animal Who Costs Much to Feed.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Oct. 16.—Sa, the Burmah pink elephant, is such an expensive guest that the London Zoo authorities are happy he is to sail for the United States on the Olympic in a few weeks.

The Siamese visitor is an epicure of the first water. Only the finest hay and grain appeal to his taste. And, as he is sacred, in the opinion of his Siamese owners, it is impossible to have him help pay for his keep by permitting children to ride him.

Sa is only 8 years old and will not be full grown until he is 20. The owner of the elephant has arranged to have a special stall constructed for the animal in the Olympic. The pink beauty will make a trip to California, where a wealthy American wants to see him and may buy him.

TO DARKEN HAIR APPLY SAGE TEA

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea with sulphur added, will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant. Just a few applications will prove a revelation if your hair is fading, streaked or gray. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get a bottle of Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound at any drug store all ready for use for only 75 cents. This is the old-time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients.

While wispy, gray, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray hairs have disappeared, and, after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant.

Simple Remedy For Bad Stomach Gives Quick Relief

No Need of Strong Medicines or Diet—Famous but Simple Old English Recipe Keeps Stomach in Fine Condition, Banishes After-Eating Distress.

If you are a victim of Stomach Troubles—Gas, Sourness, Pain or Bloating—you may have quick and certain relief by following this simple advice.

Don't take strong medicines, artificial digestants or pull down your system by following unnecessary starvation diets.

Never hurry your meals or overeat of anything, but within reason most folks may eat what they like—if they will keep their stomach sweet, clean and active and free from the souring acids that hinder or paralyze the work of digestion.

And the best and easiest way to do this is to follow every meal with a small amount of pure Bisurated Magnesia—a pleasant, harmless and inexpensive form of Magnesia that promptly neutralizes acidity and keeps your stomach sweet and clean.

A week's trial of Bisurated Magnesia, which may be obtained from any druggist "at small cost," will easily convince you of the great value of this old English recipe.

2000 TO ASSIST IN DEDICATION OF MASONIC TEMPLE

$3,375,000 Has Been Expended on York Rite Building, With Much of Interior Yet to Be Completed.

PARADE TO PRECEDE CEREMONY, OCT. 26

Governor, City Officers, Representatives of Army and Navy and Many Other Notables Expected.

Dedicatory ceremonies for the nearly completed Masonic Temple of the York Rite will be held the afternoon of Oct. 26. The building is on Lindell boulevard, east of Spring avenue. It was begun in September, 1921, and although work has been carried on continuously since then, at a cost of $3,375,000, it is not yet completed.

A parade starting from Lindell boulevard and Kingshighway at 1:30 p. m. will precede the dedicatory services which will be held on the steps of the temple. The Rev. Ivan Lee Holt, pastor of St. John's Methodist Church, will deliver the commemorative address.

The parade will be headed by Chief of Police Gerk, followed by a detail of mounted police. Gen. Eugene J. Spencer, retired, will serve as grand marshal of the parade, and will be next in line. A band will precede President Karl Vetsburg of the Masonic Temple Association and the board of directors.

Public Officials to Be in Line.

They will be followed by Gov. Baker and his staff, Mayor Miller, and Walter Neun, president of the Board of Aldermen. The uniformed organizations of the Shrine, the band, drill team, drum and bugle corps, and chanters will lead the body of Shrine members. In their rear will be the Alhambra Grotto band, drill team and choral club.

Rear Admiral Coontz, U. S. N., past grand master of the Society of Sojourners, accompanied by his staff, will lead that body in the procession. Army officers in line will be headed by Col. Falls, commandant of Jefferson Barracks, and his staff, followed by four companies of enlisted men. The Air Service will be represented by Col. Paegelow, commandant of Scott Field. Col. Stephen Lowe, commander of the First Regiment National Guard, will lead six companies of National Guardsmen.

The Grand Chapter of the Order of the Eastern Star, the De Molay Band, Job's Daughters, the Grand Chapter and Grand Council and officers of the Grand Commandery of Missouri will conclude the procession.

2000 Expected to March.

More than 2000 persons are expected to be in the line of march. Dedicatory services on the steps of the temple will be in charge of William M. Marden, Grand Master of Masons, who will come here from Doniphan, Mo., for the exercises. Music will be furnished by Shrine Chanters and the Alhambra Grotto Choral Club. Besides Dr. Holt, addresses will be made by Rear Admiral Coontz, Gov. Baker and Mayor Miller.

Among the high officials of Masonry who will be in St. Louis for the dedication are Leonidas P. Newby, past grand master of the Knights Templar, who comes from Knightstown, Ind., and Bert S. Lee, grand master of the General Grand Council of Royal and Select Masters of the United States, who comes from Springfield, Mo.

The temple is one of the outstanding architectural ornaments of the city. Executed in classic Ionic Greek, its rugged simplicity offset by two sets of columns located on the first and third stages of its pyramidical construction, it towers to the ordinary height of a 14-story office building, although there are actually only five stories. The exterior of the building is finished in Bedford stone and Chelmsford gray granite. The outside door and decorations are done in bronze.

Much of Interior Unfinished.

Much of the interior of the building remains to be completed, and it is not planned to finish the work for some years to come, ample quarters being afforded for present needs in the portion that is finished. Six lodge rooms, an auditorium designed to seat 2200 people, and a library planned to accommodate 30,000 volumes are yet unfinished. These are mostly on the upper floors.

Walls, pillars and floors of the spacious central lobby on the main floor are constructed of marble, a coarse mosaic in the center of the floor portraying the various Masonic and Eastern Star emblems. The mezzanine floor, set off by an ornamental bronze railing, is given over to office quarters of the grand chapters of Missouri Masonic organizations. The upper floors are devoted to lodge rooms.

Twelve stained glass windows on the main floor are of unusual interest. They represent biblical scenes and were especially designed for the temple at a cost of $12,000. Furnishings and draperies throughout the completed portion of the building are being installed at a cost of $70,000.

STORY OF WILSON'S REFORM MEASURES THAT GAVE HIM NATIONAL REPUT

Editor Tells How Conservative Scholar In Politics Discarded His Academic Theories and Turned Progressive

Amateur Learned How to Play Game As Governor of New Jersey After Republican to Whom He Offered Job Gave Him Raking for Not Rewarding Friends of Old Party.

HERE is the third installment of "The Political Education of Woodrow Wilson," a book by the War President's friend James Kerney, editor of the Trenton, N. J., Times.

By James Kerney,
Editor and Owner of the Trenton (N. J.) Times.
(Copyright, 1926.)

WITH Wilson's election as Governor, there had also been unexpectedly swept into office a Democratic Legislature. In many cases the successful legislative candidates had been chosen without the remotest idea of winning, and, as is usual in such circumstances, the average of capacity and ability was not high.

James E. Martine, lovable character, and his own torch-light procession, had been running for office of any and every kind for 40 years without scoring a win. The Republican Progressives had forced through a primary law intended to give the voters an opportunity to express their preference for United States Senator. Martine, against his own wish, had been finally induced to allow the use of his name on the ballot. Vigorous efforts had been made to have other leading Democrats make the race. None would consent. On the other hand, the Republicans had very formidable party leaders enter the primary, and the winner was former Gov. Stokes.

The small prospect of electing a Democratic Legislature, coupled with the general lack of desire to give any possible offense to the powerful Smith (Senator James Smith, "The Gentleman Boss"), despite his declarations that he was not a candidate for the Senate, were influential factors with Democrats. Neither of these considerations, however, figured in Martine's desire not to go into the primary; he married late in life, and his reasons were personal. But when it became evident that no other Democrat would stand, William W. St. John, a newspaper man who had long been active in the agitation for progressive legislation, compelled Martine to stand.

St. John was an able radical, who had successfully launched a daily newspaper in Elizabeth, but was forced to give up the hard grind of publishing by a break in health. In March, 1910, Wilson had spoken at a Democratic banquet in Elizabeth, the only public gathering of New Jersey Democrats that he had ever addressed before his nomination for Governor. While Wilson had not touched on any State issue, St. John, who was convinced that Wilson was a radical in the making, set about doing his part. Despite broken health, St. John was a philosopher, who refused to be disturbed by the Wilson methods at Princeton and who frequently quoted the words of Paley: "What is public history but a register of the successes and disappointments, the vices, the follies and the quarrels of those who engage in contention for power?"

St. John saw in Wilson the most promising figure the genuine progressives had ever had in America.

At the Yale-Princeton football game on Nov. 12, 1910, the Saturday after the election, I sat immediately in front of Wilson in the Princeton grandstand. He had been having a reunion with old classmates and was in high spirits. He told me he had never met Matthias C. Ely, editor of the biggest Democratic newspaper in the State, and suggested that I bring Ely to Princeton for a conference on Sunday, Nov. 20. At the appointed time Ely and I were in the home of the Governor-elect at Princeton. We waited half an hour for him to come in, with the family, from church.

Wilson Doesn't Know Own Party Leaders.

Wilson was very interested in Ely's knowledge of election laws and needed reforms, and we discussed the Senatorship at length. Smith had not yet announced himself a candidate, and Wilson expressed the belief that he would not, in view of the pre-election statements and the general indignation that had been stirred up even by mention of his name. Both Smith and Harvey (Col. George Harvey) were keeping very much aloof.

Wilson made it plain that he was likewise not for Martine, whom he regarded as not qualified. It was clear that the expression at the preference primary had not made any particular impression on Wilson. He gave voice to the thought that the Democrats should pick a man of the exceptional type of John R. Hardin, a Princeton '80 man, who had first-class ability and would represent New Jersey with both intelligence and credit. Hardin, one of the great lawyers of the State, is now president of the Mutual Benefit Insurance Co. Wilson had known Hardin since their student days.

The "Newark Evening News," his stanchest newspaper supporter in the State, was making a most convincing fight agaist Smith. Edward W. Scudder, editor of the "Newark News," had been a student under Wilson at Princeton, and like his father, Wallace M. Scudder, publisher of the News, was a liberal Democrat who saw in the rise of Wilson much promise for the advance of governmental reforms.

Newspaper Lined Up to Persuade Wilson.

"I hope, Dr. Wilson, you are following the telling arguments that the Newark News is putting forth," I said, after we had failed to budge him for the direct primary idea. But Ely and I were amused at his bland reply. He coolly told us that he did not read any New Jersey newspaper; the only newspaper he found time to read was the New York Evening Post. He did not even know that Tumulty was not a member of the Legislature. When we quit the house, it was with some despair that Ely and I discussed the apparently hopeless situation of a Governor who did not know the politicians in his own party and who did not read the State newspapers. It looked dark for Martine.

Then came a remarkable development. St. John had been conducting an intelligent publicity campaign in support of the primary choice. Upon learning that it had been utterly wasted in so far as Wilson was concerned, he promptly made for New York and induced the New York Evening Post to enlist and help convert Wilson to stand by the primary expression for Martine.

"You old gloom, you are now talking to the New Jersey political writer for the New York Evening post," St. John told me, with a chuckle, over the telephone the next evening. He at once began an educational campaign in the Evening Post aimed solely at Wilson.

With Wilson's utter lack of political acquaintance and his indifference to the State press, there was naturally some concern as to his choice for his private secretary. A New York newspaper man, who had been helpful during the campaign, was regarded as the most likely candidate.

Tumulty Given Job as Secretary.

With the fight that was ahead, however, it appeared urgent that someone more familiar with the ways of the politician should be chosen. Wilson was on very friendly terms with the retiring chief executive, Governor John Franklin Fort, and they were going to Kentucky together on Nov. 29 for the annual conference of governors. Adjutant General Wilbur F. Sadler Jr. accompanied them, and after conferring with some of the others I suggested to Fort and Sadler that they could render a useful service by quietly putting Tumulty over as secretary to Wilson. They were both red-hot for the idea and agreed that they would lose no opportunity to suggest such a course.

Fort almost spoiled the plan by telephoning Tumulty in advance to ask if he would accept. Tumulty was not pleased about it; he had a growing family, and he wanted to be prosecutor of the pleas of Hudson County. After some argument and delay, however, he was convinced that he should make the necessary sacrifice and finally consented to await the outcome of the trip. Wilson, who had heard Tumulty speak many times during the campaign, was delighted with the suggestion.

Hot shot was poured forth by the Martine and Smith strategists and the newspaper protagonists, until the State was fairly aflame.

Fearful of posible ill effects on the Wilson political fortunes, powerful friends urged the Governor-elect to keep his hands off. Wilson visited Tumulty in the latter's law office at Jersey City and frankly admited that friends had advised him to let the matter drift, that Martine was incompetent, and that the State would resent Wilson's interference.

Tumulty, full of vim, declared that the State was yearning for leadership, that the decent people were in favor of Martine, and that unless Wilson did lead, some one else would assume the leadership, very much to the injury of Wilson prestige. That conference was frequently recalled in the after years and played a pig part in world affairs when Wilson found himself inclined to hesitate. It was a never-failing illustration with Tumulty.

But Wilson did not yield at once to the presure for Martine. There was a row on in New York, where the Tammany leaders were attempting to force the selection of William F. Sheehan for Senator. The revolt was quite as energetic as in New Jersey.

National Democratic leaders began to manifest a lively interest. Cleveland's old law partner, Francis Lynde Stetson, on Dec. 4, 1910, took up with Wilson the critical condition confronting the party and pointed out that whatever choices were made would be taken as decisive of the Democracy's disposition toward the public and public questions. Unles the public was satisfied on this point the result would be immediately to repel the independents, who had helped produce the recent victories, but who were not yet identified with the Democratic party.

Wilson returned to Princeton, and on the evening of Dec. 9, 1910, in accordance with notice he had served on Smith, he issued a formal statement in which he said:

"I know that the people of New Jersey do not desire Mr. James Smith Jr. to be sent again to the Senate. The only means I have of knowing whom they desire to represent them is the vote at the recent primaries, where 48,000 Democratic voters, a majority of the whole number who voted at the primaries, declared their preference for Mr. Martine of Union county. For me that vote is conclusive. I think it should be for every member of the Legislature."

Religious Issue Raised and Is Met.

The battle that ensued was full of bitterness. As usual, where political opportunity offers, an attempt was made to inject religious prejudice. Many of the legislators who had been unexpectedly elected were members of the Roman Catholic Church. So was Smith. It was not difficult to spread the idea that Wilson, son of a Presbyterian minister, was prejudiced. The situation was fraught with many dangers.

Devlin, whose judgment came to be greatly respected by Wilson, suggested that at a big mass meeting to be held in St. Patrick's Hall, Jersey City, Jan. 5, 1911, Wilson should make a point of singling out several prominent Democrats, who were also Irish Catholics, for a word of praise. Devlin picked as the fairest targets Tumulty, John J. Tracy and Mark Sullivan, three able young men who had served in the Legislature.

In the St. Patrick's Hall speech Wilson made the somewhat reckless assertion that Smith was planning to have himself elected by Republican votes if necessary, and that in furtherance of the scheme Smith had been in conference in Philadelphia with the two foremost South Jersey Republican bosses.

This statement was promptly challenged by all the persons named, and upon investigation it was found to be without basis. But Wilson never retracted. There was more of the same kind of extravagant assertion.

On the eve of the election Smith's forces brought a train-load of camp-followers to Trenton; and, headed by a band, they paraded through the streets, passing in review before the majestic Smith himself, who stood on the steps of the Trenton House. This stage-play sent shivers down the backs of some of the Wilson forces, but when the ballot was taken the next day, Jan. 24, Smith got but 14 votes; most of the Irish-Americans in the Legislature did not vote for him.

Tumulty, Devlin, Record and St. John doubtless had more to do individually with getting Wilson to insist upon the election of Martine than had any others in the picture. At a later time, in the White House, Wilson declared that he had probably permitted Devlin more than any other person to influence him. Wilson mostly tried to convince himself that no one really influenced him very much. Devlin was born in Scotland, and this created something of a bond with Wilson, who was fond of his own Scotch blood, which, like Devlin's, was diluted with Irish. Wilson delighted to exchange yarns about Scotland with Devlin.

Cutting Loose From the Bosses.

Soon after the election Joseph A. Dear and his brother, Walter, publishers of the Jersey Journal, alumni of Princeton and friends of Wilson had urged the new Governor to take George L. Record into camp. For years Record had been hammering at corporate domination in the State and through his intelligent agitation had forced many election reforms. As early as 1901 he had got a Republican Governor to put forward a law bringing the primaries, which had previously been the football of the railroad, banking, and other corporations, under the control of the election law. Record had served on a commission to draft the bill, along with two other conspicuous Republicans, Edward C. Stokes, who became Governor and State chairman, and Joseph Munn, an expert on election machinery.

While Record could not get the commission or the Governor to take a stand for wiping out the old convention system, he did manage to slip into the new law a provision permitting any candidate for delegate to a convention to have printed on the official ballot, opposite his name, the name of the candidate he would favor in the convention.

Record and his progressive Republican associates made use of the provision and forced the nomination of rich and able radicals like Edward B. Osborne and Everett Colby in Essex county. That law was really the beginning of the break-up of the absolute domination of the Republican party by the corporations. Other modifications of the primary law followed, including one providing for the expression of a preference for United States Senator. The Martine experiment was the first one tried under the law.

Cutting loose from the bosses who nominated him was the beginning of the real contest that landed Wilson in the White House. From that time forward he was the most successful amateur politician of his generation. It may be that he will take rank as the foremost amateur politician of all time. The fight on Smith Increased Wilson's confidence in the power of his own eloquence.

Discards Theories and Turns Radical.

While the knockout blow that Wilson dealt Smith attracted nation-wide attention because of its unexpected decisiveness, Wilson preaching of a new philosophy served to make him a great national figure overnight.

Between the time of his election in November and his inauguration in January, he found himself discarding most of the pretty political theories he had been teaching to his students. Within three months he had completely shifted from the conservative that Harvey and Smith had so gleefully nominated and was fitting into his program much of the radical political doctrine of the day.

In less than a year he was publicly apologizing for having been wrong in his university attitude against the initiative, referendum and recall. The political doctrines he had been uncompromisingly condemning in his writings and in the classroom were put aside.

As in the Martine case, the four Jersey men who had figured most conspicuously in reversing his policy with reference to direct legislation and other advanced ideas were Tumulty, Record, Devlin and St. John. They had come up out of the rough and knew human nature. Wilson had never attended a public school; he had lived a cloistered life of prosperous colleges and universities and was in theory a great liberal—he preferred that term to progressive.

ow Wilson's Reform Bills Gave Him National Repute

ike Wilson, so also Tumulty, t, Devlin, and St. John were al political rebels. But unlike him they had for years been ying the workings of progressive legislation under William S. of Oregon, and they were full of that sort of information. Senator Jonathan Bourne of Oregon, shortly afterward came on the scene, as did many of the other Republican radicals of the time.

The views of Wilson toward Bryan and La Follette began to soften very fast. Instead of regarding them as a danger to democracy, Wilson now sounded their praises. Out of it all he evolved a certain uncharted political reformation of his own design.

The waves of intense public indignation and disgust at the Government, as stirred up by Roosevelt, Bryan and La Follette, fitted admirably into the situation. Wilson was in a frame of mind to take on the quarrel.

The enmity of powerful Princeton alumni, who had been in the habit of meeting university deficits, had been incurred by his savage fight over the Graduate College. That encounter and the Smith battle proved the preliminaries to his great combat for a new Utopia.

During the Senatorial fight, Wilson had, at the suggestion of the Dears, of the Jersey City Journal, invited Record to Princeton, and an interview of several hours ensued. At this meeting Record suggested that inasmuch as Wilson must, if he hoped to gain national attention, cut adrift from the party machine that had nominated him, it would be well to get around him a kitchen cabinet of men whom he could trust. They could settle upon policies and then assign the actual drafting of bills to those who seemed most competent for each task.

Wilson argued to this except that he thought it was necessary to take into the group the recognized party spokesmen in the Legislature. The party legislative caucus had already been held and the leaders agreed upon, and Record pointed out that to ask some among them would be equivalent to asking James Smith himself to the conference. Wilson, however, felt that it would be unwise to ignore them, and they were included in the list.

Conference Called to Frame Program.

The conference, it was agreed, should frame the legislative program, and Wilson sent letters of invitation calling the meeting for the Hotel Martinque in New York the day before his inauguration as governor. The editors of the four chief independent newspapers of the State were invited; and the others asked in addition to Wilson and Record, included Democratic leaders known to have progressive tendencies, and the legislative floor leaders. When the gathering assembled, Record promptly produced a very comprehensive memorandum outlining the program which he had discussed at length with Wilson at Princeton. Save for the initiative, referendum, and recall, it embodied what had come to be known as U'Ren's Oregon plan of direct legislation, which plan Wilson was to indorse unqualifiedly in his inaugural message.

U'Ren, who was the organizer of the People's Power League, and who had managed to get the primary and election laws and the initiative and referendum into the Oregon statutes, had visited Wilson at Princeton a few weeks earlier and spent considerable time explaining the character of the laws and the experience which Oregon had had in their actual operation. Born in Wisconsin, U'Ren had been a fruit-grower and lawyer in the West, and was an ardent single-taxer. All his activities were directed toward establishing the single tax in Oregon.

At the conference in New York, Record took command and presented the essentials of the primary and election law, and of a corrupt practices act, as well as recommendations for a public utility bill fashioned on the Gov. Hughes bill of New York, and an employers' liability bill, to be based on the report of a recent New York commission. There was some protest that we were proceeding too fast and that the people of a conservative State like New Jersey were hardly ripe for all the Oregon theories.

Wilson Sides With Record.

Wilson, however, sided with Record, and the conference headed for everything that Oregon offered.

To Record was alloted the task of framing the primary bill as well as the blanket ballot and corrupt practices bill. The shaping up of the other bills was subdivided, and the meeting adjourned was to be called together again when the bills were ready for discussion.

Telling attacks in Smith's "Newark Star" caused some change in the program. That meeting provided the Smith forces with their most damaging ammunition. Smith's newspapers lampooned the gathering, emphasizing the point that Wilson had taken a group composed largely of unofficial citizens to New York to frame a program and dictate terms for a Legislature that had been chosen by the people. Wilson, who was still innocent in the ways of politics, had an idea that the conference would be treated as a confidential gathering.

"Of course, everyone will respect the fact that it was purely a private and confidential gathering," was the astonishing statement of the new Governor of New Jersey.

It seemed almost brutal to have to tell him that the Smith camp had doubtless been getting hourly bulletins from the meeting. Smith in his newspapers, for upward of a week, daily published very clever cartoons showing Wilson as a sharp-visaged schoolmaster surrounded by a group of flatterers labeled the "editorial chorus." In screamer headlines the conference was rapped as a secret and reprehensible thing, and Smith directed savage onslaughts at Wilson for having apparently surrendered the leadership to Record, who had been so disturbing an influence to Smith's old friends in both parties.

These attacks had their effect on Wilson. Record was side-tracked for the time being. In a letter Wilson sought to soften the blow by saying to Record, "We are working for the same end though along somewhat different line, which policy dictates and principle does not condemn."

Record had been accustomed to taking political punishment, and he never flinched. On the contrary he effaced himself, and Wilson expressed gratitude to Record "for exercising the good taste you have exercised, in view of the unreasonable, but nevertheless, very mischievous representations recently made by the Star."

Record Withdraws But Does Not Quit.

But while Record felt a delicacy in thrusting his services forward, he did not quit the fight. He proceeded to draw up a primary and election act, a corrupt practices act, and an employers' liability act. These bills he left at the Governor's office, asking the executive clerk to give them to Wilson. They were introduced into the Legislature exactly as Record had drawn them, except in the case of the employers' liability bill.

The election bill, drawn by Record, became the keystone of the Wilson arch. It was a voluminous document. It was duly presented to the Legislature, and when it came up for discussion the practical politicians got in their work. Many amendments were offered. Several were proper enough, while others would have defeated the main purpose of the bill.

At a conference he held with the Democratic leaders, one of the machine men remarked cynically, "The author of this bill would wreck the organization that nominated him." Without hesitation, Wilson, who assumed authorship, replied: "It is true that the organization nominated me, but fortunately it was the people who elected me. Does the gentleman charge that this bill attacks the interest of the people?"

Wilson Insists on Attending Caucus.

This conference, which had been called as a caucus of the Democratic members of the Legislature, was held in the Supreme Court room at the State house. The Smith forces in the Legislature were battering the election reforms rather successfully and Wilson had boldly announced that he, as the Democratic leader of the party in the State, would go to the caucus.

At first there was violent criticism, and much was made of the theory that the legislative and executive branches of government were entirely distinct. At the gathering itself Smith men challenged the right of the governor to be present and intimated that such a course might make him the proper subject for impeachment proceedings.

Wilson stood his ground and in his best fighting spirit declared: "You can turn aside from the measure if you choose; you can decline to follow me; you can deprive me of office and turn away from me, but you cannot deprive me of power so long as I steadfastly stand for what I believe to be the interests and legitimate demands of the people themselves. I beg you to remember, in this which promises to be an historic conference, you are settling the question of the power or impotence, the distinction or the ignominy of the party to which the people with singular generosity have offered the conduct of their affairs.

When the election bill came up for final passage after weeks of tinkering, most of the Smith Democrats in the Legislature had been lined up against it, and when the vote was forced the opposition to Wilson seemed confident that they had it killed.

Record learned that the Essex Democrats were to bolt, and he quietly prevailed upon Assemblymen Jackson and Layden of Passaic County, Republicans, to support the measure, and they, in turn, got a third Republican to vote for the bill. With these votes the measure in its imperfect shape, was put through the House on final passage by a total of 32 votes, one more than the necessary majority.

It was a narrow squeeze. By common consent the Wilson program depended upon the passage of the primary bill. Had not Record been able to get the Republican votes the measure would have been defeated.

With the election bills out of the way, Wilson asked Record to sit in with Senator Harry V. Osborne of Essex and Frank H. Sommer, who had long been a political associate of Record and had already framed a public utility act. Like Record, Sommer gave much time to the Wilson program, and, like Record, he was regarded by most old-line politicians as a bit eccentric, because he was a lawyer who took a livelier interest in ideas and ideals than he did in fees. Record found that Sommer and Osborne had done a good job on the proposed utility law, and he was unable to contribute anything to their work.

In those short few months Wilson had unlearned most of the things about politics that he had been learning and teaching in the classroom. And he had not yet assumed the attitude of bitter partizanship that brought subsequent disaster.

Governor Appoints University Friends.

It was during the three months of that first legislative session that Wilson gave his chief working service to the State. In his subsequent two years as Governor, he was largely occupied with his campaign for the presidency and was mostly on the wing.

In the matter of State appointments he had little interest. Wilson was concerned into placing one or two of his friends of the Princeton faculty who had stood by him in his flight there; otherwise it mattered little with him.

There was no sense of obligation by Wilson to those who had rendered political service to him or the cause. In view of the fact that Record had given three months to framing and carrying the Wilson legislative program, it was suggested that he should get some public recognition. The most desirable place, and the one where Record's talents might best be employed, was the Utility Commission. But Wilson had determined to give that berth to his friend Daniels, and the only other appropriate post open for Record was membership in the State Board of Assessors, with supervision over railroad and corporation property.

Wilson, however, was still fearful of possible adverse newspaper criticism, and he sent for James G. Blauvelt, a ardent progressive Republican who had been giving much help, and offered him the place. Blauvelt not only declined it, but rather vigorously expressed his opinion of Wilson's conduct in taking advantage of Record's experience and help and then being ashamed to reward him for it. Wilson afterward said that nobody in his lifetime had ever talked to him quite so bluntly as Blauvelt did. The upshot of it was that Wilson named Record.

He was particularly anxious that no lawyers desiring to retain affiliation with corporations should be named as prosecuting attorneys. Lawyers, as a class, did not rank very high with him.

When it suited the business in hand, however, Wilson sometimes played practical politics in the most approved fashion. He reappointed, as a matter of course, to the honorary position of trustee of the Trenton School of Industrial Arts, Herman Mueller, a manufacturer of ceramics, who was born in Germany.

Shortly thereafter Wilson invited Mueller to the State-house and in the course of conversation inquired whether Mueller could suggest some outstanding leader to interest the German-Americans of the country in Wilson's Presidential campaign. Mueller replied that most politicians who professed to lead particular racial groups really carried very little sail and that in his estimation it would be a waste of time to bother with that sort of thing.

There was nothing in the career of Wilson that so vastly expanded his reputation as his fight on Smith. It became increasingly spectacular because of the fact that Wilson was giving battle to the very machine which had nominated him. Like his conflict at Princeton, it made him famous and won him outside of his own State hundreds of supporters for every one he lost at home.

Grandmother's Age
Looks like a girl of 19
By Edna Wallace Hopper

Mine is a grandmother's age. My life has been spent in the limelight. Yet I am still a stage star, still a beauty, still a girl. Thousands who see me daily marvel at my youthful bloom. Countless young girls envy my hair and complexion.

I sailed on Steamer Homeric, June 12, 1926, for my 35th trip to France. I go there every year to keep in intimate touch with the latest beauty discoveries.

I have searched the world for beauty aids. The best I found were produced by French experts. I became by their help a famous beauty, gained a glorious career. They have preserved my beauty, kept my youth, as all who see me know.

RECORD PRODUCTION OF BOOKS THIS FALL

Of 4000 Volumes Indexed to Appear Soon 125 Are New Biographies.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—Presses of the principal publishing houses are groaning under a fall production that will approach a post-war record in the book industry.

About 4000 volumes already have been indexed by the Publishers' Weekly, all of which will have made their appearance in a little more than three months' time. It is the largest list since the busy seasons just before the war.

The titles indicate another biography year. "Biography always interests everybody," was the conclusion of Dr. Johnson 165 years ago, and the fall season, by numbers and volume, tends to bear him out. Last year there were 561 biographies published, of which 280 were new books. Twenty-four of them found places in the list of best sellers. This fall alone shows upward of 125 new biographies.

Comprehensive Variety.

The variety is most comprehensive. Conspicuous in the list is the first modern life of "Longfellow," by Herbert Gorman. Poe is represented by three books. "Israfel: The Life and Times of Edgar Allan Poe," by Hervey Allen; "Edgar Allan Poe, the Man," by Mary E. Phillips, and "Poe's Brother," by Hervey Allen.

Four others of great interest to those who follow the American field of letters will be "The Life of Eugene Field, the Poet of Childhood," by Slason Thompson; "Bill Nye: His Own Life Story," with continuity by Frank Wilson Nye; "Eugene O'Neill," by Barrett H. Clark, and "One Man's Life," by Herbert Quick.

European letters are represented by "The Young Voltaire," by Cleveland B. Chase; "Balzac and Madame Hanska," from the French of Vicomte de Spoelberch de Lovenjoul; "Victor Huga," by W. F. Giese, and "Guy de Maupassant, a Biographical Study," by Ernest Boyd.

Biography of Turgenev.

A volume on "Turgenev; the Man, His Art and His Age," by Avraham Yarmolinsky, is the first biography of the Russian to appear in any language.

Anatole France is discussed in five volumes. They are "Anatole France, Voyageur," by Jean Jacques Brousson; "Rambles With Anatole France," by Sandor Kemeri; "Anatole France at Home," by Marcel Le Goff; "Conversations with Anatole France," by Nicholas Segur, and "Anatole France; the Degeneration of a Great Artist," by Barry Cerf.

The English entries, with the same literary appeal, include "Shelley; His Life and Work," by Walter Edwin Peck; "The Life of Swinburne," by T. Earle Welby, three items of Joseph Conrad, and many others.

There are any number of books which concern those foremost in the theater and from Shakspearean theater to circus run four books about show life, either in the higher realms of footlights and spotlights or the lower ones of flaring gas jets.

CHLORIDE, IN TEST, FAILS TO HARDEN ROADS MORE QUICKLY

By the Associated Press.

JEFFERSON CITY, Oct. 16.—Calcium chloride mixed with cement, in an effort to hasten the State road program, failed to produce the desired results, in tests made at the State Highway Department materials laboratory. It was found that the mixture did not harden the road slab much faster than the ordinary mixture, and that it cut down the wearing qualities of the finished road.

Instead, it was announced, more cement will be used in the concrete, shortening the time allowed for hardening, and at the same time giving more strength to the finished highway.

The Highway Department intends, primarily, to use the richer mixture on the main cross-state highway from St. Louis to Kansas City, United States No. 40, in order to assure its completion within the shortest possible time.

At the present time there are only a few short stretches of unpaved highway on No. 40, but these have been giving considerable trouble during the past few weeks, owing to heavy rains.

Construction work generally in the State has been retarded by wet weather, but it is hoped by the highway officials that the new mixture will make it possible to regain the time lost.

AFGHANISTAN RULER'S TITLE

Monarch Recently Rejected "Emir" for "Badshah," Meaning Emperor.

Special Correspondence of the Post-Dispatch.

LONDON, Sept. 24.—His majesty the Emir of Afghanistan has assumed the title of "Badshah," which means Emperor. This is an event, however casual it may seem on the surface, of considerable importance to the politics of the Middle East.

It was only a few years ago that the British Government permitted Afghanistan to be "independent," and even then the ruler was given the title of "Emir," which, in Arabic, means chief, or commander, and no more. But now, in order to emphasize the tactical independence which he has assumed, "Emir" goes by the boards and "Badshah" takes its place. The title was the one used by the Mogul Emperors of Delhi.

Mrs. Nichols Narrowly Escapes Dangerous Ill-Health

Beyond a certain point nothing in the world can call back youth and health. But the remarkable experience of Mrs. Jennie Nichols, 806 W. Olive St., well-known Springfield, Mo., matron proves that suffering in some cases is needless. She says: "I became so run-down that I was always tired, fagged out and drowsy.

"In spite of my troubles, the blinding, splitting headaches, the pains that seared my back, dizzy spells that were so bad I couldn't do my housework, I tried desperately to smile and be cheerful. But it was impossible.

"If I got in a crowd in a store I would have to rest for a time to pull myself together. It must have been my nerves that bothered me. Food caused such severe gas pains and such pressure against my lungs that I could hardly breathe.

"Now working, walking and shopping no longer bother me. I have gained weight and my stomach is in such good shape that I can eat and digest anything. I am always hungry. My husband said that I will eat him out of house and home. He can blame Tanlac. This wonderful tonic has given me health and made me feel like a girl of 16."

Benefit by Mrs. Nichols' experience. Let this marvelous tonic, made from roots, barks and herbs according to the famous Tanlac formula, rebuild your run-down body, give you strength and relieve pain and suffering.

HAD SEVERE HEADACHES, DULL, SLUGGISH FEELING

"Often I suffered from severe headaches," says Mrs. Anna M. Hanley, 2536 Brighton Street, Kansas City, Mo: "I had a dull, sluggish feeling and my work was accomplished only by great effort. Sometimes I had gas pains, which caused me much discomfort. I tried first one thing and then another, but nothing gave me any real relief.

"I had heard about Black-Draught, so I decided to try it, and am thankful to say I was greatly benefited after taking it.

"Black-Draught relieves constipation at once, and after I had overcome that condition, by using it, I found that the other troubles disappeared.

"When I had gotten rid of the poisons, which had accumulated in my system, I felt like a different person. It is mighty easy to let constipation run on, and, in just a little while one becomes 'self-poisoned' and does not realize it.

"Now when I begin to feel the least bit dull or sluggish, I take two or three small doses of Black-Draught, and I find it is all I need to make me feel fit. I keep a box of Black-Draught in the house to use for constipation."

Thedford's Black-Draught is made from selected medicinal roots and herbs and contains no dangerous or harmful mineral drugs. It has been in use for more than 80 years, and has been found to relieve many symptoms when due to constipation, biliousness and indigestion.

Startling Innovation

The New THIRTEENTH EDITION 1926

ENCYCLOPÆDIA BRITANNICA

In the NEW FORM at a Saving of 40% NOW!

Amazing Bargain Offer

New Policy Breaks all Publishing Precedents

WITH the publication of the new Thirteenth Edition, the ENCYCLOPÆDIA BRITANNICA has inaugurated a radical change in publishing policy — a change which makes it possible for YOU to secure this new Britannica AT ONCE —at a sweeping reduction in price!

Another Britannica Triumph

This new policy — a policy without precedent in the publishing business — is another Britannica triumph. This is the latest in a long series of startling and successful innovations which have put the ENCYCLOPÆDIA BRITANNICA far in advance of all other works of reference.

Hitherto, it has been the custom of all publishers to bring out new important works in a single high-priced edition. Costs of book manufacture are high. It is only natural that the publishers should desire to recover their initial costs before bringing out a less expensive edition. But the result has always been that only the well-to-do could afford such a book while it was new.

Why This Offer Is Made

Because the Britannica is primarily an educational institution—and because the splendid new 13th Edition, just completed, is by far the greatest aid to practical education ever produced—both the editors and publishers were anxious to give it the widest possible distribution, regardless of temporary profit.

Old-fashioned conservative publishing policies, which insured a large return from relatively few purchasers, were fearlessly swept aside. Such policies were against bringing out this new edition in a popular-priced form side by side with the more expensive Cambridge Issue, the De Luxe format in which earlier editions have been first produced.

But, to follow old-time custom would mean limited distribution. It would mean that thousands and thousands of persons of moderate income would be compelled to put off buying their sets for many months—perhaps for years.

And so it was decided to give everyone an equal opportunity to obtain this complete new Thirteenth Edition now, at a sweeping reduction in price—a price, in fact, that means a saving of more than 40% as compared with the more expensively bound Cambridge Issue.

How You Can Save 40%

To give YOU this amazing opportunity, 15,000 sets of the complete new 13th Edition have been bound in the NEW FORM—a method first introduced by this Company two years ago, and now famous throughout the world. It was instantly acclaimed a master stroke of genius, and more than 60,000 sets were sold in this popular form.

The specifications of the NEW FORM have been published broadcast, in every civilized country in the world. These specifications, which are the secret of the amazing success of the NEW FORM, make it in many respects the most attractive, compact and convenient form in which the ENCYCLOPAEDIA BRITANNICA has ever been issued. They are:

(1) Large type, easy to read.
(2) Complete and latest text (nothing omitted, nothing altered).
(3) Fully illustrated. (All the original plates, maps, etc.)
(4) Sweeping reduction in price. (More than 40% below the price of the famous Cambridge Issue.)

How We Can Do It

How is this amazing bargain made possible?

First of all, by means of mass production. More than twenty-two acres of floor space were required at our printing plants to produce this Thirteenth Edition in the NEW FORM rapidly and economically. Huge orders were placed for all materials. Britannica resources made this possible.

Second, by binding the 32 volumes as 16 (two volumes in one cover), thus saving 50% of the binding cost.

Third, by printing the NEW FORM from the same plates used in the higher-priced Cambridge Issue, thus saving the cost of resetting 33,000 pages of type. The use of these plates is your guarantee that the text is identical in both issues.

What You Get

You get in the NEW FORM everything contained in the more expensive Cambridge Issue—and at an amazing bargain!

You get the same 45,000 separate articles, by more than 2,500 world-famous authorities covering every branch and every avenue of human activity, from the beginning of the world, right down to this very hour. Such famous men and women as Albert Einstein, founder of the Theory of Relativity, Henry Ford, Bernard Shaw, Marshal Foch, Sigmund Freud, Andrew W. Mellon, L. Trotsky, Joseph Caillaux, Dr. Adolph Lorenz, Senator Marconi, George Eastman, Mme. Curie, Dame Millicent Fawcett, and Suzanne Lenglen, are numbered among these contributors.

You get also the full record of man's achievement during the "short but tremendous epoch" from 1910 to 1926—those transforming years in which the world has gained a century.

You get timely, practical information concerning all the new developments—actual figures and specifications for your immediate use.

ACTIVITIES OF BOY AND GIRL SCOUTS

SCOUTMASTER SCHOOL FOR ST. LOUIS LEADERS

Obtaining Harmony Between Troop Heads and Members Object of Course.

"Boyology," or the study of the characteristics of boys of scout age, with the view of determining the best ways to obtain harmony and teamwork between a scoutmaster and his scouts, will be the subject of a new advanced course at a scoutmasters' training school, which will be opened by the St. Louis Council of Boy Scouts a week from Tuesday.

The course, with another in Nature Study, is an addition to the standard "Introductory" and "Advanced" courses given by the school in the last two years, and is intended for men who have completed the other two, or for older scout leaders who desire this theoretical background to supplement their practical experience.

The course differs from the other courses given by the school in that it treats the scout as an individual, rather than a unit of the troop organization. The ways of meeting individual differences in the boys, problems of discipline, and vocational guidance will be among the subjects considered. It will concern the human side of scouting rather than scouting activities.

The Nature Study course, under R. M. Jones, camp naturalist of the Irondale Reservation last summer, is also for more experienced leaders. It will cover general natural history, but the emphasis will be placed on the first class and merit badge nature requirements.

Although the details have been changed and improved, the introductory and advanced courses will follow the general lines of those given last year. The first will deal with the troop as a whole, with troop organization and drill, tenderfoot, second, and first-class requirements, hikes, and project work. The advanced course will concern patrol problems particularly: the function of the patrol, duties of the patrol leader, patrol project work and hikes, and merit badge requirements.

The place of meeting will depend upon the enrollment, which is now going on, the committee in charge selecting a place in the district which furnishes the largest number of students. Notice of the choice will be mailed to those enrolled.

One hundred and seven scoutmasters who completed the training course last year were presented with certificates at the fall Court of Honor at the Scottish Rites Cathedral last Tuesday evening. The enrollment at the last school was 172.

Winter Home for Ladybirds Fails.
By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Oct. 16.—British ladybirds are temperamental. They won't come home to roost in nice little winter quarters provided for them by the Ministry of Agriculture, so they may get busy on the green fly early in the spring. The ministry collected many thousands of the ladybirds last year and put them in cork homes at the Rothamstead experimental station, Harpendent. A good proportion survived the winter, but, as they cannot be taught to fly home and farmers cannot be expected to gather them by hand and put them there, the experiment has proved a failure.

Troop Activities

South District.

Edward Werner, Charley Schaefer, Ralph Fischer, Ted Laux, Bob Stuckmeyer and Chester Conway, scouts of Troop 131, helped headquarters cut down and trim trees used in tepee for the Indian ceremony at the Court of Honor last Tuesday evening. Scouts Henry Fox, Lee Mockler and Louis Horton of Troop 198, and Scouts Edward Kendall and James Liddle of Troop 63, also assisted headquarters in making ready for the court.

Seven new scouts were taken into Troop 27 in the first investiture ceremony of the year a week ago Friday evening. Field Executive Merle D. Shippey presented their tenderfoot pins.

Troop 63 has reregistered with 27 boys. Former Deputy Commissioner Shephard, who was scoutmaster of this troop before becoming deputy commissioner, has resigned and will again take over the leadership of the troop.

Thirty-five merit badges were passed by scouts of Troop 77 last summer, one of the boys, Richard Buch, becoming an Eagle Scout, and two others, Lawrence McDougal and Price Reed, becoming Star Scouts. Reed and Buch also were two of the few scouts to gain the rank of Honor Camper at Camp Irondale. Those passing merit badges were: Richard Buch, 12 badges; Lawrence McDougal, 5; Hollis George, 5; Price Reed, 5; Robert George, 3; Dick Skiver, 2; Arden Grey, 2, and Norwood Markham, 1. Buch has been appointed Senior Patrol Leader.

The troop is planning an overnight hike to the Lions' Den next week end. The scouts have charge of the booth on mining in the Merit Badge Exposition at the Coliseum Oct. 28-30, and seven boys have passed the mining merit badge in preparation. Robert Barrell, a mining engineer, and mining merit badge examiner, is assisting the troop to prepare for the exhibit.

Wilson Rainer and Scoutmaster Louis F. H Schmitt of Troop 178 of the Scruggs School received Eagle Scout badges at the court of honor last Tuesday evening, and 14 other scouts received 37 merit badges. There are now five Eagle Scouts in the troop. Wilson Rainer is leading in an individual contest and the Fox patrol is leading in an inter-patrol contest being held by the troop. The Troop Committee will take the scouts on a hike in Illinois today.

Twenty-one scouts, Scoutmaster C. A. Hollweg, and Assistant Scoutmaster A. K. Traber hiked 46 miles from the end of the Bellefontaine car line to Wahler's farm on the Lemay Ferry road a week ago yesterday. Several of the boys passed their 14-mile hike test on the trip. The program consisted of scout work and handicraft instruction, outdoor games and a snipe hunt. Nine fathers of the scouts were at the farm later in the day.

Anthony Schiley has become the new scoutmaster of Troop 215. The first meeting with the new scoutmaster was held last Wednesday evening, with eight boys present.

L. W. Roeder has resigned as Scoutmaster of Troop 244. Dr. Voss of the Troop Committee will be in charge until a successor is chosen.

North District.

North District troops are preparing for the third annual District rally to be held at Kenwood Springs next Saturday afternoon. The rally will start at 2:30 p. m., with contests in fire-building, signalling, water-boiling and other scout activities. These will be followed by a barbecue supper and a campfire program in the woods. Several of the larger troops have agreed to act as hosts to smaller troops or individuals who are unable to furnish their own supper. Troops desiring to take advantage of this offer have been asked to notify local headquarters that they may be assigned to one of the host troops.

Troop 19 had a "surprise meeting" a week ago Friday, the entire program being run backwards. The main events were an Indian hike and a treasure hunt. The troop will have charge of the craftwork in metal booth at the Merit Badge Exposition Oct. 28-30.

The Mothers' Club of Troop 33 celebrated its first anniversary with a party and reunion last Friday evening. Both present and former members of the troop were invited.

The four patrols of Troop 72 were to take hikes today in practice for the north district rally next Saturday. Manuel Joseph is patrol leader of the Cobras, Clyde Turnblau of the Eagles, Walter Acton of the Beavers, and Clarence Martin of the Silver Foxes. Each patrol is also working on separate projects in the troop handicraft class which meets every Friday night under Mr. Wakefield.

West District.

Troops 2, 101 and 150 reregistered last week.

Troop 17 of the First United Presbyterian Church, University City, held its first fall meeting last Friday, with a new scoutmaster, Victor Weir, at its head.

Troop 28 held its first offical meeting of the season last Wednesday evening. Paul Miller will again be scoutmaster.

Troop 106 of the Grand Avenue Second United Presbyterian Church has been reorganized under the scoutmastership of Leroy Lorenz.

Troop 119 of the Shaare Zedek Congregation hiked to Nelson's farm, northwest of St. Louis, last Tuesday evening, and held a campfire program. The troop specializes in hikes, Scoutmaster Senturia believing they are one of the best methods of advancing a troop in scouting.

Troop 195 of the Mount Calvary Evangelical Church reorganized a week ago Friday night under a new scoutmaster, August Richter. Former Scoutmaster W. L. Quigley, who has been with the troop for several years, resigned because of lack of time for the work, but has agreed to remain as assistant scoutmaster.

Troop 30 met indoors for the first time in several months last Wednesday night. They have been meeting in Forest Park and out in the country. A signalling and a knot-tying game were the main events of the evening, although several tenderfoot tests were passed. This troop has voted to increase its active membership to 40 scouts.

Suburban District.

Troop 2, Kirkwood, formerly an independent troop, is now sponsored by the Grace Episcopal Church of Kirkwood. Walter L. Clarke has become scoutmaster, and Scout Clarence Rex has been appointed junior assistant. There are 16 boys in the troop.

Troop 4, Kirkwood, has resumed meetings for the winter, under Scoutmaster P. R. Pray. The boys are taking a special interest in nature work, and have invited R. Mansfield Jones, Camp Irondale naturalist, to speak to the troop.

Troop 3, St. Charles, has voted to send representatives to every Court of Honor, and a number of the scouts attended the last one at the Scottish Rite Cathedral Tuesday. To overcome the difficulty of reaching the merit badge examiners here, these scouts will come to St. Louis as a group at certain intervals to pass their tests.

Clarence Duenke's eagle patrol won a fire-by-friction contest held by Troop 3, Webster Groves, a week ago last Friday. The Eagles barely nosed out the Wolves. New games were played, including throwing a ball at bags of peanuts suspended by strings from the ceiling, anyone breaking a bag getting the peanuts. A hike in the near future is planned.

A parents' night, with moving pictures and "eats," was the order of the night at the last meeting of Troop 9, Webster Groves, Thursday. Chairman A. C. Caldwell of the Troop Committee arranged the program. Scoutmaster C. S. Pollack of Troop 155 was a guest and talked on advancement in scouting.

GIRL SCOUT TROOP ACTIVITIES

The landing of Columbus was commemorated in a special Columbus day program given by Troop 15 last Tuesday evening. The meeting room was turned into Columbus' ship, and a dramatization of the voyage to America given by the girls. A flag ceremony, an examination of the girls' ideas of good citizenship, nad the singing of patriotic songs completed the program.

Coenea Troop 56 has adopted the plan of having one of the girls take charge o fthe opening ceremony of each meeting, Lorraine Roche being the first girl appointed. She led the troop in a flag ceremonial last Monday. The girls sang in the choir at 7:30 o'clock mass at Our Lady of Sorrows Church this morning. The troop will decorate part of a window in a drug store at Kingshighway and Rhodes avenue this week in observance of National Girl Scout week.

Troop 23 of the St. Marcus Evangelical Church has pledged $60 to the Deaconess Hospital fund, the sum to be paid in $5 installments every three months. The entire amount is to be raised by each girl contributing 1 cent every meeting night, the troop treasury remaining untouched.

TRIPS TO ST. LOUIS FOR TEN '4-H' CLUB MEMBERS IN STATE

A trip to St. Louis and a week's stay in the metropolis is offered to boy or girl leader of ten—"4-H" clubs in rural Missouri through a contest to be sponsored by the Women's National Exposition, together with the extension division of the agriculture and home economics department of Missouri University. The "4-H" clubs are conducted in rural communities as a part of the extension program in agriculture and home economics established by the Smith-Lever act of Congress.

The ten who will make the trip are to be selected on the basis of their effectiveness as club leaders in their communities. A fund has also been set aside to pay the expenses of a championship demonstration team in some home economics project to the next Women's National Exposition, to be held in St. Louis Jan. 29 to Feb. 9, 1927, so that they can perform as part of the exposition.

A. J. Meyer, director of extension service, and T. T. Martin of the Missouri University School of Agriculture, will direct the contest. Mrs. George Niedringhaus, chairman of the Board of Directors of the Women's Exposition, will have charge of the boys and girls while they are in St. Louis.

Best Way to Loosen Stubborn Cough

Here is a home-made syrup which millions of people have found to be the most dependable means of breaking up stubborn coughs. It is cheap and simple, but very prompt in action. Under its healing, soothing influence, chest soreness goes, phlegm loosens, breathing becomes easier, tickling in throat stops and you get a good night's restful sleep. The usual throat and chest colds are conquered by it in 24 hours or less. Nothing better for bronchitis, hoarseness, throat tickle, bronchial asthma or winter coughs.

To make this splendid cough syrup, pour 2½ ounces of Pinex into a pint bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup and shake thoroughly. If you prefer, use clarified honey, instead of sugar syrup. Either way, you get a full pint—a family supply—of much better cough syrup than you could buy ready-made for three times the money. Keeps perfectly and children love it.

Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract and palatable guaiacol, known the world over for its prompt healing effect upon the membranes.

To avoid disappointment, ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with directions. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co, Ft. Wayne, Ind.

Cross, Feverish Child is Bilious or Constipated

Look, Mother! See if tongue is coated or stomach sour

"California Fig Syrup" can't harm tender stomach, bowels

Every mother realizes, after giving her children "California Fig Syrup," that this is their ideal laxative, because they love its pleasant taste and it thoroughly cleanses the tender little stomach, liver and bowels without griping.

When cross, irritable, feverish, or breath is bad, stomach sour, look at the tongue, mother! If coated, give a teaspoonful of this harmless, "fruity laxative," and in a few hours all the foul, constipated waste, sour bile and undigested food passes out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again. When the little system is full of cold, throat sore, has stomach-ache, diarrhoea, indigestion, colic—remember a good "inside cleansing" should always be the first treatment given.

Millions of mothers keep "California Fig Syrup" handy; they know a teaspoonful today saves a sick child tomorrow. Ask your druggist for a bottle of "California Fig Syrup," which has directions for babies, children of all ages and grown-ups printed on the bottle. Beware of counterfeits sold here, so don't be fooled. Get the genuine, sold by "California Fig Syrup Company."

Mothers! Apply Common Sense

THIS is the era of the prevention of disease and sensible people do not wait until sickness has actually come before remedying the trouble. The crowded hospitals everywhere are sad examples of the results of neglect. Be especially watchful of children. Restlessness, lack of normal appetite and feverishness usually indicate constipation. Give a spoonful of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin at once and you will help to prevent real sickness.

A Great Family Laxative

It may be difficult to decide just what medicine to use out of the many that are offered, but it would not be if you knew the facts. There are laxatives, cathartics, purgatives and physics, and they vary in their reaction on the system. Naturally, the stronger the medicine, the more it shocks the system, so wise parents never give anything but a laxative to children. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a mild laxative, a vegetable compound of Egyptian Senna with pepsin and desirable aromatics, and so appreciated that it is now the largest selling preparation of its kind in the world, over 10 million bottles being used annually. The formula is on every package.

Three Rules of Health

Always keep a bottle of Syrup Pepsin in the family medicine chest. Give it to any one from infant to grandparent, for it is safe, and the cost is less than a cent a dose. Give it for constipation, torpid liver, indigestion, biliousness, headaches, colds and other evidence of bowel obstruction. Dr. Caldwell, who was a practicing physician for 47 years and who originated this formula, had three rules of health that he found very effective among his patients, which you can follow with great benefit: Keep the head cool, the feet warm and the bowels open.

Letters to K S D Tell How Fans Enjoyed World Series, Dempsey-Tunney Fight, National Political Convention and Notable Addresses.

LETTERS that still are coming to the Post-Dispatch indicate that no radio broadcasting from St. Louis ever brought so many persons around so many loud speakers as the recent baseball world's series.

Nor that St. Louis ever has rallied to sympathetic support so many cities and towns in the Southwest and Southeast.

It is apparent that in hundreds of towns in the territory contiguous to this city, business virtually ceased during the playing of the Cardinals-Yankee games and was superseded by community gatherings to follow the fortunes of the Cardinals as related by Graham McNamee, seated in Sportsman's Park or Yankee Stadium in New York and pouring through KSD, a vivid, human, rapid-fire account of the year's sport classic with all its trimmings.

Comment on World Series.

The letters sometimes are signed by as many as 20 persons. Others have come from town postmasters telling of gatherings of hundreds and sometimes thousands before the loud speaker. They have come from hotels and other places of convenient gathering, from persons in their homes, from classrooms in public schools, from radio "parties," from hospitals and from individual shut-ins. KSD was sought everywhere within its range.

Samples:

"Rain or no rain, the people of Bonne Terre are on their perch like owls, both eyes open watching progress of the game." It is significant that "both eyes," not both ears, were open. That is the universal comment. It was seeing, not hearing the game.

"I saw the fifth and, I think, the best game of the series, but am frank to say that I think getting it over the radio gave me about as much kick in the other games as witnessing them."

Flag Ready to Hang Out.

From the Postmistress of Albers, Ill.: "We had the American flag all ready to hang out when KSD brought us the moment of Cardinal victory."

From a shut-in at Ames, Ill.: "God bless the man that invented radio."

Wilson, a mining town of Illinois: "They carried by radio over to the mine so that the men could hear the game while at their work."

"I am not much of a baseball fan. At least, I was not at the beginning of the world's series, but it started coming in and I just couldn't leave it, it was so exciting. Mr. McNamee is the sheik of the air."

260 Patients Thank KSD.

The Illinois State Hospital at Chester: "The patients of this hospital, 260 of them, ask me to thank the Post-Dispatch for its jolly, good accounts of the world's series."

"We had a houseful today listening to the game, and when the Cardinals won, the rejoicing was just like the papers said it was in St. Louis—everyone shouting."

Evansville, Ind.: "We could hear the band play 'the Star-Spangled Banner,' the cheers of the crowd and the rooting. As for victory, we could see that through Mr. McNamee."

Birmingham, Ky.: "How glad we are to send our congratulations to the dear old Cardinals. Just what the radio means to us in a small town never can be estimated."

"Attended Every Game."

"I have a party of engineers in camp out in the sticks. Through you, we were able to attend every game."

"We had the Cardinals' pictures printed on the Post-Dispatch set up beside the radio and we just almost saw the game."

"We are just as happy as you are at this minute—3:33 p. m—and we want to thank you for the great pleasure you have given us through the entire series." This was signed by nine persons.

"I had cream in the freezer and soup on the stove for Sunday dinner. I became so excited that the cream froze in lumps and the soup boiled down to hash. Who cared?"

Pupils in City Appreciative.

In St. Louis the comment was similar. Thousands of persons here who could not get into Sportsman's Park stayed in their homes. It is probable that no residence block in the city was without its radio party on the afternoons of the games. Letters from this city all express the gratification of being able to "almost see the games" In the public schools, where some of the games were received by radios, groups of children wrote their glee at the Cardinals' victory and joy at having been able to follow the play.

Many letters commented upon the gratification of owners of crystal sets that the privilege of hearing the play was not restricted to eight-tube "plutocrats." As is known, the play from New York was carried to the Post-Dispatch upon a highly specialized telephone line and then put upon the air here, which brought it to the humble crystal set as well as to the more expensive sets.

The public service of KSD was made more impressive following closely as it did a similar outstanding performance in giving, with similar clarity and vividness, the progress of the Dempsey-Tunney fight at Philadelphia. It was the first time that radio listeners were privileged to a radio ringside seat at a world's championship fight and the number of letters that came to KSD at that time indicated the similar great pleasure of the uncountable radio audience.

The better sets caught, at times, the smack of the gloves and the shuffle of the boxers' feet as they came to the side of the ring at which the announcers were stationed. The report was not limited, as in most broadcasting, to the repetition of the battle as brought in over cold telegraph wires, but pictured crowd, setting and events outside the ring. The audible babel of the 130,000 told its own story of the excitement which thereby was repeated in thousands of circles about receiving sets.

Notable Contribution.

From time to time, in the four years of its existence, KSD has made notable contributions to the radio ears in and about St. Louis. In many respects it was a pioneer station—the first to be established west of the Mississippi River.

The first time that a President of the United States discussed a public question over radio was through the microphone of KSD—the address of President Harding in the St. Louis Coliseum in 1923, when he was making the tour of the nation upon which he died. Since, KSD time and again has carried the voice of President Coolidge—upon his inauguration and repeatedly in discussion of problems of the national Government.

General Pershing stood before a radio microphone for the first time in the KSD studio and was startled to receive a message from a friend in Porto Rico, saying that he had listened and had heard clearly.

KSD was the first station to broadcast a complete program of a symphony orchestra and followed this up by broadcasting the entire winter series of the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra. It similarly was the first to broadcast opera—for three seasons sending out on the air the excellent performances given in the Municipal Theater and also broadcasting grand opera as given by the San Carlo company upon a visit to St. Louis. This station was the first to broadcast the entire professional production of a play in a theater—from the Empress.

It was the only station in the United States to put out the inspiring music of the choir of the Sistine chapel of St. Peter's in Rome.

Conventions and Notables.

It broadcast both the last Democratic and Republican national conventions from a microphone set down in the very center of things in the convention hall and older members of the radio audience likely never will forget those days of 1924 when they could turn a finder and get at almost any hour of the day or night: "Alabama casts 24 votes for Oscar W. Underwood."

KSD has carried out from time to time to St. Louis and the states surrounding it the voices of John W. Davis, Charles Evans Hughes, John W. Weeks, Herbert Hoover, Vice President Dawes, David Lloyd George, Anton Lang, the famous Christus of the Oberammergau Passion Play, Rudolph Valentino.

When the novelty of the radio wore off and numerous stations began to send out programs of the character in which KSD had pioneered, this station turned from its own studio programs, contributed largely by volunteers, to the chain program, upon which paid, professional artists were appearing. It now is linked with WEAF of New York, in the opinion of most listeners, now is giving the outstanding programs in the nation.

HAVE KIDNEYS EXAMINED BY YOUR DOCTOR

Take Salts to Wash Kidneys If Back Pains You or Bladder Bothers

Flush your kidneys by drinking a quart of water each day, also take salts occasionally, says a noted authority, who tells us that too much rich food forms acids which almost paralyze the kidneys in their efforts to expel it from the blood. They become sluggish and weaken; then you may suffer with a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or side, headache, dizziness your stomach sours, tongue is coated and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges.

To help neutralize these irritating acids, to help cleanse the kidneys and flush off the body's waste, get four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy here; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days, and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help flush and stimulate sluggish kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in the system so they no longer irritate, thus often relieving bladder weakness.

LEGION'S POLITICAL STATUS UNCHANGED

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 16.—While several thousand "buddies" of the American Legion were parading and having a good time here, an earnest body of a thousand or more delegates to the convention was endeavoring further to place the Legion in the life of the nation. Just what political power the Legion ever will wield, as the Grand Army of the Republic wielded after the Civil War, still is a question. An effort is being made to adhere to the constitutional provision in the Legion charter, which forbids the use of the organization for the dissemination of partisan principles.

The Legion, of course, differs widely from the G. A. R. The latter is purely a sectional organization. It represented the Union against the Confederacy. It felt it had to protect the Union, even after the war was won. The country had just passed through its greatest crisis since the days of the Revolution.

The American Legion represents every section of the county—North, East, South and West. It is in a sense a symbol of a country reunited for more than 50 years. The World War, from which the Legion grew, however, left no very great problems for this country to solve—except, of course, the question as to our future international relations. That question soon developed into an academic discussion. The war left America richer than ever, and since 1918 the people of the country have been busy making more money and not worrying about the future.

Difficult to Place Itself.

It has been rather difficult for the Legion to place itself. Naturally, the Legion has been interested in seeing that a square deal be given the wounded and disabled veterans of the World War and still will guard jealously the comrades who were broken in camp or battle. But the whole citizenry has been almost equally interested in seeing to the same thing, and there has been no issue drawn.

The Legion has been interested in preparedness and seeing to it that in any future call for troops there will be universal service with no opportunity for slackers of profiteers.

Last year, the Legion went so far as formally to indorse and recommend America's entrance into the World Court. Since that time, a storm of politics has raged about the issue. So, this year, the Legion defeated a resolution which would have restated the position of last year in favor of the court. There was lively debate which ended when the suggestion came that the Legion, under its constitution, should not engage in partisanship, and as the Court has become a dominant political issue, involving wings of both the old parties, the Legion has stepped aside.

There has been a fight under the surface to place the Legion on record either for or against the collection of the foreign debts growing out of war borrowings by the allied nations.

No Action on Air Service.

There also has been an effort to get the Legion on record as favoring a unified air service, for which Col. William Mitchell fought. While a committee report has favored the Mitchell air service plan, with a cabinet officer to head the department of aviation, the Legion itself postponed action until another year.

There is no doubt that when the Legion first was organized some of the men back of it were impressed with the political power of a unified force of 4,000,000 men who were called to the colors, with more than 2,000,000 seeing service overseas. It was argued that the young men of the A. E. F. and of the service in this country, should take their place in politics. Many of them have. Already, there are several United States Senators who were in the World War, and possibly a score of Representatives in the House.

Legion membership today is around 700,000 and now, that the organization has got upon a stable basis, it is expected the membership will grow to 1,000,000 if not 2,000,000. It is quite evident the Legion will not lend itself to any one's personal political ambitions. It has urged all men and women who can vote to do so, but it has taken no partisan political position.

PRIVATE GAMBLING IN LONDON

Society Folks Purchase Own Roulette Outfits.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Oct. 16.—Denizens of Mayfair, back from their continental holiday, have so had their appetite whetted by the casinos of France and Monte Carlo that they find bridge slow work.

They have purchased private gambling outfits and roulette or baccarat now take the place of bridge at many afternoon and evening parties. Stakes thus far have been limited to small amounts and the games indulged in only by the wealthiest set.

U. S. Naval Monument at Brest.

PARIS, Oct. 16.—Brest has been chosen as the French port at which a monument will be erected to commemorate the participation of the American Navy in the World War. The monument will stand on a high terrace overlooking the harbor, where most of the members of the American Expeditionary Forces landed and departed.

PARIS DANCERS WEAR LABELS
Letters of Black Velvet Fastened Above Elbow at Social Functions.
By the Associated Press.
PARIS, Oct. 16.—The "labeled dance girl," with the name of the dancer—Estelle, Marie, Jeanne or Jeanne—cut out in black velvet on a decorated armlet of the same material is the new freak of fashion seen at early autumn social functions.
The armlet is fixed up above the elbow, in place of the more stereotyped slave bracelet of gold, ivory or jade. One particular cutout with the letters of the wearer's Christian name, lay outlined in rich black velvet against the whiteness of the skin. Besides names, monograms and monomarks, lucky emblems are being cut out in similar armlets, while another variety of the novelty was shown by a girl wearing a black velvet bracelet which had a cutout of a cat as the medallion in the center.

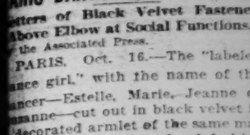
A Sure Way to End Dandruff
There is one sure way that has never failed to remove dandruff and that is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this just get about four ounces of plain ordinary liquid arvon from any drug store (this is all you will need), apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.
By morning, most, if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and two or three more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.
You will find, too, all itching and instantly, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.



BLEMISHES yield to its antiseptic action. Permanent defects are concealed by a subtle film of adorable beauty. A pure skin of exquisite loveliness is yours thru its use.

PREPAREDNESS OF RED CROSS DESCRIBED

Review for Fiscal Year Shows $3,871,827 Spent for Relief in That Time.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16.—A "great national phalanx of preparedness" has been set up by the American Red Cross to grapple with relief work such as that recently necessitated by the Southern Florida hurricane.

Thus the organization, in its annual report, describes the numerous Red Cross chapters that have grown up over the country. The report, made public today and covering the fiscal year ending last June 30, added:

"Red Cross chapters generally have been increasingly vigorous in perfecting strong, alert disaster relief committees," and consequently "a very large portion of the United States is covered with this disaster preparedness plan. With unfailing accuracy and speed these chapter committees have moved into action when disaster has struck their communities. Chapters are studying their local disaster hazards more carefully."

During the fiscal year the Red Cross participated in 90 disasters including 62 within the United States. The year was the first since the World War that the organization was not called upon to serve in some great disaster, the New Jersey munitions explosion, the Louisiana hurricane and the Florida storm all having occurred since June 30.

For disaster relief in the United States, the organization spent $3,871,827 during the year, $229,000 of which was furnished by Red Cross chapters. A total of $53,075 was expended for foreign disaster work.

For operations in connection with the mid-West tornado, which killed 800 and left approximately 30,000 homeless, the report listed $2,963,159 as expenditures during the fiscal year, which brought the total spent in the disaster to $3,297,537.

Declaring that the community as well as state and national authorities are looking more and more to the Red Cross as the "disaster agency best equipped by organization and experience to handle their relief and rehabilitation problems," the report outlined preparedness plans carried out during the period covered and called attention to the forthcoming tenth annual roll call for Red Cross membership in November as an opportunity to help the organization advance in efficiency.

KRISHNAMURTI EXPECTED IN ST. LOUIS WITH DR. BESANT

Understood He Will Accompany Leader of Theosophists Who Is to Speak Wednesday.

It is understood that Dr. Annie Besant, international president of the Theosophical Society, will be accompanied to St. Louis next Wednesday by Krishnamurti, the young Hindu, sometimes referred to as the New Messiah. Dr. Besant has expressed the opinion that the advent of a new World Teacher is imminent and has frequently attributed to Krishnamurti the spiritual values essential to lead the world to a religious awakening.

The subject of her talk in the Odeon Wednesday night will be "The Coming of a World Teacher." At 78 years of age, she is regarded as an unusual orator and for many years has been a leader among women in affairs affecting labor, politics, suffrage and religion. Her most recent attention has been to a solution of India's complex political ills and she was influential in the preparation of the Commonwealth of India bill prepared by the National Convention of India.

SEVERAL TRAVEL FAR TO ATTEND COLLEGE REUNION

Graduates from Mexico, Chile and the Philippine Islands attended the homecoming celebration of the Missouri School of Mines at Rolla last week.

Stanislaw Lesniak, a member of the class of 1917, traveled 3000 miles by horseback, canoe, launch and rail from the swampy jungles of Tehuantepec, Mexico, to attend the celebration which ends today. He has been an oil geologist in Southern Mexico for nine years and this was his first trip out since he began his work there.

Another graduate, who traveled from Chile, South America, is James L. Head, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Head of 5775 Kingsbury boulevard. He is a mining engineer in Chile. Among the graduates with long distance records was one man from Honolulu, P. I.

SOME BRITISH AUTHORS BEHIND IN THEIR READING

LONDON, Oct. 16.—Several of the better known British authors have never read certain mid-Victorian novels which have become household classics, so the Daily Express has discovered, while a few others have "discovered" them only recently for the first time.

Arnold Bennett, for instance, has just read "A Tale of Two Cities."

The audacious young author of the "Diary of a Young Lady of Fashion"—Magdalene King Hall—has selected at random from a list of unread tomes "The Last Days of Pompeii" by Bulwer Lytton.

How the Post-Dispatch Told New York City What St. Louis Thought of the Victory of the Cardinals.

To transmit, by wire, full page advertisements shows the American spirit of speed in thought, action and perfot nance. In addition to the context of the advertisement, shown above, the Post-Dispatch telegraphed instructions covering the sizes and styles of type, the "cuts" and the arrangement of the display. The instructions were interpreted so accurately in New York by two newspapers and by the Post-Dispatch in St. Louis that the three pages, when placed side by side were almost identical.

Newspaper Advertisements Sent Over Telegraph Wires

A few seconds after Station KSD—the St. Louis Post-Dispatch—broadcast to hundreds of thousands of ardent baseball fans, Graham McNamee's announcement that the Cardinals had won the world's championship, the clangorous pandemonium of joyful celebration shook The Billionarea from border to border.

The spontaneous outburst, which hitherto had not been equaled in St. Louis, seemed to demand immediate communication of St. Louis' sentiments to New York.

To accomplish this in the quickest possible time reaching the greatest number of people, the Post-Dispatch prepared and sent by wire a page advertisement for insertion in the New York Times and the New York Herald-Tribune. The "copy" was delivered to the telegraphers in St. Louis at eight o'clock Sunday night and before dawn Monday morning the New York newspapers had dispatched to more than a half million homes the message contained in the reduced reproduction of the full page at the left.

This is probably the first time in the history of the world that a message of this kind has been transmitted in this manner, half way across the continent in such a brief space of time.

MINERS IN ILLINOIS SEEK MORE EDUCATION

Attend Lectures on History and Economics in Eight Towns of Coal Belt.

By the Associated Press.

TAYLORVILLE, Ill., Oct. 16.—Groups of coal miners in eight Central Illinois towns have started on the way to a college education.

Living one-third of their time underground, these miners have evinced a desire for culture, that Tom Tippett, miners' educational director, is meeting. His work has attracted attention not only in this country, and the success of his efforts is seen in the fact that two of his adult pupils have already gone on to Brookwood College.

"For two years," said Tippett, "the miners, realizing that betterment of their conditions was up to themselves, have been attending lectures and writing lessons in eight different coal mining towns. We stressed history and economics and finally adopted regular courses in English.

Began With History.

"Imagine grown men, tired by their day and night shifts, working hundreds of feet below surface level in damp ground, willing to forego ordinary pleasures to listen to lectures on Columbus, European history, the American colonies and the Civil War. Many of them, immigrants, with practically no schooling, thrill to the stories of their former countries and hear for the first time the history of America.

"Our first studies began with the early civilization of Egypt and ran over the high lights of early European history, on down to the invasion of Mexico by the Spaniards. Then Columbus and America. The colonies, independence and the building up of the country as we know it today. We considered why workers left the Old World for the new, which led us into account of the workers' part in American history and the story of early trade unions.

Take Up Economics.

"When we came to the Civil War we had to go further with our study than the surface causes, for we had to consider the two different economic systems in the North and South—wage slavery as well as chattel slavery. We had to follow the Negro from Civil War days to the present time when we meet him knocking at our union halls for admission.

"From reconstruction days we had to again sidestep the general route and consider the machine and the worker—the factory system and the birth and growth of the American Federation of Labor. We ended what had begun as a history course with the World War and the post-war condition of the world. Then we began a straight course in economics.

"Without the background that the subjects above mentioned gave, most of our students would have been at sea, but as it turned out they carried the economics course very well."

Dirigibles Locate Shoals of Fish.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Oct. 16.—Navy dirigibles, operated by officers in training, have been unusually successful in locating shoals of sardines and herring for fishermen off the coast of France. Previous trials with airplanes had met with indifferent success, but the dirigibles, able to remain longer over the areas searched, locate the fish with great accuracy. The presence of the fish at various points is relayed to the nearest port where fishermen assemble. The service costs the fishermen nothing as the work is done in the course of the regular navy aeronautic training.

THREE TO FOUR YEARS WASTED

Saint Louis Woman Found Relief From Her Ailments Only Through the Use of the Great Herb Extract Remedy Known as Herb Juice.

"I just figured that I have practically lost three or four years and that much time has been entirely wasted owing to the fact that I was in such a condition that I did not enjoy anything and was unable to do anything well. I have regained my health through the use of your Herb Juice and I am truly grateful," said Mrs. Lillie Kemper, 1312 Cass Avenue, St. Louis, Mo., in a recent conversation with the special representative at Walgreen's Drug Store.

MRS. LILLIE KEMPER.

"At present," continued Mrs. Kemper, "I am in better health than I have been for some time. For four years I have suffered from constipation in its worst form. At times I became so dizzy that I could hardly walk. I was also restless and nervous and unable to sleep at night. After my day's work I would go home at night all tired out, but could not rest. I knew that I was not going to last long if I kept going on like this. Naturally, I tried everything that was recommended for such ailments, but nothing ever seemed to be just the right thing. My sister, knowing of my ailments, recommended Herb Juice to me, saying she had taken it with wonderful results. I didn't have much faith in it, as everything else had failed me, but as a last resort I gave it a trial. And I was really surprised to find how much better I felt after the first few doses. I am no longer constipated and am never bothered with those dizzy spells any more. I don't have that tired, worn-out feeling any more, and after my day's work I go home feeling more energetic and full of life than I have for some time. I have a splendid appetite and just feel better generally. I have gained 8 pounds in weight and am still gaining. It has certainly given me wonderful results and I am glad to indorse it and do not hesitate to recommend it to everyone."

Don't fail to see the Herb Juice man direct from the Herb Juice laboratories, who has established headquarters at Walgreen's Drug Store, 514 Washington ave., and learn more of this great medicine that has relieved thousands of people right here in St. Louis. This great Herbal Extract remedy called Herb Juice now selling at the rate of a million bottles yearly.

DEMAND FOR FURTHER CUT IN TAXES GROWING

Senator Harrison's Statement on Matter Backed Up by Lumber Association.

Post-Dispatch Bureau,
20-23 Wyatt Building.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16.—Democratic demand for immediate further tax reduction is voiced by Senator Pat Harrison and backed up by statements issued by the National Lumber Manufacturer's Association. The Mississippi Senator in a statement reiterates the charge that the administration is holding back a further tax cut until the 1928 campaign and accuses the Republicans of being "tax reduction dodgers."

"The present surplus in the United States Treasury demands an immediate downward revision of Federal taxes," insisted the Senator. "Saving tax reduction until the next campaigns will not fool the people. They want it now, and the apparent intention of the Republicans to postpone it will be strongly resented at the polls in November. A substantial tax reduction at this time, besides affording great relief to the taxpayers throughout the country removes the invitation for further Republican extravagance in appropriations."

Mellon's Reluctance Assailed.

The lumber association pleaded especially for a lowering of the corporation tax from 13.5 to 10 per cent "at this session." Assailing Secretary Mellon's reluctance about reducing taxes, the association declared:

"The Federal Treasury has shown a surplus of nearly $400,000,000 for the last year. Recipts for each quarter are now in excess of receipts for the corresponding periods. It would seem but reasonable that Congress take early action on further tax reduction rather than continue the rates carried in the 1928 revenue bill.

"If a general revision is impossible in the short session, then at least a cut in the corporation rate should be effected," the association argued.

Senator Swanson (Dem.) Virginia, said he had been at work on a general reduction plan. Senator Simmons (Dem.) North Carolina, is to draft a concrete proposal for presentation at the opening of the session in December.

Sentiment for Cut Gaining.

Notwithstanding the strong administration opposition and the Treasury's warnings that the existing law has not been operating sufficiently long to warrant a downward readjustment, the sentiment for a tax cut at this session is gaining much headway and will furnish one of the major battles of the session. There is little doubt, however, that the Republican majority can avoid action, and so far the clamor for reduction has not altered the situation. Each side accuses the other of playing politics with the issue.

Chairman William R. Green of the House Ways and Means Committee announced that his committee will meet Nov. 15 to take up the vexed question of return of alien property and that, "no other bills will be considered." The Democrats, however, will make a fight to force consideration of a tax bill which must go through the mill of this committee first.

Burn Whole Edition of Weekly Paper Expounding It, as They Chant Psalms.

Special Correspondence of the Post-Dispatch

WARSAW, Oct. 1.—Interesting details are given by a Wilno newspaper as to the fate of atheist propaganda among the peasants of White Russia, just across the frontier. The Atheist, a weekly specially written to convert the peasant, is scattered broadcast through all the villages every Friday, but miraculously disappears before Sunday, in spite of all the efforts of the authorities.

Recently a whole convoy of the weekly was destroyed in a most spectacular manner at the village of Samochwalowicz. It was solemnly burned on the village green, while the peasants sang the penitential psalms under the leadership of the parish priest.

The latter was afterward arrested and transferred, under very strong guard, to Reszczenicy. The bolshevik press is continually tearing its hair over the growing religious enthusiasm among the peasants. There is a widespread belief that the bolshevik regime is a foretaste of the reign of Antichrist and that the second coming is not far hence. Prayers for its speedy approach are made.

Most Films in Germany Made in United States.

BERLIN, Oct. 16.—More than half of the motion pictures shown in Germany so far this year were "made in the U. S. A.," the Board of Censorship has reported. Only 34 per cent of the total of approximately 400 new films were German. The remainder came from other European countries, principally Russia, and most of these occasioned bitter controversies. Several like "Potemkin" were declared to be soviet propaganda and were thrown out after they had run for some time.

TO RENEW ACTIVITY IN HEALTH LEGISLATION

Tuberculosis Society Program for Coming Winter Exceeds Former Ones.

Increased activity along legislative lines will mark this year's winter program of the Tuberculosis Society of St. Louis, plans for which eclipse all former years, it was reported at a meeting of the Board of Directors yesterday by Homer Hall, general counselor for the Wabash Railroad, who is president of the society. The campaign for legislation will embrace city, county and State governments, and will ask not only for the enactment of more health measures, but will attempt to have some of its activities absorbed by other agencies.

"The work of the Tuberculosis Society in every department is really work that should eventually be paid for by taxation," Hall said. "The aim of the society as laid down by the National Tuberculosis Association for its affiliated agencies is to promote the demonstration of various forms of antituberculosis work with a view to turning over such activities to the proper health authorities when their value shall have been proven. In other words, the Tuberculosis Society is striving to gradually have all its activities absorbed by city, county or State departments."

The summer program of the Tuberculosis Society particularly followed this plan, according to Hall, sponsoring a number of demonstrations, in addition to its regular work. Unlike most social agencies which can partially discontinue their work in summer, the Tuberlosis Society is as busy in summer as in winter.

Year-Round Activities.

The Night and Day Camp, the residential school, and the day open air schools are open the year round, except for a two weeks vacation of the day open air schools, which means that the social service department is busy the year round too, and as a rule even busier, for many more girls attend camp during the hot weather than cold. The other departments of the society also continues their regular work during summer.

Perhaps the outstanding demonstration during the summer was the one carried on to show the relationship of dental defects to mental and physical retardation of school children. The need for this demonstration was brought out when it was learned that of 425 children given dental inspection, 383 had more than 1000 dental effects. The project was carried out in Pershing School in University City with the co-operation of the County Dental Society, the School Board and Parent-Teacher Association, and the results are now being tabulated for study. The real aim of the demonstration is to show the advisability of employing school dentists as one means of keeping the children healthy and free from diseases such as tuberculosis.

Need for Schools Shown.

Another demonstration promoted this year by the Tuberculosis Society through its parochial school committee was the Health Institute for Catholic teachers, which aims to show the need for health instruction to be included in the college curriculum for teachers. One of the most forward steps in health work, according to Hall, is the inclusion of health as one of the required subjects in the grade school curriculum, and the next step is to have health included in the college curriculum so that the teachers will be prepared to teach it in the most effective manner.

The need for open air schools, Hall said, was demonstrated long ago by the society, the Board of Education now being responsible for the building and equipment of the schools, with the exception of the Residential Open Air School. However, the Tuberculosis Society has continued to pay for the meals of all the children who cannot afford to pay. This amounts to approximately $30,000 each year, and the next step of the society will be to turn this work over to some legislative department of the city or State, so that it may pursue new activities in the health field.

The winter program includes the continuance of the various activities of the Educational Department, the Research Department, the Social Service Department, the Health Talk Bureau, the County Health work, and the Health Promotion Department, with enlargements and innovations in every branch.

448,231,000 PERSONS IN CHINA

Special Correspondence of the Post-Dispatch.

SHANGHAI, Sept. 20.—The population of China is estimated at 448,231,000, according to figures made known by the Chinese economic bulletin. Of this population 11,657,000 live in cities, with Shanghai leading the list with 1,500,000 residents, not including foreigners. Hankow outstrips Shanghai by 83,900, but these figures include the neighboring cities of Wuchang and Hanyang, which are just across the river.

Szechwan province, least known of China's provinces and perhaps hardest to reach, is the most populous, having 76,613,000 residents. Some idea of the rural life here is gathered from the fact that there are only two cities of considerable size: Wanhsien, which has 756,600, and Coungling, with a population of 608,100. Manchuria boasts a population of 19,290,000. Canton's census shows 900,000.

BERLIN LOSES 'ROTTEN ROW'

Car Tracks Being Removed From Middle of Kurfuerstendamm.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, Oct. 16.—The "Rotten Row" of Berlin, which runs through the middle of Kurfuerstendamm, the Broadway of the aristocratic West End, will soon be a memory.

Car tracks are being removed from the street and laid on the bridle path where once rode members of the House of Hohenzollern and the nobility. "Rotten Row" lost its glamour when Wilhelm II fled to Holland. And the increasing traffic made necessary the replacement of the car tracks. But the two lanes of elms will remain so that in summer street cars will travel through a bower of green.

SYNDICATE BUYS DELMAR SITE FOR APARTMENT HOTEL

ABOUT $125,000 FOR SITE REPORTED

Board of Education to Buy New Location for Administration Building and Will Sell Old Quarters.

By Berry Moore.

Announcement of plans for large apartment structures for uptown St. Louis formed the distinguishing features of the week in realty.

A site with a frontage of 150 feet on the north side of Delmar boulevard near Grand has been purchased by a syndicate in connection with plans for a $1,000,000 apartment hotel. It embraces the present home of the Young Men's Hebrew Association, at 3645 Delmar boulevard, and a residence adjoining on the east.

Negotiations for the site were handled by the Gordon-Horen Realty Co., which disclosed the hotel apartment plans. A theater for vaudeville performances or moving pictures is under consideration as a feature of this enterprise.

The Gordon-Horen concern declined to give the names of those interested in the project. Approximately $125,000 was paid for the site, according to the agency. These figures, however, could not be verified.

The Knights of Pythias recently purchased the northwest corner of Delmar and Grand for a 15-story building. A profit of $100,000 has been declined for this site.

A new building is being erected for the Young Men's Hebrew Association at Union boulevard and Delmar avenue.

New School Board Building.

It was told in Friday's Post-Dispatch, the Board of Education had concluded negotiations for the purchase of a site of 120 feet on the east side of Grand boulevard between Franklin and Bell avenues for a new administration building. The site is just north of the new Saum Building at Grand and Franklin, which occupies the site of the former Y. M. C. A. building.

The present owners of the site are Jack Dubinsky and Harry Kopelson, who recently acquired it under a tax foreclosure.

To Sell Structure.

Plans of the Board of Education contemplate the sale of the present administration building, a seven-story structure occupying a quarter of a block at the northwest corner of Ninth and Locust streets, along with the high-class retail development of this section of the city has become too valuable for its present use.

The Grand boulevard site is only a short distance north of the St. Louis Theater, built by the Koplars and the late David Sommers, and is in a section whose development is keeping with the proposed new building.

Work has begun preparatory to carrying out plans of the Fox Film Corporation at Grand and Washington. A theater with office building or hotel above is to be built, it is understood.

Two large money contracts were closed during the week for a number of large holdings in the business and residence section. Details are withheld pending execution of deeds. The market throughout the city displayed new buoyancy. An increased volume of transactions is presaged.

M. O. PAC. OBTAINS TITLE TO CORNER

Title to the southeast corner of Seventh and Olive streets, 50 by 150 feet, was conveyed last week by Rachel K. Theron E. Catlin and Frederick W. Allen, to Arthur Cochran, vice president of the Henry Weisels Co., Inc., and by him assigned to the Missouri Improvement Co., a subsidiary of the Missouri Pacific Railroad. This property comprises part of the site, 100 by 150 feet, assembled by the Henry Weisels Co., Inc., and Holbrook-Blackwelder Real Estate Trust Co., for the proposed new 17-story Missouri Pacific office building. The price paid, according to Weisels, was between $180,000 and $200,000. The Francisseus Realty Co. represented the Catlins and Mr. Allen and Henry R. Weisels Co., Inc., and Holbrook-Blackwelder Real Estate Co. the purchaser.

The Catlin property consists of a four-story brick building, and an additional building on the east soon to be wrecked to make way for the new Missouri Pacific building.

CHRISTIAN BRINKOP REPORTS SALES ON THE SOUTH SIDE

The Christian Brinkop Real Estate Co., 3621 South Grand boulevard, reports the following sales: 4427 Grace avenue, a bungalow, for a client to Carl Rueck; 4011 South Spring avenue, bungalow, for a client to William L. and Hazel Rueck; 4301 Grace avenue, Spanish type bungalow, to Edward P. Three thousand eight hundred and eighteen families in the United States and Canada were provided with homes through mortgage loans issued during September by the Prudential Insurance Co. of America. These loans and those made on other properties amounted to $17,479,272, according to A. M. Woodruff, a vice president of the Prudential.

BUILDING OF HOMES IS BEGUN IN GREENDALE

Building activities have begun in Greendale. One two-story brick residence is being erected by J. O Mooney of Overland. Contract for a Spanish type residence is being let by W. B. Jarvis, 5411 North Kingshighway. Arrangements will be completed for 10 residences the first of the week with J. F. Mathews, 4500 McPherson avenue, who will begin to build immediately.

All improvements are completed. These include asphalt streets, granitoid walks and curbs, water, sewers, electric lights, telephone, fire plugs.

$100,000 IN NEW HOMES ON OSAGE HILLS TRACT

A number of homes, the cost of which is more than $100,000, are now in course of erection in Osage Hills, Big Bend boulevard and Meramec River, according to announcement of Bixby-Smith, Inc., 316 North Eighth street, owner and developer of this community suburb.

Unlike the average home section, Osage Hills has at the beginning a completeness of community life, including the best transportation, city conveniences, a good school and shopping facilities.

The development of the Osage Country Club, with splendid new club building, swimming pool and golf course, and the building of streets and sewers has quickly brought it into being as a real home suburb.

Trapshooting is one of the sports to be fostered by the country club. The facilities for this popular pastime are of the best. They will be tried out today. Interest in this sport by members of the club has revealed the fact that there is a growing liking among hundreds of St. Louis citizens for the skill of marksmanship.

MOVI

STUDENT SUICIDE HAD BEEN CAUGHT IN THEFT

He and Another, Who Took Poison With Him, Stole Milk From Doorstep.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

LA GRANGE, Mo., Oct. 16.—Fear of expulsion from school and disgrace in the eyes of their parents as a result of being caught taking milk from a neighbor's doorstep, is believed by investigators here to have been behind the suicide last Wednesday night of Barton Glascock, 18 years old, and the attempted suicide of Harry Childers, 19, both students at La Grange College.

Glascock, whose home is on a farm near New London, died in convulsions an hour after he and his chum had exchanged mock toasts over their glasses and swallowed poison in Glascock's room in Nunn dormitory.

Childers, also a farm youth from near Monticello, it is said, will recover. Fellow students, hearing groans, investigated and found both youths prostrate on the bed. A physician was called and emergency treatment administered. Parents of the youths will demand an official investigation.

Both boys, it appears, had been given to brooding over their unpopularity in the student body and their lack of funds and, since the beginning of the current session, both had remained apart from their fellows.

Earned Living Cutting Corn.

Both made fair grades in their classes, and Childers, a freshman, was known as a hard worker, earning his living by cutting corn in nearby farms and other odd jobs. When not working, he was usually to be found in his room or in Glascock's. The two were boon companions, but although the school, which is a junior college, had only 142 students, these two were scarcely noticed by the others, and took little part in student activities. They simply chose to isolate themselves.

They had been in trouble with the authorities once prior to the milk escapade. That resulted from their practice, begun soon after school opened, of carrying revolvers. Students in the dormitory complained about it and a warrant was sworn out against Childers. He was arrested last Wednesday and fined $5 and costs. Glascock already had disposed of his weapon. Childers explained he had carried the weapon for protection against a youth in a neighboring town who had threatened him after a quarrel over a basketball game, and this matter was straightened out with the college authorities. Dr. John Crouch, president of the school, accepting his explanation and assisting him to pay the fine. Then came the milk affair and the consequent threat of expulsion.

For several days, John Fleer, who resides near Nunn Dormitory, had been missing bottles of milk left by a driver at his door each night. Wednesday night he lay in wait. About 9 o'clock, two youths picked up two bottles. Fleer pounced upon them and dragged them under a light. They were Glascock and Childers. He released them, but threatened them with arrest and declared his intention of reporting the matter to President Crouch.

Buy Poison 10 Minutes Later.

Ten minutes later the youths visited a drug store and purchased poison, which, they said, they meant to use to poison mice in the dormitory. Accompanied by Ted Wooster, another student, they returned to Glascock's room and mixed the poison in two glasses of water. Wooster, looking on all, thought they were joking. The potions mixed, Glascock picked up his glass and sail, "Let's go." Here's to you." Childers took his glass and remarked, "This seems like insanity, but here goes." They drank.

When they fell over on a bed a few moments later, Wooster, who still thought they were playing a prank on him, got up and left the room. It was not until several minutes afterward when groans continued to come from the room that he summoned other students and investigated.

Childers, now rapidly recovering, says their act was prompted simply by the fact that they were "scared" and hated to face their parents after possible expulsion from school. Glascock had been heard before to declare he would end his life rather than go home in disgrace. Last year, shortly after his entry into the school, he was discussing the expulsion of another student with Mrs. Lisa Patterson, matron of the dormitory. "They would never expel me," he is quoted as saying. "I would commit suicide before I would go home like that."

$2,957,000 EXPENDED IN MISSIONARY WORK

United Christian Society Reports $500,000 Gain in Net Assets in Year.

The United Christian Missionary Society, which has its offices at 315 De Baliviere avenue, has issued a digest of its sixth annual report, to be submitted to the International Convention of the Disciples of Christ, to be held in Memphis next month.

Receipts for the last fiscal year were $2,803,360.10, of which $1,008,846.66 were special funds and $1,794,513.44 general fund available for support of the regular missionary and benevolent work of the society. The United Christian Missionary Society and six old boards list gross assets of $12,207,-913.91 with net surplus over direct liabilities as of June 30, 1926, of $11,926,030.51, being a gain in net assets of nearly $500,000 during the year. Permanent endowment fund of the United Christian Missionary Society and five old boards are shown to be $1,869,234.98.

Expenditures of the United Christian Missionary Society for the year were $1,885,755.82 from the general fund and $1,071,044.94 from the special funds, making a total of $2,957,196.76. This was a saving of approximately $25,000 from the appropriated budget of estimated expense. The largest items of general fund expense were foreign missions and home missions, which totaled more than $1,-000,000.

The Department of Foreign Missions reports work on 10 foreign fields with 4827 baptisms during the year. This is the largest number in any single year of the work. The Department of Home Missions made appropriations for pastoral support to 141 churches, of which 41 came to self-support. These churches report a total of 2122 additions to the membership during the year. Special and general evangelists in the employ of the United Christian Missionary Society report 2591 additions during the year. The ratio of net gain for the Disciples of Christ was 6.1 per cent last year.

JERRY TARBOT NOT BEAUPRE

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16.—The belief of Israel M. Greenberg of Baltimore, that "Jerry Tarbot," the nameless legionnaire who has lost his memory, is George Beaupre, a former marine, failed today to stand the test of comparison with Marine Corps records.

The records show that a George Edward Beaupre enlisted in the corps in 1917 at Philadelphia and deserted in July, 1919. His finger-print records and personal description do not tally with those of Tarbot.

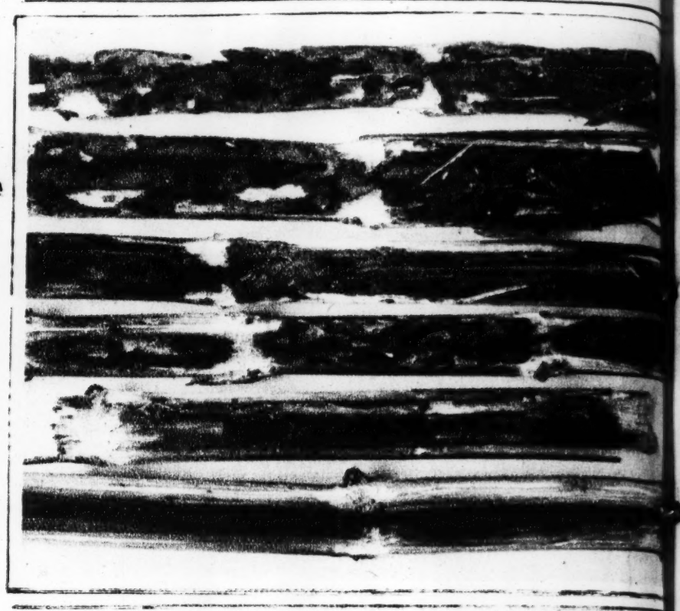
TUTANKHAMEN'S COFFIN OF GOLD

From color photographs taken in the tomb by Harry Burton of the Metropolitan Museum of Art, New York, and reprinted exclusively in America in the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine by special arrangement with the Illustrated London News. The world copyright is reserved.

No treasure-trove of history has so caught and held the interest of the world as has this great work of Egyptian artists. It is the coffin in which the body of the youthful king, Tutankhamen, lay for 3275 years in a hidden and forgotten tomb. It was beaten out of $250,000 worth of bullion, burnished and engraved in beautiful and intricate designs by the master artists of the time. Into the gold were set semi-precious stones picturing the protective symbols which were to guard the king through the outer darkness. The coffin is an image of Tutankhamen, in the form of Osiris, the Egyptian god of Light.

White Ants, Unseen, Make a Meal of a Hous

Millions of Tiny Insects Creep Upon a Structure Through Underground Passages and, Working on the Inside of Timbers, Eat Their Way to the Attic. Usually Their Presence Is Unsuspected Until a Floor Caves in or a Hollow Beam Collapses. St. Louis Entomologist Tells How to Guard Against Them.



Stalks of sugar cane hollowed out by termites.

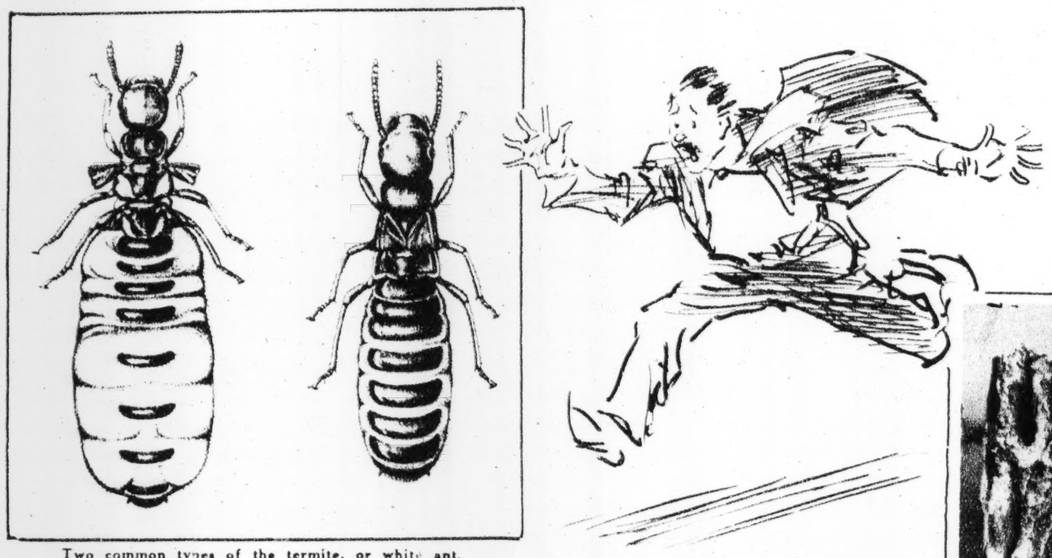
WHEN a piano mysteriously fell through the floor of a residence in Pasadena, California, a few weeks ago, the first thought of the astonished householders was that which naturally comes first to any Californian when the furniture starts doing strange antics—earthquake. They expected the walls to crumble, too. As it happened, the walls might easily have crumbled, but they didn't, and when they didn't the inhabitants got bold and investigated. Discovery of the cause of this weird domestic phenomenon quickly turned their alarm into amazement. The tumble of the piano had been caused by white ants! A section of the floor six feet square had been left literally hanging in the air, ready for a fall. The termites, those insidious workers in the dark, had eaten away the supporting beams and even the laths, so that only a thin surface of flooring and the plaster of the room below had been left to hold up pianos or whatever else might be placed upon it.

Pasadena, of course, was fairly familiar with white ants and their habits before this accident occurred, but it had not taken the insects very seriously. This served to call forcible attention to their presence and to start communication with the Bureau of Entomology of the Department of Agriculture in Washington. When the Bureau got through saying what it had to say in answer to their inquiries the investigators had learned several things more about white ants that it was not comforting to know.

They learned that even the Government buildings of the Department of Agriculture itself were infested with the minute invaders; that $140,000 recently appropriated by Congress to repair damages resulting from termite depredations was exhausted; that the cost of pulling out and replacing timbers in the buildings occupied by the Treasury Department alone had amounted to $25,000, and this on top of similar repairs from the same cause only two years ago. And the buildings of the Agriculture and Treasury departments were by no means the only ones attacked in the national capital. The list included the Capitol, the new National Museum and the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, as well as some 50 private dwellings, including those of a Cabinet officer, two Senators and the Chevy Chase Club. The latter structure, in fact, was undergoing repairs costing $50,000. Other cities, it was stated, were suffering just as heavily as was Washington. Reports of serious damage had come from such widely separated points as Houston, Tex.; Miami, Fla.; Burlington, Ia.; New Orleans, St. Louis, Los Angeles, Kansas City, New York, Boston, Denver and a score of other cities in the North, South, East and West. The whole country, it seemed, was in the grip of an invisible "ghost army."

WHEN the fall of the piano was followed a few days later by the plunge of a sofa from the second to the first floor of another house from the same cause, Pasadena became alarmed as well as astonished. The chief building inspector at once began an exhaustive survey of wooden structures in the city. In 25 different types of buildings examined he found that 24 showed marks of the termite's ravages. In one instance the roof of a garage with a spread of 2000 feet was found to be in imminent danger of collapsing. Thanks to the tumble of the piano and sofa, it was saved, and with it were probably saved the lives of some of the workers in the building. But, having found the source of the evil, what was Pasadena going to do about it? Or, for that matter, what was Washington or any other city going to do about it? What is there that can be done about white ants?

It was to gain an answer to this question and to learn something more about the work of the destructive insects that a Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine reporter recently visited Dr. Herman von Schrenk, consulting engineer and consulting entomologist to Shaw's Garden, who has given considerable time of late to combating the invasions of termites in St. Louis. Regularly every spring appeals for help come to him from a score or more of St. Louis householders, many of them owners of elaborate homes in exclusive residential sections. These, he says, represent only a small percentage of the residents who are troubled by termites, who know what the trouble is and report it. The great majority of those beset by white ants either don't report it or else don't know what the trouble is themselves. Usually the insects have worked havoc in the interior of beams and joists of buildings before their presence is detected at all. Here are a few facts about termites as summarized by Dr. Von Schrenk:



Two common types of the termite, or white ant.

TERMITES, more commonly called white ants, live and propagate in vast colonies underground. They work in absolute darkness, as long exposure to sunlight kills them.

They live on dead organic matter and find any kind of dead wood an especial delicacy. Virtually no wood, however hard and dry, is immune to their attack, unless it has been treated with creosote.

They never travel across a lighted area to enter a house, but invariably gain access underground or at a point very near to the ground. They become destructive to a building only when they have access, by thousands or perhaps millions, from the underground nest. A few thousand carried into a house on kindling wood, for instance, can do no damage.

Eating as they go, they work from cellar to attic, hollowing out large timbers and leaving mere shells which show no surface sign of weakness. Because they remain thus on the inside of timbers they are seldom seen at work and are hard to combat with poisons, sprays or disinfectants as other insects are combated.

There are three main types of the insects in a colony, namely: the sexed individuals which propagate the species; the workers, which do most of the damage, and the soldiers, which defend the workers against other insects.

The type most commonly seen is the sexed type, or winged ants, which are frequently observed swarming in the spring, and pouring out of holes in decayed stumps. Numerous as they are, these flying individuals constitute only an infinitesimal part of the colony. The workers, which have no wings, constitute probably 99 per cent.

All except the winged type are blind. However, they are possessed of an uncanny smeller and can detect the presence of a rotten board at a great distance. Detecting it, they make a bee-line for it underground.

IT IS virtually impossible to exterminate the pests. They can't be reached with chemical weapons. Once they are in a house, the best way to combat them is to find their place of entry and stop it with cement. A better way, however, is to bear them in mind when building a house and take certain precautionary measures which will be discussed later in the course of this article.

"Invariably," said Dr. Von Schrenk, "persons troubled by these insects inquire, 'What good are they; what purpose do they serve in nature?' In their defense, it must be said at the outset that they have a certain usefulness. Like mosquitoes, flies and fungi, they are natural scavengers. They play a definite part in the economy of nature by eating dead organic matter and converting it back into soil. If it were not for such natural scavengers, the surface of the earth would soon be so littered with dead matter that it would be uninhabitable. The trouble with white ants is they don't discriminate between waste matter and expensive homes. It is the same instinct that makes them eat both. If the house is more convenient than the waste matter they eat the house.

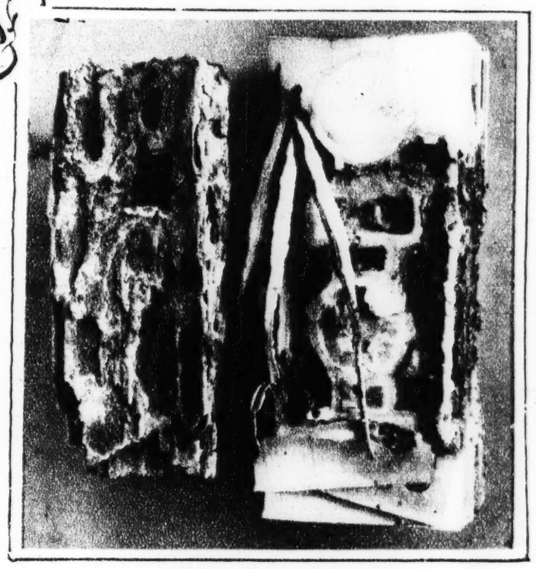
"Another fact which is a cause for surprise to many persons," continued Dr. Von Schrenk, "is the fact that with certain climatic restrictions, they are everywhere. It is safe to say that they are everywhere in the tropics and in the warmer half of the temperate zone. In the United States I have heard of them as far north as Hanover, New Hampshire, in the East; Des Moines, Iowa, in the central part and Seattle, Washington, on the Pacific coast. Whether a region is moist or dry appears to make no difference. They are as active in the desert regions of Southern California as they are in Louisiana. Indeed, virtually all of the State of California is infested with them. In this country they have been recognized as a scourge for only a comparatively short time. Many appear never to have heard of them at all and I think the fact that they are reported to be on the increase is due merely to the fact that more people are finding out what the trouble is. What they used to think was natural decay they are now discovering is largely the work of white ants.

This is the way a timber looks when it is infested with the destructive insects. The holes are made for the exit of the winged forms, the workers remaining in the dark interior.

"In tropical countries the inhabitants, although less civilized, have known about the habits of white ants for centuries. Especially in Africa are they numerous and destructive. An African explorer once told me they were so thick and so ravenous in the Belgian Congo that if a man with a wooden leg should sleep all night on the ground he probably would wake up to find his wooden leg had been eaten off. He wouldn't have been harmed otherwise, at least by the ants. Now that may sound like an entry in a liars' contest but it was told in all seriousness, and I know from observation of the insects' work that it is not impossible. These ants often build tunnels of earth to shelter them from the light on their journeys to and from the feeding places. In some parts of Africa they build these across railroad tracks and build them so thick and so large that it is actually necessary for section crews to dig them off to prevent the blocking of railroad trains.

"PANAMA is also a sort of paradise for the termite. A few years ago the insects almost paralyzed the power system of the Panama Canal by eating off the insulation of electric wires and thus short-circuiting the current. In some cases this insulation was lead. Great damage has also been done by them to various sections of woodwork comprising part of the Canal structure. They are also a source of tremendous annoyance to the inhabitants of the region. The winged ants swarm in immense numbers at certain seasons of the year and find their way into houses as flies do. There they dart into the faces of the residents and into the food on the table. It is said the constant thought of the insects, the constant battling to keep them out of the soup and the resultant hurried eating cause marked digestive disturbances among the harassed people and also give rise to peculiar nervous disorders.

"The termites in the United States seem to be less numerous and somewhat less virulent than those of the tropics, but their ravages are serious enough and can no longer be ignored as they have been in the past. The passerby or the casual inspector might not suspect it, but there are dozens of fine homes in this city which have all but had their very floors eaten out. That is one of the worst features of the termite plague. Like disease germs, their presence is often not made manifest until the whole structure is undermined. A family may live in a house for years while the destructive work is going on and yet never see the insects or the slightest indication of their activity until all or part of the weakened structure collapses or a thin shell somewhere breaks through. Some of these homes are among the most beautiful of Portland place and Westmoreland place. In several the hardwood floors have been attacked from below, so that, in some small areas, little more than the outer varnished surface remains. The sills underneath, of course, are likewise honeycombed and in a weakened condition."



A pile of documents ravaged by white ants in the U. S. Bureau of Engraving and Printing.

A visit with Dr. Schrenk to the laboratories of Shaw's Garden afforded ample proof of these assertions. There he had collected numerous specimens of flooring and sills taken from infested buildings in St. Louis and elsewhere. Some of the heavy sills were literally cut in ribbons, that result having been due to the fact that the insects followed the grain of the wood and ate out the softer layers, or spring wood, leaving the alternate harder layers separated like the plates of an automobile battery.

There was also to be seen evidence in confirmation of Dr. Von Schrenk's statement that termites were "everywhere." The small, soft-bodied, grayish-white workers were to be found on the under side of boards imbedded in the ground; on wooden pegs that had been driven into the ground as markers; in rubbish heaps. They were even to be found in the buildings in the garden itself. Dr. Von Schrenk tapped on several window facings in the old structure used as a laboratory. They sounded hollow. He pried one loose and there were revealed the tunnels of the ants and the accumulation of dry, earthy matter, which marks their trail. To the average observer, the work might be attributed merely to decay.

Having thus made his case against the termites, Dr. Von Schrenk was ready to discuss possible remedies for the evil.

"IT IS of little use," he declared, "to try to exterminate the insects already in a building. In the first place, you can't get at them. In the second, it wouldn't do any permanent good if you could. No matter how many you kill off they will keep coming as long as they have a means of access from the ground and they multiply so rapidly that the killing of a few hundred thousand makes little difference. Various fumigants have been used successfully for clearing them out of infested furniture. (They do attack furniture and even books and paper. Two years ago it was discovered too late, that they had ruined hundreds volumes of geological records of the United States Geological Survey in Washington. Some arsenical poisons also have been used with temporary success, the theory being that, since the termites are cannibals, they devour their dead, the arsenic consumed by the first invaders would thus be passed along. These measures, I believe, are merely worthless for practical purposes.

"The first thing to do when it is found that a house is infested with termites is to find their place of entry and stop it with cement. It may take weeks to find the place. It often does. But it must be found. It may be that a timber, or several of them, rest on the ground or are driven into the ground. It may be that a timber projects into the ground through the concrete floor of the basement. In either case, the termites would have no trouble in getting to all parts of the structure. They simply climb the beam on the inside, hollowing out as they go. If the house is of brick it may be that there is a hole in the mortar near the ground. The ants find it and, even in a wall, they go where they like. Whether it is, the hole must be found and stopped. Once it is stopped and other means of access from the ground are closed, the situation is in hand. The ants already in the house can't last long enough to eat it down. They must keep coming in vast numbers from the underground nest.

"THE best way of all to combat termites, however, is to guard against them when the house is built. In Germany and Japan and some other countries considerable attention is being paid to this. In America we are mighty careless about such things. We build houses with the supporting timbers in direct contact with the ground. We build them with timbers projecting through the basement concrete, and, after all is done, rake up a few wagon loads of board ends, chips, shavings and wooden scraps and bury it in a trench or cover it over with earth when the ground about the house is graded. It is just like putting up a big 'welcome' sign and saying to the termites: 'Here is your camp ground.' With their acute sense of smell, they spot those molding wooden scraps and rally to the scene. They eat the scraps first and then they start snooping around the house underground. They find those projecting beam ends or the hole in the wall and in they go.

"When a house is built, all these scraps of wood should be carefully raked up and burned, or at least hauled to a safe distance, so that the insects, after eating them won't turn upon a house. In the second place, care should be taken that upright timbers in the basement end in the concrete but do not go through it to the ground. Steel and iron should replace wood where ever possible, but if wood must be left in contact with the ground, it should first be treated with creosote. White ants have a strong dislike for creosote and will not attack timbers thus treated, at least not for a long time. Basement windows with wooden facings should not be built close to the ground, and the mortar used in brickwork close to the ground should be cement and not lime mortar. Ants eat lime as well as wood, or at least, they eat through it.

"Attempts have been made in many cities," Dr. Von Schrenk concluded, "to have these or similar specifications incorporated into the building codes, but without conspicuous success in most instances. Steel and iron for the average home builder are considered too expensive and the creosoting of timbers is a troublesome and time-consuming process. In fact, facilities for creosoting do not exist at all for most home builders, and it is as yet impossible to get timbers for building purposes which have already been treated. The builder has to get along as best he can without them. But he can do two things, and if he does them he will save himself much possible trouble. He can clear the ground about his house of wooden scraps and he can avoid having timbers penetrating into the ground."

The Hard Luck of a Soft Geologist

It Was All Young Mrs. Lawrence's Fault—She Just Would Have Lynn Psycho-Analyzed—It Is So Difficult for a Wife to Tell Whether Hubby Has Reached the Habitual Egocentric Impasse or What—So She Broke Into the Private Laboratory of a Leading Lady Psycho-Analyst of San Francisco at 3 a. m., and Thereby Acquired Knowledge.

Mrs. Cela M. Lawrence.

Mrs. Grace Palmer Craig.

Lynn Lawrence, who has been both psycho-analyzed and sued.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine

SAN FRANCISCO, California.

MRS. CELA LAWRENCE wanted her young husband psycho-analyzed. This was a perfectly normal desire, as any psycho-analyst will testify. There comes a time in the married life of every woman—so Freud says—when she has found out all the immediately perceptible facts about her husband. She has seen him to an advantage and to a disadvantage; she knows how he likes his coffee; knows his favorite cuss words and cigars; knows which side of his face he shaves first and whether he talks in his sleep.

Young wives in the dark ages before psycho-analysis used to be satisfied with these simple awarenesses. But Mrs. Lawrence, being a modern wife of the extremely leisured class, knew that her Lynn was keeping something from her. Not while he was conscious. Oh, no. He kept nothing from her, then. But what about his subconscious self? She was sure that he was hiding things in his subliminal ego. She felt certain he had a submerged personality which was not what it should be.

He had not been getting on so well at the University of California, where he was a graduate geologist. She could tell. He came home silent and irritable. He no longer enthused to her about glacial strata. One shelf of conglomerate was just like another to him now. Porphyry drifts and quartz shoulders had lost their charm. He complained to her that he was getting into a rut. But she knew better. It wasn't a rut. It was an habitual egocentric impasse that he was getting into.

Consider that. An habitual egocentric impasse. It would have daunted most wives. It did not daunt Cela Lawrence. She realized, of course, that this condition could not go on indefinitely. Her husband would gradually disintegrate into the fallacy of anthropomorphism and might fall victim to subjective symbolism unless something was done for him promptly. The happiness of their luxurious and cozy home would be ruined. She believed that already they were drifting apart. There they were, he only 29 and she two years younger; their married life threatened by a retrogressive homo-antagonism which might make of him an inhibited misanthrope and her a darn lonely lady.

SHE was curious to find the remedy for Lynn Lawrence's dangerous condition. She yearned to invade that murky wonderland behind her husband's forehead. Where lurked the terrible, purple Neuroses, the soul-dismaying, brown incipient Dementias, those hideous, gray monsters, Sex Inhibitions, brooding over a sticky, vague morass of Hereditary Phobias. She ached to hunt every Complex to its lair. Her husband must be psycho-analyzed.

The books she read only added to her fears. They were books like "The Logic of the Unconscious Mind," by M. K. Bradby, and they had chapters like "Dream Images Symbolic." This as a sample:

"When the pent-up emotion of the day finds vent at night, it is not always as the poets would have us believe, in sweet communion with the very form of the beloved, for the dreamer seizes, as it were, upon the first thing that comes handy in the workshop of memory, and if it can in any way be made to serve his purpose, he heaps fantasy upon it, till it personify the object of his longing or fear.

"Thus, one dreamer made passionate love to something so little appropriate as a window-shutter. It seemed a being like himself, a living, feeling window shutter, and he called it 'Little Dorrit,' for was it not a little door and at the same time kindly, gentle and protective, like Dickens' heroine?

"Another dreamer was married to a hazel-nut, which he took out of his waistcoat pocket and gazed at fondly. No mercenary match, this, such as the Indian girls' annual betrothal to their fishing nets, but a purely romantic union of souls. Another turned into a tablecloth to escape from someone who insisted that she do pioneer work.

"In each case the object dreamed of was a symbol expressing the dreamers' desires and emotions."

When a wife has just oodles of time to pore over passages such as this, something is bound to happen. It did in Cela Lawrence's case, anyway. She began to question her husband about his dreams. Did he ever dream that he was married to a hazel-nut, perchance? Did he ever turn into a tablecloth? When he sought sweet release from the cold, hard rocks in the laboratory at the university, did he have love affairs with a window shutter?

LYNN LAWRENCE seems at first to have given no symptoms of this sort. His dreams, he said, were not symbolic. Generally, he did not dream at all. And when she insisted that he must have dreamed something, they quarreled, with him maintaining: "I didn't. I slept like a top."

Still, he admits now that he was worried about business affairs and anxious over his wife's ability to misunderstand him.

At this crucial time in their married woes, Mrs. Lawrence, last July, discovered Mrs. Grace Palmer Craig, 55 years old, the leading psycho-analyst of the Pacific coast. She was to sex-inhibitions what Burbank was to the potato. She was the Edison of neuroses, the Balboa of the subconscious sphere. To her "menticulture laboratory" in San Francisco came wealthy patients by the score. She knew what thyroidosis is. Her password was, "How is your endocrine excretion?"

The fame of Mrs. Grace Palmer Craig had spread across the land. Wherever women smuggled books by Freud, Havelock Ellis and Krafft-Ebbing home to read surreptitiously behind the Ladies' Home Journal, Mrs. Craig's name was a household word. She had gone into psycho-analysis on a grand scale. Her office hours were jammed with high-priced appointments. She could tell by looking at a woman whether or not she had a simple complex, a complex complex or a compound complex complex. Had you been jilted in love? Mrs. Craig could trace it back 40 centuries and lay the blame upon an abysmal ancestor who had fallen out of a tree when slapped by her elemental lover. That, she would tell you, started an inferiority strain which cropped out in the present generation whenever you wore too tight a dress sleeve which pressed on the reflex muscles of the elbow.

Mrs. Craig uprooted deep-laid eroticisms and fetiches by the hundred. She was masterful with inversions. The woman who was fortunate enough to be treated by this renowned psycho-analyst left her office without a suppressed desire. Such was her reputation, upheld by countless, grateful patients in bridge table gossips and the more intimate seances of the boudoir.

To her went Cela Lawrence, beseechingly. She waited hours for an appointment. Finally, it was granted and the troubled wife told Mrs. Craig that it was imperative Lynn Lawrence should be psycho-analyzed. He must be analyzed at once. There was no time to lose. A desperate case.

Mrs. Craig agreed to accept the case. The charge would be $25 a lesson for so many lessons. It depended upon Lawrence's condition how many. The devoted wife readily yielded up an initial payment and went home to break the news to hubby.

Lawrence took it rather well—so his deposition in the case indicates—and consented after some argument to try one lesson. The Lawrences were living at this time in a fashionable apartment hotel.

Mrs. Craig, he says, inquired into his symptoms, at the first visit. The inquiry was very personal, as all psycho-analytical theories are based on sex. She told him that his wife was right, that he had reached an habitual egocentric impasse, and his subliminal self was hog-tied with inhibitions. In checking up on his suppressed desires she discovered that one of them was the desire to have a short vacation from his wife. This did not amaze Mrs. Craig. She told him that many of her men patients admitted such a desire, after lengthy questioning.

"You must leave your wife temporarily," he says she advised him. "Better take a month's vacation from her. Move to another hotel and do not see her in this time. Communicate with her only through me."

He found himself liking Mrs. Craig's prescription. Already he felt better. Of course, he still loved his wife. He says in his deposition that he loves her now. But the only way to get rid of a suppressed desire is to express it, and Lawrence was not the man to suffer stubbornly. He swallowed Dr. Craig's prescription, went home, packed his things and moved to another hotel.

To this Mrs. Lawrence somewhat dubiously consented. She had not expected that her husband's psychic condition would require such radical treatment. She believed that Mrs. Craig would take out a few neuroses here and a complex there and return to her a thoroughly psycho-analyzed husband, all in one lesson. However, she was a good sport and content to see the treatment through.

AS LAWRENCE continued to go to Mrs. Craig for treatments he discovered peculiar reactions. "She made my head whirl and my brain whirl when I was around her," he deposes. "She has a very brilliant mind. Women with brilliant minds have always interested me. I have always liked an active brain. That first attracted me to my wife. She, too, has an active brain."

His most vivid subconscious ratiocination came, however, through epidermal contact. Mrs. Craig put her hand on his and asked him to write down for her his innermost emotions. This he declined to do, being a bashful man, but he admits that he did give Mrs. Craig verbal impressions of his thoughts.

After one of these treatments at Mrs. Craig's studio she announced: "I have another remedy for you. I think I know what another of your suppressed desires is," or words to that effect. Lawrence is not sure just how she said it, but he knows the details of how she cured his second suppressed desire.

She kissed him.

He asserts that he had no idea of any such suppressed desire. He was unconscious of his subconscious self. But Mrs. Craig seemed to know just what the subconscious Lynn Lawrence wanted. After she had removed this suppressed desire, she began to discover, in the dim, subliminal stretches of his unawareness, other desires. She hugged him, he says.

She prescribed the following treatments:

Several more kisses.

A trip with her to an ice-skating rink.

Visits to her apartment.

While the psycho-analysis progressed, poor Mrs. Lawrence waited, forlorn, in a husbandless home. She became a prey to Fallacies. She was also afflicted with Phobias.

The most persistent Fallacy which haunted Mrs. Lawrence's subliminal ego might be described as the auto-suggestive, pessimistic type. She became a defeatist. She was sure that Mrs. Craig's treatment of her husband was doing him no good. She had what psycho-analysts call a precocious intuitive reaction. To make matters worse, there was the Phobia, the particular Phobia. She feared her husband was not behaving in the way her logic told her he would behave. Logically, she had arrived at the conclusion that he was all right, that he was true to her and would return when the 30 days' trial separation and his psycho-analyzation were over. But the Phobia persisted and she developed Miasmas. Dream symbolisms came next. The net result of these anomalous cogitative definitives was a state bordering on suspicious dementia.

In brief, Mrs. Lawrence was jealous.

From this deep-seated sex instinct, Mrs. Lawrence progressed to what behaviorists call the primal cause-and-effect category. She acted in a time-spatial sequence. To be very blunt about it, she hired two detectives to trail her husband and Mrs. Craig.

The detectives were not psycho-analysts. They knew not a neurosis from an erotic hypnosis. Their investigations were on a plane absolutely at sea level. During conferences with the distracted wife she would ask: "Was she maintaining intellectual dominance over him?" And they would matter-of-factly report, "Naw. We didn't see anything like that. Bill, did you see any intellectual dominance she had over him?" Bill would reply: "The keyhole wasn't big enough but I saw her arm around his neck."

Mrs. Lawrence's condition began to border on a state of delusional hysteria. She gave some indications of cerebral lesions and her soul state could best be described by a theosophist. There were storms on her spiritual sea and it was no longer possible for her to attune herself to the Great Silence. Still the detectives kept reporting: "We saw her hug him." Another inhibition gone. Inhibitions were falling from Lynn Lawrence like fig leaves from a tree.

The end came suddenly.

IT WAS 3 a. m. in Mrs. Craig's apartment. Lynn Lawrence was being psycho-analyzed.

"We had a few drinks and were petting a bit," he said in his deposition.

There was a crash at the door. The glass pane fell in with a shimmer of splinters and through the aperture stepped Mrs. Cela Lawrence and two detectives. It was dark in the apartment. But Mrs. Lawrence had a flashlight. The flashlight found its mark.

"So this is how you got psycho-analyzed!" remarked Mrs. Lawrence.

She and the detectives then withdrew.

Mrs. Craig got up and slipped on a kimono. She looked crestfallen, almost as if her conscious mind had collapsed upon the subconscious with a hypothetical thud.

"Get out!" she said.

But young Lawrence lingered while she went into the kitchen and returned with a dust pan and broom.

He started to help her as she swept up the broken glass at the door. He relied upon her. She was still the teacher, he the student. In this contretemps he no doubt fell victim to a bit of master-slave fetichism. There were lots of fetichisms lying about, and he may have stepped on one.

"What will I do now?" he asked obediently.

It was the final lesson.

"Leave here and go back to your wife," she told him. "Tell her that you love her and no one else. Tell her you were drunk and got in here by mistake. Tell her you tricked me. Make love to her."

Completely psycho-analyzed, he left her. But his wife, alas, developed what psychologists tell us is a fixed impression, complicated by a forgiveness inhibition.

She has filed suit to divorce him.

OF LITERATURE arising from the late war it is probable that no type has enjoyed wider popularity than that dealing with the hazardous art of escaping from military prisons. In the opinion of many critics, it has constituted not only the most popular, but, in many respects, the best literature produced by the conflict. The appearance of this peculiar type of true adventure story was greeted with an immediate rush to the bookstands. That may have been due to a bit of uncertainty about the fate of prisoners carried back of the German lines. But there is another factor which more than suffices to keep the craze going long after active interest in the war has subsided. That is the fascination which somehow has always attached to the tales of intrigue behind prison walls.

Along with several works of less consequence, two chronicles of monumental stature have made their appearance in this class of thrilling narrative, both having been the contributions of British army officers. There was "The Road to En-Dor," by Lieut. E. H. Jones, which is an interesting commentary upon the fraudulent methods of spiritualist mediums. It was followed by "The Escaping Club," in which Major A. J. Evans described the tortures inflicted, not upon the captives, but upon the captors themselves who were unfortunate enough to have fall into their keeping such an incorrigible and boisterous outfit of prisoners as that of which he was a member.

Now has appeared another of the same general type in "An Escaper's Log," by Captain Duncan Grinnell-Milne, recently published by John Lane, The Bodley Head, of London. While it may lack some of the color and spectacular incident of the two preceding works, it records faithfully the hopes and disappointments, the attempts and the failures of an English aviator who was confined in various German prisons from December, 1915, until April, 1918, when he finally succeeded in crossing the Dutch frontier. He may not have been so skillful either in escaping or in writing as Jones or Evans, but certainly the German prisons never held a more persistent escaper than Captain Milne.

IT WOULD hardly be correct to say that they held him. They didn't. He was out repeatedly and on his way most of the time, but until late in the war his was the fate of most of the other prisoners who tunneled under the walls or walked past the German sentries. Time after time he was overhauled in the race for the frontier, sometimes with neutral territory almost in sight. Often, after months of digging and elaborate preparation of forged passes and fake German uniforms, his schemes were detected just as he was about to pass the last barrier in his dash for freedom. Once, however, the breaks were in his favor. It was a dramatic dash and a dramatic finish, when, after daylight had driven him to cover under a blackberry bush, that strange clock started striking the hour that would tell him whether he was safe or lost. It was a clock of destiny. He lived an eternity while it was striking 6. But luck was with him and he achieved what he had been trying to accomplish for nearly three years—a return to the fighting front in France.

Captured on December 1, 1915, when his plane was forced down by engine trouble behind the German lines, near Valenciennes, Milne spent his first prison days at a camp near Torgau. Two months later he was transferred to Weilburg, where his earliest escaping-plot was hatched with a group of other English officers and carried to an unsuccessful termination. After digging laboriously with table knives for several weeks, the prisoners saw their unfinished tunnel collapse under the weight of a party of German workmen. The plot, of course, was discovered.

It was customary in those days to punish would-be escapers by transferring them to another camp, poorer in sanitation facilities and stronger in barriers and guards. This was Milne's lot more times than one. Friedburg was his next prison. There, following another futile tunneling attempt, he and his brother, also a captive officer, assembled outfits resembling German uniforms and walked boldly past the prison guards, jabbering in German and indifferently returning the salutes of the deceived sentries, who mistook them for German officers.

The daring measure was almost a success. The brothers eluded pursuers for days, passing workmen and soldiers without difficulty until they reached a wood near Frankfurt, where they unluckily built a fire on railroad property. The crew of a passing train thought it was a forest fire starting and gave the alarm. A party of railroad employes came back to investigate and arrested them. Transferred then to the notorious Fort Zorndorf, from which it was said no prisoner could hope to escape, Captain Milne soon afterward repeated his attempt, with some variations, in company with an officer named Hardy. Upon a pretext of going to see the camp commandant about establishing a motion picture show, the two, with civilian clothes under their uniforms, eluded their guard and fled from the camp. They tramped for a day or two, passing through several villages and posing as German workmen, and then actually bought tickets and in broad daylight boarded a train for Berlin. They were almost out of the zone watched by the Zorndorf authorities when Hardy was recognized on the train. They were taken back to face the usual penalty of two weeks in solitary and a tightening up of camp discipline.

THERE were endless other attempts, including the usual percentage of futile attempts at tunneling. Once again at Zorndorf, Milne and two other conspirators hid in the prison chapel and at night tried to scale the wall with a home-made ladder. Ice on the wall caused them to fall. But, taking advantage of the fact that the sentries had mistaken them, in their civilian clothes, for stone contractors, they tried to walk out openly. They walked through 60 or 70 soldiers before they met an officer who recognized them. There was another transfer, to Strohen, and an attempt made by a large group of prisoners to crash a gate with a battering ram. It failed when the ram missed the lock and the foremost carrier crashed against the gate with his head. He yelled with pain and the sentries closed in. Almost before the investigation of this was over, Milne and four confederates tried still another scheme, the Captain disguising himself as a German officer with materials smuggled into camp and his comrades pushing a wheelbarrow of laundry as "orderlies." They got by every sentry except one. That one was suspicious and spoiled the expedition.

FAILURE after failure! There was yet another attempt, more intricate, more spectacular than all the rest—and another heart-breaking failure. It was after another transfer, this time to Neunkirchen, near Saarbrucken, a brand-new camp, untried as yet by escapers. In December, 1917, the transfer occurred. Sixty or seventy prisoners, after being marched through the town and booed by the inhabitants, were ushered into a drab, two-story building which formerly had served as the "Catholic Friends Meeting House." Once it had boasted a stage, but this was now boarded up and the stage was used as a storeroom for the prisoners' baggage. There were three doors through the partition, but two were nailed up and the other was locked. The German guards carried the key.

Exploring the building in the absence of guards, Milne and several others, including the famous Wilkin, escaper from many camps, found an attic passageway that led down from above onto the stage. In the stage they found a trap door. Here was their opportunity. They would dig their tunnel from below the stage, and the hidden space there would conceal the earth they carried out of the diggings. For weeks they dug. Then, after considerable progress had been made, they ingeniously devised a trap door through the floor of their dormitory and intersected the other tunnel with a direct one from their quarters. The trap door was a marvel. It comprised several of the floor boards which could be lifted mechanically and then closed so as not to leave a trace. They rigged up an electric buzzer with which to warn the tunnel workers of danger. They made compasses from watches; civilian clothes were made of old uniforms and blankets; maps were copied from railroad time tables and passes were forged so skillfully that even the makers could hardly tell them from the genuine. The tunnel was ready for the final breaking through and 50 or more prisoners were ready for the dash—then——

The camp commandant was replaced. The new one wanted to do something to improve sanitation facilities for the boys. He was a good fellow. Irony of ironies! To see how the quarters could be made more comfortable, he ordered a close inspection. What use of going any farther? They found the tunnel, of course.

But better times were coming, in spite of discouragements. It was not long after the tunnel failure at Neunkirchen until the Germans published a list of prisoners who were to be transferred to Aachen and from there were to be sent to Holland. Owing to an agreement between England, Holland and Germany, prisoners once in Holland would stay there until the end of the war, being expressly forbidden by their respective Governments to make any attempt at escape. This was distasteful to Milne, as it was to several of the other British officers, bent on returning, if possible, to the front. It was apparent that Aachen, if it afforded any opportunity of escape at all, would afford the last one. Milne and his associates were scarcely behind the walls, therefore, until they were seeking a means of exit. A few days later a new batch of prisoners arrived from Strohen, and these included Beverly Robinson, companion of Milne on one of his numerous other breaks. Wilkin was also on hand and skillful as ever. The three put their heads together.

The time was short. They agreed that by hook or crook they had to get away the following night.

"THE rest of the morning," wrote Milne, "we spent in walking around the yard, examining the wire and the positions of the sentries and searching for a safe way out. Our escape would have to be made without any preparation, owing to the short time at our disposal. It was useless to think of anything like bluffing our way out as German officers, or even workmen, for we had none of the necessary kit and no knowledge of the regular routine of the place. We had to make sure that we got away without being noticed, because once the alarm was raised it would be easy for the Germans, with the frontier only a few miles distant, to patrol every yard of the sector we were likely to cross. For the same reason, since we were certain to be missed early the next morning, it was essential to cross the frontier the same night, and therefore an early start was necessary. . . .

"Scheme after scheme was suggested and thrown aside, and we were driven to the conclusion that the only possible way out was to get somehow into the hospital yard adjoining the camp. It was not so well guarded or so brilliantly lighted. With only one barbed-wire fence to cross, it seemed probable that once there we should be able to get safely into the open. The problem was how to cross the wall between the camp and hospital. . . .

Upon further close inspection, that problem was solved when it was found that the camp lavatories connected with those of the hospital side and that in the wall between the two there were two ventilation holes about 12 feet from the floor. These were less than two feet square and were covered with wire, but the strands were loose enough to permit a man to squeeze through. They had 30 minutes in which to make their dash, for the prison yard closed at 9:45 p. m., and it was not dark enough for the dash until 9:15. At 9:30 they went out. The story continues:

"As we scrambled out I spotted the sentry in the hospital yard, barely 15 yards away, and even closer on the other side I could see one of the camp sentries. Fortunately, both had their backs turned. We crawled slowly for 20 yards, and then, getting into the shadow of a low hedge heading away from the camp, stood up and ran. Looking back, I could see the window from which, only five minute ago, we had been watching the Germans and discussing our chances. Except that Wilkin was not with us, everything was going well, and there were no signs of pursuit. But we nearly had trouble within the next two minutes. We had crossed the field diagonally, making for a road on the far side. To get there we had to climb over a barbed-wire fence and pass close to a lamp post standing in front of a row of houses. As luck would have it, I caught my trousers on the fence, and in my haste to get unhooked tore a strip six inches long out of the seat. A party of two men, a woman and a boy who were passing at this moment glanced around, then stopped and stared at us. For a minute it looked as though they were going to come and question us, which would have been very awkward, as Robinson could not speak German. But by talking loudly in German I made it seem that we were perfectly ordinary, though rather rough, young men on our way home. Robinson mumbled a bit and said 'Ja wohl' once or twice; the Germans stood still and did nothing. They were still staring when we turned the corner and disappeared."

For hours, the narrative continues, the two, wondering what had become of Wilkin, kept on the march across country in a northerly direction, dodging houses, villages and factories in the thickly populated country. (They were to learn later that the sentry's return had cut off Wilkin's escape.) They got lost frequently in the maze of rivers, hills and wooded areas, but kept on a rough compass course and hourly lost confidence in their hastily prepared and imperfect map. Stopping now and then to listen for footsteps, they trudged on their way across plowed fields to avoid passing close to houses, bearing in mind that if the frontier were crossed it would have to be crossed before daylight. Just over the Holland border and running parallel to the boundary, they knew, was a railroad line. Unless they ran afoul of the border sentries beforehand, these tracks would be the final landmark to tell them they were across the frontier. Toward the railroad they counted their steps. From this point onward let the author describe his own experience:

"There was not much time to spare. We strode on as fast as we could, for the sky was rapidly getting gray; in less than half an hour it would be broad daylight. And then we almost tripped over a sentry! He was sitting in a little, rough shelter down in a hollow; in front of him was a fire in a bucket, over which he was warming himself. I dimly perceived a Landstrum helmet on his head and a rifle propped up beside him. He gave no sign of having seen or heard us.

Capt. Duncan Grinnell-Milne.

"WE RETRACED our steps on tiptoe for 20 yards, and then turned and ran back toward the road. We reached it and found it deserted, but having just seen a sentry the danger of following it seemed too great, and we contented ourselves with going straight across so as to avoid a house only a few yards ahead. By the time we had crawled through a hedge on the far side and crossed a small field, it was light enough for us to be seen nearly half a mile away. With a sense of having failed, we realized we could go no farther that day, and began looking around anxiously for cover. The only possible hiding place in sight was a small, sparse wood some 400 yards farther north. We walked hard for it, and, screened by a hedge, even ran the last hundred yards. We reached the trees and searched for a spot where we could, if necessary, lie up for the whole day. There was much wire and very little undergrowth; the best cover available was a blackberry bush. As we crawled in some men passed along an unseen road lying ahead of us. They were talking, but I was unable to make out what they were saying. For the present we could do nothing but keep quiet and watch for sentries.

"Now that it was daylight, we were able to go over our map more carefully, and followed mentally, step by step, the course we had taken during the night. Very gradually I became convinced that we had actually crossed the frontier and were already in Holland. This was a dangerously optimistic view to take and Robinson disagreed entirely. He was sure we were still in Germany, rightly arguing that we had seen practically nothing of the frontier guards and that we had not yet reached the all-important railway. We talked it over for a long time, while Robinson produced a needle and thread and mended some of the worst tears in our clothing. For a short interval we took it in turns to sleep, and during Robinson's watch he woke me up to point out two men in uniform going along the road. It was impossible to see at that distance whether they were Dutch or German, yet they were going in the direction from which we had come, and presently two more men came back. Supposing that they were sentries being relieved, this would seem to prove the frontier was behind us.

"THEN a clock struck not very far from us. I counted six chimes, but by Robinson's watch it was now 7. Of course, the clock might be wrong, but if not then the inference was obvious: the Germans had summer time, the Dutch had not—it was a Dutch clock. But a Dutch clock might well be heard in Germany. Were we a few yards inside Germany or had we just crossed the border?

"We were still anxious, but the evidence was turning in our favor, and Robinson was getting more optimistic when, shortly after 8 o'clock, the unexpected happened. Some way off we heard the puffing of an engine and we listened intently, trying to make out in what direction it was going. It must be on that all important railway; if we could reach it we would be safe. At times the sound seemed to die down, only to burst out again closer. There was something awe-inspiring about the slow, rhythmical puffing. Like the beat of a war drum in an African forest. I felt almost frightened. It came nearer and nearer, and then, to our amazement, the engine steamed into sight a hundred yards ahead of our hiding place, along what we had thought to be a road and which the trees had prevented us from seeing clearly. It was a goods train, and on the sides of the truck were the Dutch colors and the word 'Nederland,' in large letters.

"We stood up and walked to the line; on the far side of it we saw a house with a Dutch advertisement on its side, and a signpost pointing to Spekholz. . . . Holland! A thousand prison dreams of freedom faded into one reality: we were no longer prisoners."

Who Killed Jack Carlisle, and Why?

Soldier, Adventurer, Movie Stunt Man, Veteran of a Mexican Revolution, Private Detective, He Was Found on a Wisconsin Road, Not Far From Chicago, With His Throat Cut. Robbery Was Not the Motive. His Friends Are at a Loss to Find a Reason for the Crime.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch

CHICAGO, Illinois.

IT WAS about 12:30 o'clock of a Monday morning. The cabaret room of the little Twin Lakes Hotel, just a few miles from Kenosha, Wisconsin, was almost deserted. Jackson Carlisle was there, so was his wife. Their only companions were another married couple, old friends of the Carlisles, residents of Kenosha, whom the Carlisles had come from Chicago that Sunday to visit.

Before the Carlisles were married, Mrs. Zelline Carlisle had been a cabaret "entertainer." But that was more than 10 years ago; the only time Mrs. Carlisle now sang was when her husband asked her to, and those occasions were only when a few friends were around.

On this early Monday morning Jack Carlisle said: "Pal, get up and sing for us." Her companions assured her it would be quite all right; the proprietor of the Twin Lakes Hotel was a relative of theirs, and, besides, it wasn't too late for a little music. So Mrs. Carlisle walked over to the piano, one of her friends accompanied her, and she sang right merrily.

And still singing she was when a group of boys and girls, young people of 19 and 20 and 21, drove up to the Twin Lakes from a nearby dance place that had just closed for the night, sat themselves down, ordered sandwiches, and heartily applauded Zelline Carlisle with all the exuberance of youth still in the whirl of a happy evening.

She finished her song and would have sat down, but her youthful audience would have none of it. They liked her singing, they told her; wouldn't she sing something else? What, she wanted to know, did they want her to sing? There was a multitude of requests; it was quite impossible for her to sing them all at once; she sang them one after another.

HER young audience stood on no formality. Soon they were clustered about her, before long they were shouting out the choruses with her. One of the boys, a lad of perhaps 20, standing next to her, placed his hand upon her shoulder. The boy meant nothing by it; his action was an unconscious gesture of camaraderie; he was doing what is almost the conventional thing to do grouped about a piano; if you saw such a movement on the stage you would say it was realistic.

But when the song was finished Jack Carlisle walked up to his wife and said: "Don't be common, Pal."

Nevertheless, she walked back to her seat at the table, and sat down. And Carlisle, frowning slightly, walked to the door and out of the hotel.

Mrs. Carlisle was not perturbed at her husband's venturing out alone at 2 o'clock in the morning. She felt he was quite able to take care of himself. In his youth a printer, later an actor in the early Wild West movies, where he rode horses at breakneck speed and doubled for stars at those dangerous times when an adept and skillful and courageous horseman was in demand; afterwards a motion picture photographer in a Mexican revolution, when, defenseless he stood up, with his camera and tripod beside him, on any prominence he could find, defying bullets, and, necessity demanding it, took up a rifle to aid the revolutionists; a soldier in the 1914 Mexican border difficulties, afterwards a private detective—Zelline Carlisle felt no fear for her husband's safety on a Wisconsin road.

Nor was she particularly astonished at his sudden departure. He had done the same thing before, on even less provocation. It was like Jack Carlisle to flare up suddenly, keep his discontent to himself and walk out. In a few minutes it would be all over; he would come back smiling. For he was jealous of her, she knew, but he meant nothing by it. He would return shortly and she would forgive him.

A half-hour passed and Jack Carlisle hadn't come back. The young people were still clustered at the piano, singing away. The boy, who so unknowingly was responsible for Carlisle's disappearance, was making merry there with the rest of them.

IT WAS 2:30 in the morning, now, and Mrs. Carlisle's two companions said: "Let's go home and leave the place to the kids." And then, glancing about, they said: "Where's Jack?"

Mrs. Carlisle told them what had happened. They all laughed, jumped into their car, and started down the road. It wouldn't take them long to overtake him, they thought. But when they had driven farther than Carlisle could possibly have walked in a half-hour, and hadn't found him, they stopped. Perhaps he had gone in the other direction, they said, and they turned about, retraced their way, and kept on driving. But find him they couldn't. They searched the country roads till almost daylight, but nowhere could they find trace of him.

So, thinking some passing motorist might have given him a "lift" to Chicago, or that perhaps he was already awaiting them at their home in Kenosha, they drove home. Carlisle was not there. His wife became disturbed. But, her friends told her, Jack Carlisle was quite able to take care of himself; by this time he probably was at his Chicago hotel.

They went to bed. The next morning a telephone call came from a friend of Mrs. Carlisle's hostess saying a man's body, the throat cut, had been found on a road near Twin Lakes. "It's Jack," Zelline Carlisle cried. Her hostess asked her friend to telephone her a description of the murdered man. In a few minutes the message came: "Tell Mrs. Carlisle not to worry; the description doesn't fit that of her husband." Mrs. Carlisle felt relieved again.

Early that afternoon she boarded a train and was soon in Chicago. She went straight to her hotel. On the corner she met a friend who told her.

They had found Jack Carlisle that morning, murdered, on a road two miles from Twin Lakes. Some early morning motorists had seen something in the road. At first they thought it was a small flock of chickens. As they drew nearer they perceived it was the body of a man. The body was found at a lonely spot, on a road connecting two main roads. The discoverers of Jack Carlisle's body notified the authorities; it was taken to Kenosha, where it lay all that day within six blocks of where his unsuspecting wife was visiting.

The man's jaw had been broken in two places, his nose was broken. From high on the cheek, running under the throat and high up on the other cheek, extended a clean, sharp cut. There was a slight bruise and two small cuts on the leg, bruises and lacerations that might have been got in falling. Jack Carlisle had worn a four-in-hand tie, the under side of it had been half-cut, half-jerked in two. The Coroner's examination revealed that Carlisle had died of blood lost through the throat wound. The examiners said they believed he had first been knocked unconscious and then attacked with the knife. Had he been conscious, they said, he could have got aid in time to prevent his death; the knife wound would not have been fatal. But, lying there insensible, his life had slowly drained away.

WELL, how did this all come about? At first a few of the investigating officers said he had been struck by an automobile, but they constituted a very small minority. Later they changed their minds. For, it was proved to almost everyone's satisfaction, an automobile could not have been responsible. A speeding car would have bruised and cut him badly on other parts of his body besides his face. Had the machine hurled him into its windshield, the cut that caused his death would have been wider and more jagged. How could he have been near enough the ground to have been struck by a headlight? And if it had been a headlight, wouldn't he have received other severe injuries? The dust pan, said some. But, replied the others, there would have been grease and grime edging the throat wound, grease and grime the man's life blood could not possibly have washed away. And, in support of the disbelievers of the accident theory, the only dust on the man's clothes was that dust found on his back as he lay there in the road. He had undoubtedly died where he had fallen. And he had not been thrown by an automobile.

What was it, then, the old story of murder for what a man might have on him? But not one of Jack Carlisle's possessions was missing, not a cent had been taken, nothing was gone from his pockets. Perhaps, said some, the murderer was frightened away before he could take his loot. But that was doubtful, so doubtful it need not be considered. For there was little, if any, traffic over this road at 2:30 o'clock in the morning.

If not murder, with robbery as the prospect, what then? Revenge. Well, what revenge; for what, by whom? He was a pleasant, affable fellow; he had never been threatened; it was habitual with him to treat people kindly and considerately. But, said some investigator, Jack Carlisle went through a Mexican revolution. During such a feverish time he may have gained some Mexican's ill-will. And there was a camp of Mexican laborers but a short distance from Twin Lakes. Was it not possible that one or several of these men, returning to their camp early this Monday morning, had recognized him as a former enemy and done him to death?

UNLIKELY. Quite unlikely. That revolution had been 14 years ago. Carlisle had been 30 at the time; now he was 44. His appearance, naturally, had changed in that period of time. And it was almost detective-story fiction to theorize on a coincidental meeting in the Northern United States between two men who had last seen each other 14 years before in Mexico.

Then came a rumor that Carlisle's old pal of Mexican revolutionary days, Tracy Richardson, soldier of fortune, veteran of many a Latin-American conflict, master machine gunner among the soldiers of fortune on this continent, had written Carlisle asking him to join him in a proposed rebellion in a South American country, and that this Tracy Richardson was even now on his way to Chicago to talk this over with Carlisle. And, continued the rumor, the Government of the South American country soon to be inflicted with this proposed civil war had got wind of Carlisle's and Richardson's plans, and one of this Government's agents had seen Jack Carlisle.

True enough, Tracy Richardson was on his way to Chicago to see Jack Carlisle. He got news of his friend's tragic death en route, in Dayton, Ohio. And when he got to this city, and they asked him about this proposed revolution that he and Jack Carlisle were to take part in, Richardson was a little more than astonished. For while Richardson did plan an expedition to Latin America, it was an exploration and hunting trip he had in mind, and while he had written Jack Carlisle about it, what he wanted from Carlisle was Carlisle's aid in interesting certain Chicagoans in the enterprise. For Richardson knew Carlisle had no intention of joining his outfit, he well knew Carlisle had recently been made the manager of a clothing store and that Carlisle was well satisfied where he was.

So the revolution theory and death by a Latin-American republic's representative was blown up, just as most everybody expected that it would be.

BUT why was Jack Carlisle murdered? His had been an honorable life, everyone said. He had no enemies. Even in his work as a private detective there was no reason to believe he had incurred any strong ill will. The Wisconsin officials puzzled, did not know which way to turn. Chicago's police followed ragged, half-baked clues and hardly believeable theories, but their endeavors got them nowhere. The Coroner, without evidence, continued and continued the inquest.

Tracy Richardson, arrived in Chicago, plunged into the mystery. He went looking for information. He devoted all his time to attempting to solve the riddle of his old pal's death. When the writer talked with Richardson here he was still at it, as hard as ever.

"I first met Jack Carlisle during the Orozco revolution in Mexico. General Orozco was leading the revolt against the Government, and Huerta, then Commander-in-Chief of President Madero's Federal troops, was his opponent. I was an officer with the Orozco army.

"Jack Carlisle, as you know, had been in the movies. And it seems he got the idea that he could make some money if he came down to Mexico and made some movies of the troops in action. So he packed up a camera and a tripod and a few other things and down to Mexico he came. He was there for about a year, until it was over. He didn't miss one of the big battles, as I remember it.

"And, if you ask me, I think he had a tougher time of it than any of us. I was with the machine guns, but my opinion is that his job was a worse one than mine. He'd find a hill, or elevation of some sort, to stand on, and there, where everyone could see him, a perfect target, he'd wind away at the crank of his machine with the bullets pattering about him.

"He was always cool, never did I see him get excited, the man was possessed of the greatest courage. And it wasn't only the bullets that he had to go up against. He had all the hardships the rest of us had and more. We were officers, we could ask for things and, if necessary, demand them. But Jack had no official rating.

"Then, in his search for pictures, he'd wander away from us, get among revolutionary troops who didn't know him, the next thing he knew he'd be in jail. Or he'd get over the lines and take pictures of the Federals, and they'd put him in jail. Everybody suspected him. Most of the men didn't have any idea what sort of a thing this movie machine of his was; the revolutionists thought he was a Federal spy, the Federals thought he was the spy of the rebels.

"I REMEMBER him at the battle of Bachimba, the day Huerta finally defeated our troops. Huerta did it by bringing up 5-inch naval guns on flat cars, and then, standing beyond range of our artillery, shelling our positions in the hills. There was Jack Carlisle, the shells from the naval guns bursting around him, taking pictures. Oh, on occasions, he fought, too. When he thought we needed his help, he'd let go his camera crank, pick up a rifle, and fight side by side with our men. The man was absolutely daring, he lived on adventure. During the retreat from Bachimba he climbed on flat cars, trying to keep up with the fleeing troops, and made pictures of the pell mell rush to escape the advancing Federals."

When the writer talked to Mrs. Carlisle she told him she couldn't believe her husband was murdered.

"Who could have done it?" she said. "I don't know of anyone who had a thing against him. I still believe it was an automobile accident, and no one will convince me it wasn't until they show me differently. And I'm going to stay right here until I find out something.

"How Jack ever got on that road, why he walked up it, I can't imagine. It may have been that he started out and just kept on going. He was adventuresome, there was nothing he liked so well as excitement or adventure of some sort. He had done all sorts of stunts in the movies. Then he went through that Mexican revolution. He returned to Chicago, and went right back to the border with a Chicago company during the Mexican trouble. We were married about a year before the World War. When it was declared he tried to enlist, but because of an injury he had received he could get in nothing but the Quartermaster Corps. So he served in that. After the war he worked off and on for different private detective agencies. I didn't want him to, but he had to have adventure. Then last June he was offered the managership of a clothing company and he took it."

If someone killed him, who was it? And why did they do it?

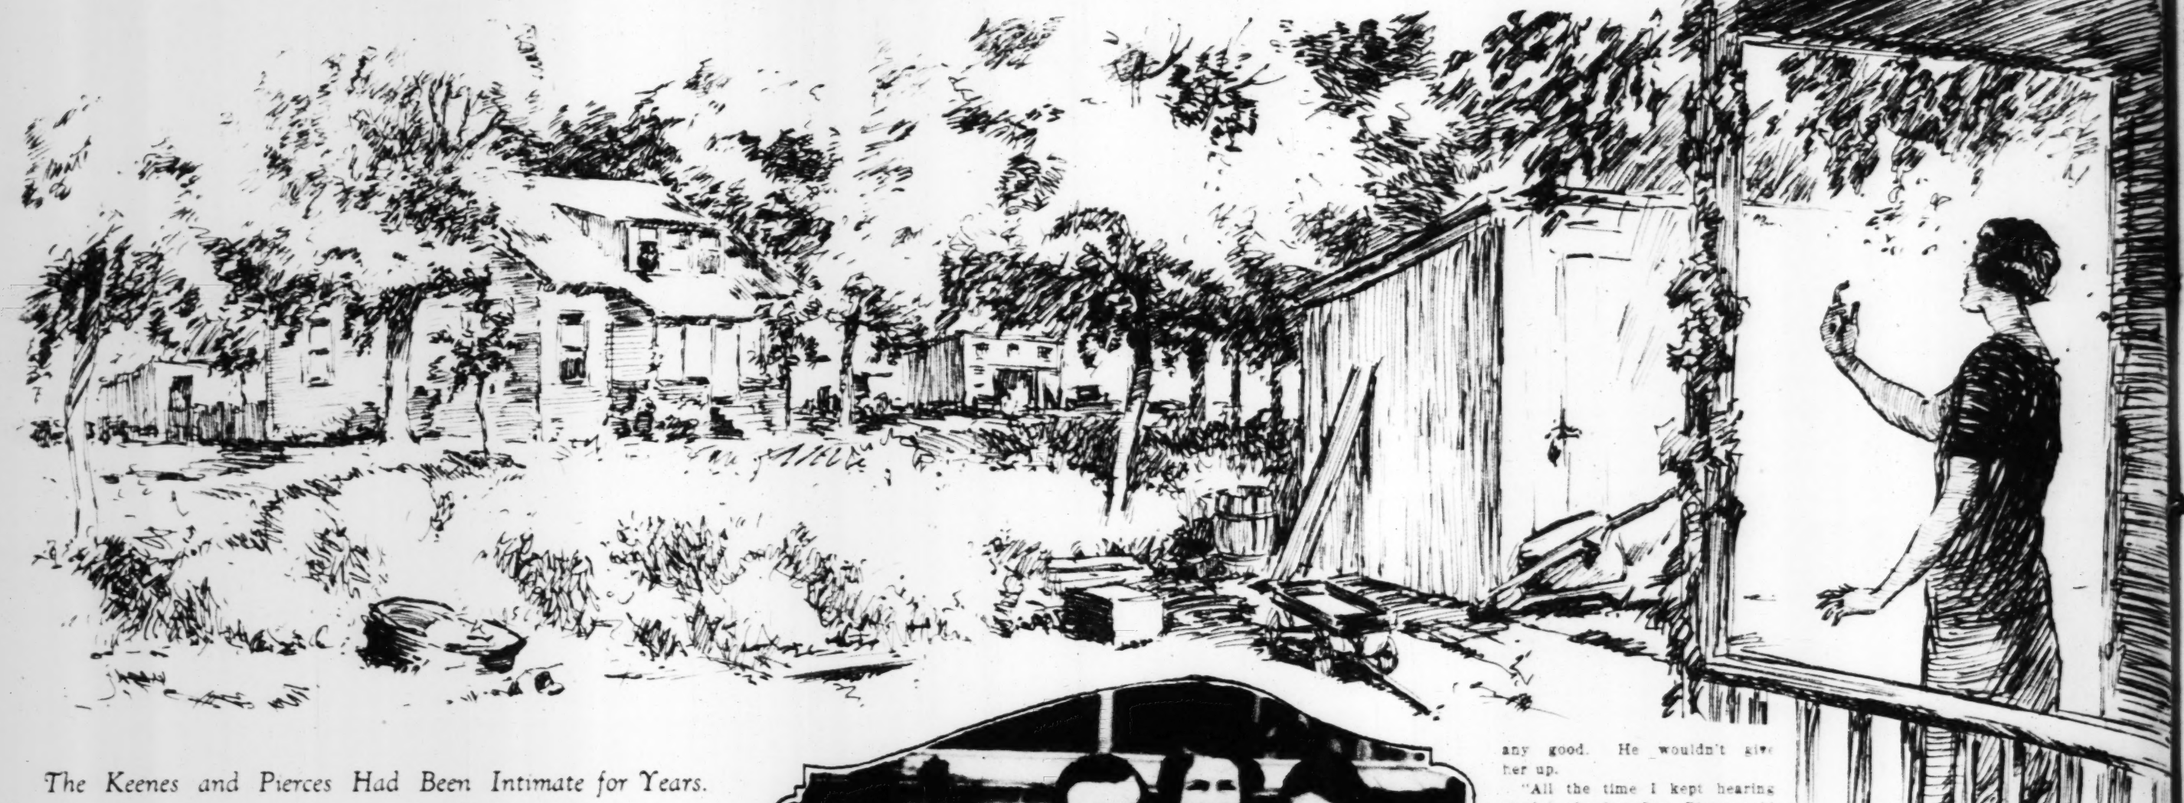
Two Husbands Die in Revolver Duel



The Keenes and Pierces Had Been Intimate for Years. The Pierce Family Life Became Troubled. Then Arthur Keene Grew Friendly With Sam Pierce's Wife. And the Men Shot Each Other to Death.

By JULIUS KLEIMANN
Of the Post-Dispatch Staff

PARKIN, Arkansas.

FOR two years, I am told, the people of this little Arkansas town have been waiting for Sam Pierce to kill Arthur Keene. And kill him he did, the other day, but not before Arthur Keene, mortally wounded, propped against a wall, fired a shot in this extemporaneous duel which laid his slayer low. That evening a thin-cheeked woman hurried from Memphis, Tennessee, to this town. She is the woman, Keene's wife told me, who is responsible for both men's deaths. She is Mrs. Sam Pierce.

The principals in this tragedy: Arthur Keene, engaged at the time of his death in farming, a man with some money, 39 years old; Sam Pierce, two years his senior, engineer of the town's refrigeration and bottling plant; Ida Pierce, 38, the mother of three children, the oldest a boy of 16; Mrs. Etta Keene, a woman in her late thirties. Mrs. Keene also has three children.

Parkin is a town of 1200, and everyone just about knows everyone else. The Pierces and Keenes had been intimate for years. They had lived in Parkin and known each other before their respective marriages were consummated. As young people, in their early twenties, they had gone about in the same "crowd"; they had attended the same parties, danced at the same dances. They were all members of well-known and respected families.

Seventeen years ago young Sam Pierce took this dark-haired girl, Ida, for his wife. A year later a son was born to them. They were now an established, married couple. A year after that the Keenes were married. Time moved along. Each family had three children. The Keenes and the Pierces were good friends, and that's all there was to it. The Keenes lived in a little wooden bungalow on one of Parkin's nice residence streets; the Pierces occupied a brown bungalow on the next street. One standing on the front porch of Arthur Keene's home, or looking from one of his front windows, could quite easily distinguish Sam Pierce or Mrs. Pierce or any of the Pierce children, if they happened to be on their front porch or at one of their front windows. And it was easy to see just what they were doing. The Pierces and Keenes, knowing each other as well as they did, and living as near to each other as they did, were frequent visitors at each others' homes.

NOW, a few years ago, some gossip started making the rounds of Parkin. Tales were told of how Sam Pierce was mistreating his wife. And many were those who believed it, for, well-liked as Sam Pierce was, it was no secret that his temper was one of the hair-trigger variety. Among others who heard the rumor, and who believed it, were the Keenes. Their sympathy went out to Ida Pierce; they felt sorry for her. Rumors of the family difficulty in the Pierce home increased—the whole town soon knew of it.

THEN, about two years ago, came other tales, other whisperings, among the people of this place, and these tales were even more unpleasant. For it was said that there was no doubt at all that Arthur Keene and Ida Pierce were being seen together a great deal. It was said they went riding in Arthur Keene's automobile. It was said this man was seen visiting Mrs. Pierce at her home when Sam Pierce was at work. Soon it was related they were in love with each other. The hardier prophets of scandal predicted that these two would run away from their homes and families, some even thought the day had been set.

But all this time the calmer and more balanced souls of the community were trying to quiet down these tales. They knew Sam Pierce and his fly-off-the-handle temper. They wanted no difficulty in their town, no stories of broken-up homes repeated in courts. But such good offices, anywhere, in times such as this, are of no avail. Such whisperings always continue to spread, and, spreading, gain great volume and greater rapidity.

Then Etta Keene discovered her husband was untrue to her, she told me.

"I FIRST noticed it," she said, "one day when I happened to glance at Mr. Keene when he was standing at one of the front windows. He was making signs to somebody. I looked, and I could see Mrs. Pierce on her porch. I asked him what he was doing, but he only said that he was waving.

"Well, Mrs. Pierce and I were good friends. I knew that Sam Pierce was treating her pretty hard, and I felt sorry for her. I thought she was a good friend of mine, too. But later I found she wasn't.

"I didn't say much to Mr. Keene about his waving to her. But it wasn't long after that I heard him having a telephone conversation with some woman. He didn't know I could hear him. I listened and I found out the woman was Ida Pierce.

"I asked him what he meant by all this waving and talking over the telephone the way he talked. He said he didn't mean anything. He said he only felt sorry for Mrs. Pierce because of the way her husband treated her and he wanted to be nice to her. It wasn't long after that I saw him go into her house one day."

Some of the townspeople knew far less about Arthur Keene and Ida Pierce than Mrs. Keene did. Some of them thought they knew far more. And despite all that the more cautious did to quiet the stories and rumors that were flying about concerning this father of three children and this mother of three others, stories of various sorts began to reach the ears of Sam Pierce.

It was inevitable. Who told the tales, how greatly they were exaggerated, isn't generally known. But Pierce's high temper flared up and he demanded explanations from his wife. The explanations that were forthcoming did not satisfy him, the breach between the Pierces grew wider. One day, and this was about two years ago, Mrs. Pierce packed some of her belongings into a bundle, took her daughter, a girl of 11, with her, and left for Memphis. She had no funds; it was necessary for her to find work. She found employment in a Memphis restaurant as a waitress. Her two boys remained in Parkin with their father.

Arthur Keene, Mrs. Keene and their children

Sam Pierce.

ABOUT this same time came the split-up in the Keene household. Etta Keene told her husband things could go on in this way no longer. She was convinced, she said, he was far too friendly with Ida Pierce; she knew it, and so did everybody else in town. She wanted to know what he intended to do about it. His answers were not satisfactory to her. She insisted that he give Mrs. Pierce up altogether. If he didn't, she said, they could live together no longer. But Keene wouldn't say what his wife begged him to. Mrs. Keene and her three children lived in the little brown bungalow. Arthur Keene lived on his brother's farm, almost on the edge of town. Two families had been pretty well disrupted.

And Sam Pierce became a moody man and began to make his threats.

He blamed all his family difficulties on his one-time friend, Arthur Keene. If it had not been for him, he said, his wife would not today be in Memphis and away from him. It was all Arthur Keene's fault, he declared, and he intended to get even with him. He said he thought he'd kill him.

Keene, estranged from his family, the object of gossip, kept his counsel. The word came to him that Sam Pierce threatened his life. He said nothing. The whole town began to feel a bit shaky and not a little grieved over the episode. It had known these two men since their boyhood. Both had been "good citizens." But a very few years before, Parkin and its township had elected Arthur Keene its constable. The community had been well satisfied with his work. The situation these two men were in began to be deplored.

The one and only business section of Parkin is a long block on Main street. On it are the town's bank, its small hotels, its restaurants, butcher shops, clothing and mercantile stores. One day, the March before last, Arthur Keene was driving along this street in his automobile. Suddenly Sam Pierce appeared, pulled out his revolver, and emptied its five shots in Keene's direction. Four of the bullets hit the car, the other scraped Keene's forehead, a very superficial flesh wound.

Constable F. G. McCrary arrested Sam Pierce. Why had he done this, McCrary asked him. "Because," he told the constable, "Arthur Keene broke up my home." Sam Pierce was taken before a Justice of the Peace and released on bond. Keene never appeared against him. Pierce was charged with firing a revolver with intent to kill and was fined.

The first storm was over, a lull followed. But not for long. Chancing to meet in the restaurant of J. E. Shelby, a few months later, Pierce began an argument with Arthur Keene. He accused Keene of the responsibility of Ida Pierce leaving him and taking his daughter with her. He was about to go at Keene with his hands, but Shelby interfered, kept them apart and quieted Pierce down. This trouble took place not far from where Pierce had tried to shoot Keene to death. Shelby's restaurant at that time being on what might be termed the left side of Main street.

BEFORE long, new rumors became rife. It was said that Arthur Keene left Parkin each week end. It was gossiped that he went to Memphis to see Ida Pierce.

Mrs. Keene told me:

"Mr. Keene was away from Parkin nearly every week end for a long time past. Of course, I suspected where he went. I'd hear he was away and I felt pretty certain that he'd gone over to Memphis to see Mrs. Pierce. Someone told me he and Mrs. Pierce were seen together in Memphis.

"I tried to get him to come home, under the condition that he wouldn't have anything more to do with her, but it didn't do any good. He wouldn't give her up.

"All the time I kept hearing stories of what Sam Pierce said he was going to do. People told me Pierce said he was going to kill him. I kept living in constant dread of that happening."

Sam Pierce became more moody and more morose. He rarely spoke unless someone went out of his way to speak to him. At the refrigeration plant, where he was engineer, he did his work and said nothing. He was considered an excellent man at his job. He came on duty each morning at 4 o'clock, started the plant operating, made any necessary repairs, weighed the lime he was to put in his water tank. He faithfully performed and capably discharged all his duties.

But he spoke to no one. His work finished for a time, he would go to a corner, sit down and become lost in his meditations.

But, silent as he was, there was one oft-repeated sentence that tumbled over his lips. To a few he insisted he was going to kill Arthur Keene. He didn't care what happened to himself, he said, just so he could kill this man who had stolen his woman.

A FEW weeks ago Sam Pierce walked into a restaurant. At the telephone he saw Arthur Keene. He only caught a few words of what Keene was saying. Keene, finished with his conversation, left the place. But Sam Pierce was told that Keene had been talking to Memphis and that the person on the other end of the wire was Ida Pierce.

J. E. Shelby had moved his restaurant from the left to the right side of Main street. It is now just a little above and across the street from the Parkin refrigeration plant. It is a narrow place and rather long. In its center, running almost the length of the room, is an oblong, four-sided counter. Along its long sides the counter is flanked by stools. At the rear of the restaurant is the kitchen, separated from the dining space by a wooden partition. There is a doorway in the partition between these two sections, and in the middle of the partition a goodly sized space has been cut out through which lunch orders may be passed from the kitchen to the waiter standing in the lunchroom. On one side of the restaurant is a vacant lot. From the outside the restaurant may be entered by a front door. There is also a rear door leading into the kitchen.

It was the noon following that evening on which Pierce believed he had heard Arthur Keene talking by long distance to Ida Pierce in Memphis. And this is what happened, as Shelby told it to me:

"It was noon and the restaurant was crowded with school children eating their lunch. They were sitting on these stools you see along the counters. I understand that Arthur Keene had just finished eating his lunch in a restaurant down the street. They say he got into his car and drove up this way. The first I saw of him, he was turning his car into the curb in front of my place. He got out, walked in here and sat down on a stool toward the back of the place. A couple of the kids said: 'Hello, Mr. Keene,' and he said hello to them and asked them how they were. Then without another word he got right up and walked out of the place, out the front door. Then it was I saw Sam Pierce coming across the street, I guess from the refrigeration plant, with his revolver in his hand. Arthur crouched down behind his car and he had his revolver in his hand, all ready.

"Then Arthur got up and ran through the lot next to the restaurant here. Sam ran after him and fired a shot. It hit Arthur in the shoulder, but it didn't hurt him much. Arthur ran into my back door. He ran through the kitchen and into the lunch room. Sam came after him, stopping in the kitchen. I grabbed Arthur and pushed him into that corner there, that corner made by the side wall and the partition—on the other end of the partition from where the partition door is. Sam looked through the place in the partition through which we pass the lunch, stuck his pistol through, and yelled to Arthur, 'Come out of there.'

"I could see Mrs. Pierce on her porch, signaling"

"The kids jumped off their stools and down below the counter and ran out the door. Sam fired a shot, but it went wild and hit this table here between the counters. I was telling them to stop, and trying to keep Arthur in the corner, out of Sam's way. Sam fired two more shots at Arthur, but didn't hit him. Then he fired again. The bullet went under my arm and hit Arthur in the right lung. And that was when Arthur fired his first shot. It went right under my arm and powder-burned my arm. He fired through that hole in the partition. Sam had been firing through, and he hit Sam in the same place he was hit, in the right lung.

"Sam staggered out of the back door, walked around into the lot and fell. Arthur stumbled over to the counter, slumped across it, and fell to the floor. They carried him across the street to that insurance office. Sam died almost right away. Arthur died about two minutes after."

Keene is said to have declared he would never fight with Pierce if he could avoid it. It is believed he tried to keep from it to the end.

I TALKED to Ida Pierce about the tragedy and asked her if the stories the townspeople were telling were true.

"They're not," she told me. "Mr. Pierce was not really right in his mind on the subject of me and other men. If I just happened to stop on the street—why, if I just passed by some man I had known for years and said 'hello' to him, Mr. Pierce would say there was more to it than that. Once he was treated by a doctor. We had lots of trouble about these imaginary beliefs of his, and that was why I left him two years ago and moved to Memphis.

"Mr. Keene was never more than a friend of mine. I did see him in Memphis a few times, but they were only when we happened to meet each other by chance.

"My husband used to come over to Memphis once in a while to see me and our little girl. At first he was awfully bad about the trouble. But recently he'd been not as bad as he was, and I thought things were going to be better. Then suddenly this happened. But anything you've heard about Mr. Keene and me isn't true. We were only friends."

Mrs. Keene said to me: "I never had any trouble with Mr. Keene until he started quarreling with Mrs. Pierce. Somebody told me she said she was going to come to my home to see me." The woman slowly shook her head. "She mustn't come here," she said.

FIRST AID FOR DORA

By P. G. Wodehouse

Poor, Little Dora Had Lost Her Position but—"I'm Not Going Anywhere Near Your Infernal Aunt," Vowed Ukridge's Friend When Begged to Pay a Diplomatic Visit on the Girl's Behalf. Still, There Are Such Things in the World as Friendship and Chivalry.

NEVER having been shown any evidence to the contrary, I had always looked on Stanley Featherstonehaugh Ukridge, my boyhood chum, as a man ruggedly indifferent to the appeal of the opposite sex. It was a surprise, therefore, when passing down Shaftesbury avenue one Wednesday afternoon in June, I came upon him assisting a girl in a white dress to mount an omnibus.

His manner was a blend of courtliness and devotion; and if his mackintosh had been a shade less yellow and his hat a trifle less disreputable, he would have looked just like Sir Walter Raleigh.

The bus moved on, Ukridge waved, and I proceeded to make inquiries. I felt that I was an interested party. There had been a distinctly "object, matrimony" look about the back of his neck, and the prospect of having to support a Mrs. Ukridge and keep a flock of little Ukridges in socks and shirts perturbed me.

"Who was that?" I asked.

"Oh, hallo, laddie!" said Ukridge, turning. "Where did you spring from? If you had come earlier I'd have introduced you to Dora." The bus was lumbering out of sight, and the white figure on top gave a final wave. "That was Dora Mason," said Ukridge, having flapped a large hand in reply. "She's my aunt's secretary-companion. I used to see her when I was living at Wimbledon. Old Tuppy gave me a couple of seats for that show at the Apollo, so I thought it would be a kindly act to ask her along. I'm sorry for that girl."

"What's the matter with her?"

"Hers is a gray life. It's an act of charity to give her a little treat now and then. Nothing to do all day but brush the Pekingese and type out my aunt's rotten novels."

"Does your aunt write novels?"

"The worst in the world, laddie. She's been steeped to the gills in literature ever since I can remember. They've just made her president of the Pen and Ink Club. It was her novels that did me in when I lived with her. She used to send me to bed with the beastly things and ask me questions about them at breakfast. It was a dog's life, and I'm glad it's over. Well, knowing my aunt, I don't mind telling you that my heart bleeds for poor, little Dora. I know what a foul time she has, and I feel a better, finer man for having given her this passing gleam of sunshine. I wish I could have done more for her."

"Well, you might have stood her tea after the theater."

"Not within the sphere of practical politics, laddie. I'm down to the scrapings. But I'll tell you what, I don't mind joining you in a cup, if you were thinking of it."

"I wasn't."

"Come, come! A little more of the spirit of hospitality, old horse."

"Doctors say that tea is bad for the nerves."

"Y... possibly there's something in that. Then I'll tell you what," said Ukridge, never too proud to yield a point, "we'll make it a whisky-and-soda instead."

IT WAS a few days after that the Derby was run, and Gunga Din finished third. This did not interest the great bulk of the inteligentsia, but it meant much to me, for I had drawn his name in the sweepstake at my club. I celebrated my triumph by an informal dinner to a few friends. It was some small consolation to me later to remember that I had wanted to include Ukridge in the party, but failed to get hold of him. Dark hours were to follow, but at least Ukridge did not go through them bursting with my meat.

When 11 o'clock arrived, the evening of the party, it seemed silly to sit talking in a club and still sillier to go to bed. I suggested that we should all go and dress and resume the revels at my expense half an hour later at Mario's. We scattered to our various homes.

I entered the house in Ebury street where I lodged, and not even the usually quelling sight of Bowles, my landlord, in the hall as I came in, could quench my bonhomie.

"Ah, Bowles," I cried. "I say, Bowles, I drew Gunga Din in the club sweep."

"Indeed, sir?"

"Yes. He came in third, you know."

"So I see by the paper, sir. I congratulate you."

"Thank you, Bowles, thank you."

"Mr. Ukridge called earlier in the evening, sir," said Bowles.

"Did he? Sorry I was out. Did he want anything in particular?"

"Your dress clothes, sir."

"My dress clothes, eh?" I laughed genially. "Extraordinary fellow. You never know"—— A ghastly thought smote me like a blow. "He didn't get them, did he?" I quavered.

"Why, yes, sir."

"Got my dress clothes?" I muttered thickly.

"Mr. Ukridge said that he knew you would be glad to let him have them, as you would not be requiring them tonight."

"But I do require them, hang it!" I shouted. "I'm giving half a dozen men supper at Mario's in a quarter of an hour."

"Perhaps if you would allow me to lend you mine, sir."

"Yours?"

"I have a very nice suit. It was given to me by his lordship, the late Earl of Oxted, in whose employment I was for many years. I fancy it would do very well on you, sir. His lordship was about your height, though perhaps a little slenderer. Shall I fetch it, sir?"

The obligations of hospitality are sacred. In 15 minutes' time six jovial men would be assembled at Mario's, and what would they do, lacking a host? I nodded feebly.

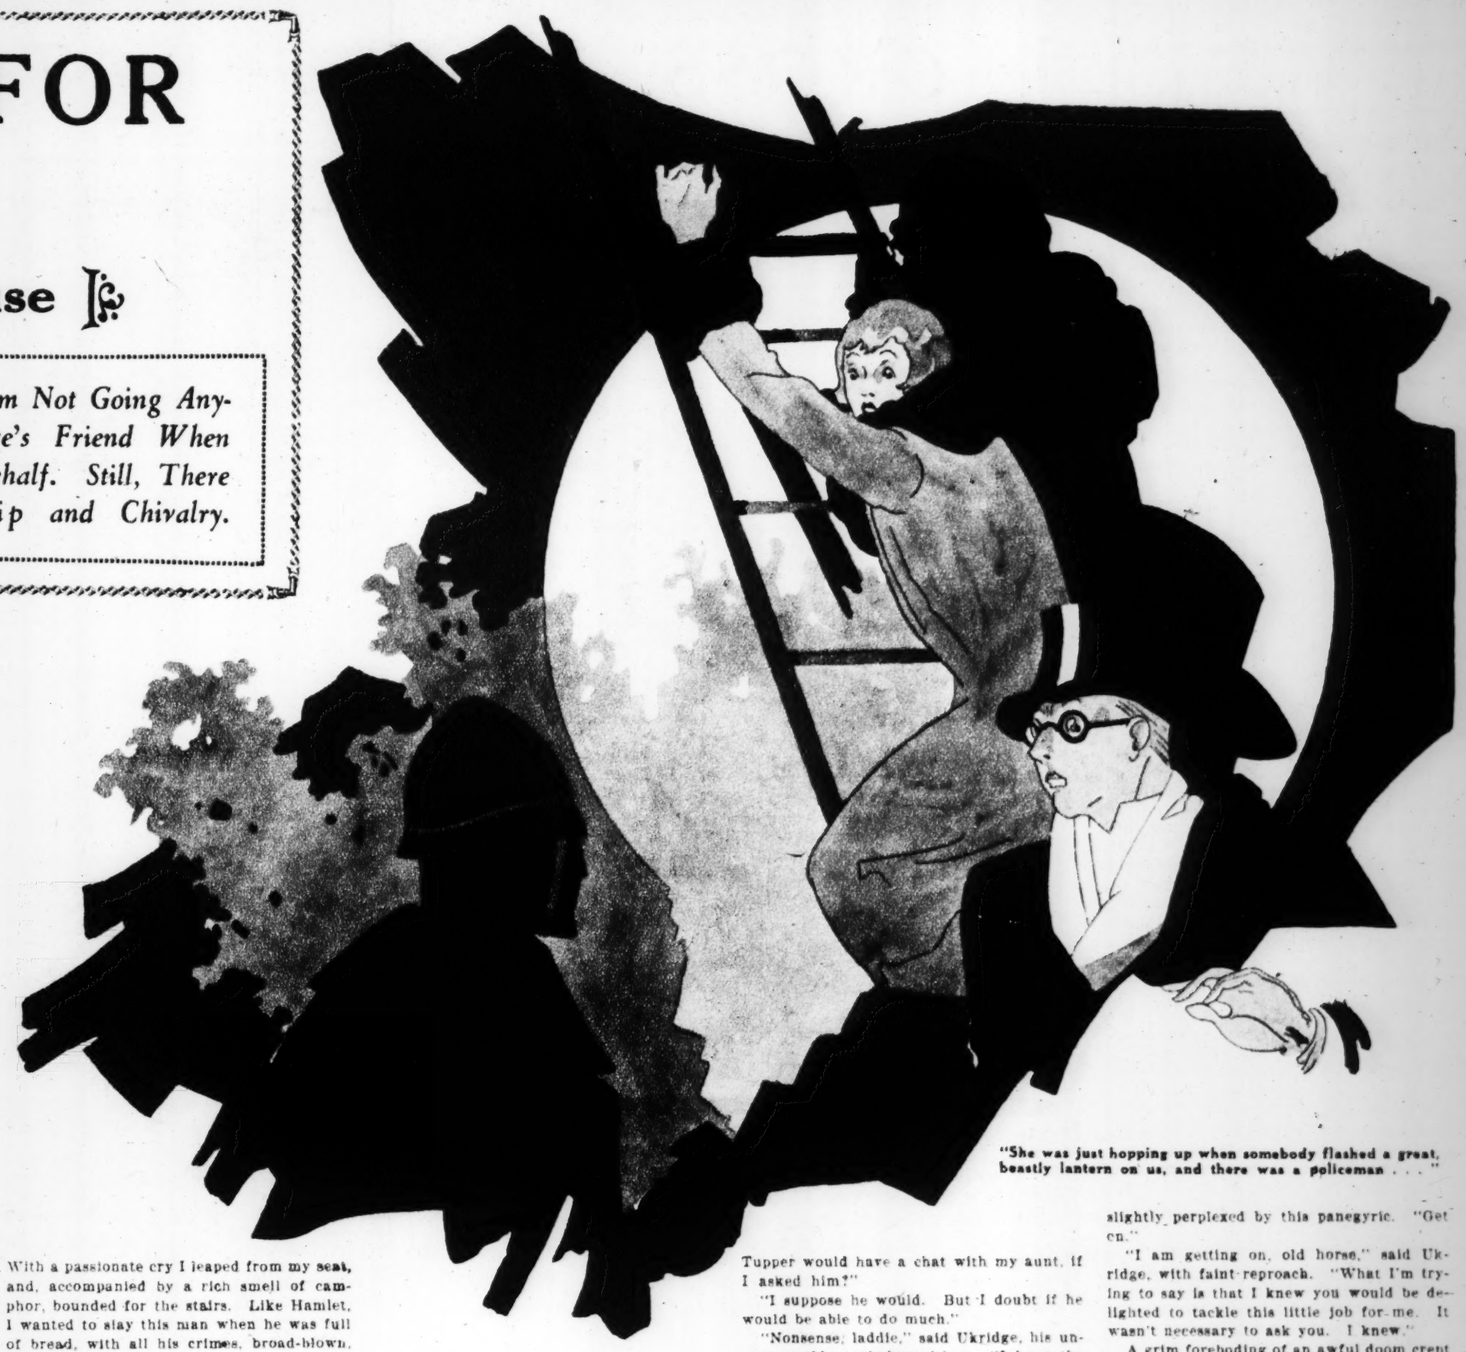
THAT the late Earl of Oxted had indeed been a somewhat slenderer man than myself became manifest to me from the first pulling on of the trousers. Hitherto I had admired the slim, small-boned type of aristocrat, but it was not long before I was wishing that Bowles had been in the employment of someone who had gone in a little more heartily for starchy foods. And I regretted, moreover, that the fashion of wearing a velvet collar on an evening coat, if it had to come in at all, had not lasted a few years longer. Dim as the light in my bedroom was, it was strong enough to make me wince as I looked in the mirror.

And I was aware of a curious odor. Mothballs! That was the scent I had detected. It swept upon me like a wave. It accompanied me like a fog all the way to Mario's, and burst out in its full fragrance when I entered the place and removed my overcoat. One or two people hastened to remove themselves from my immediate neighborhood, and my friends, when I joined them, expressed themselves with friendlike candor. With a solid unanimity they told me frankly that it was only the fact that I was paying for the supper that enabled them to tolerate my presence.

The leperlike feeling induced by this uncharitable attitude caused me, after the conclusion of the meal, to withdraw to the balcony to smoke in solitude. My guests were dancing merrily, but such pleasures were not for me. Besides, my velvet collar had already excited timid comment, and I am a sensitive man. Crouched in a lonely corner of the balcony, surrounded by the outcasts who were not allowed on the lower floor because they were not dressed, I chewed a cigar and watched the revels with a jaundiced eye. The space reserved for dancing was crowded and couples either revolved warily or ruthlessly bumped a passage for themselves, using their partners as battering rams. Prominent among the ruthless bumpers was a big man who was giving a realistic imitation of a steam plow. When he struck the line, something had to give.

Something about this man was familiar; but owing to his crouching manner of dancing, which he seemed to have modeled on the ring style of Mr. James J. Jeffries, it was not immediately that I was able to see his face. But presently, as the music stopped and he straightened himself to clap his hands for an encore, his foul features were revealed to me.

It was Ukridge. Ukridge, confound him, with my dress clothes fitting him so perfectly and with such unwrinkled smoothness that he might have stepped straight out of one of Ouida's novels. Until that moment I had never fully realized the meaning of the expression, "faultless evening dress."



"She was just hopping up when somebody flashed a great, beastly lantern on us, and there was a policeman . . ."

With a passionate cry I leaped from my seat, and, accompanied by a rich smell of camphor, bounded for the stairs. Like Hamlet, I wanted to slay this man when he was full of bread, with all his crimes, broad-blown, as flush as May, at drinking, swearing, or about some act that had no relish of salvation in it.

"But, laddie," said Ukridge, backed into a corner of the lobby, "be reasonable."

I cleansed my bosom of a good deal of that perilous stuff that weighs upon the heart.

"How could I guess that you would want the things? You weren't there when I called. I couldn't ask you, so I simply borrowed them. It was all just one of those little misunderstandings which can't be helped. And, as it luckily turns out, you had a spare suit, so everything was all right, after all."

"You don't think this is mine, do you?"

"Isn't it?" said Ukridge, astonished.

"It belongs to Bowles. He lent it to me."

"And most extraordinarily well you look in it, laddie," said Ukridge. "Upon my Sam, you look like a Duke or something."

"And smell like a second-hand clothes store."

"Nonsense, my dear old son. A mere faint suggestion of some rather pleasant antiseptic. Honestly, old man, it's really remarkable what an air that suit gives you. Distinguished. All the girls are saying so. When you came in just now to speak to me, I heard one of them whisper: 'Who is it?' That shows you."

"More likely 'What is it?'"

"Ha, ha!" bellowed Ukridge, seeking to cajole me with sycophantic mirth. "Dashed good! Not 'Who is it?' but 'What is it?' It beats me how you think of these things. But now, old son, if you don't mind, I really must be getting back to poor, little Dora. She'll be wondering what has become of me."

THE significance of these words had the effect of making me forget my just wrath for a moment.

"Are you with that girl you took to the theater the other afternoon?"

"Yes. I happened to win a trifle on the Derby, so I thought it would be a decent thing to ask her out for an evening's pleasure. Her's is a gray life."

"It must be, seeing you so much."

"A little personal, old horse," said Ukridge, reprovingly. "But I know you don't mean it. Yours is a heart of gold, really. If I've said that once I've said it a hundred times. Well, good-by for the present, laddie. I'm sorry there was any misunderstanding, but it makes up for everything, doesn't it, to feel that you've helped brighten life for a poor, little, downtrodden thing who has few pleasures?"

"Just one last word," I said.

"Yes?"

"I'm sitting in that corner of the balcony over there," I said. "If you come dancing underneath there, I shall drop a plate on you. And if it kills you, so much the better. I'm a poor, downtrodden, little thing, and I have few pleasures."

OWING to a mawkish respect for the conventions, for which I reproach myself, I took no punitive measures against Ukridge for that night. But his demeanor, when he called at my rooms next day, could not have been more crushed if I had dropped a pound of lead on him. I had been passing in my mind a number of good, snappy things to say to him, but his appearance touched me to such an extent that I held them in.

He lit one of my cigars.

"Poor, little Dora!"

"What about her?"

"She's got the push!"

"The push? From your aunt's, do you mean?"

"Yes."

"What for?"

"Most unfortunate business, old horse, and largely my fault. You see, my aunt goes to bed at 10:30 every night, so it seemed to me that if Dora slipped out at 11 and left a window open, she could sneak back all right when we got home from Mario's. But what happened? Some dashed, officious fool," said Ukridge, with honest wrath, "went and locked the window. I suspect the butler."

"What happened?"

"Dora remembered that her bedroom window was open. Her room's on the second floor, but I knew where there was a ladder, so I got it, and she was just hopping up when somebody flashed a great, beastly lantern on us, and there was a policeman, wanting to know what the game was. The whole trouble with the police, laddie, is that they're snoopers. Why they can't attend to their own affairs is more than I can understand. Dozens of murders going on, and all this bloke would do was stand and wiggle his infernal lantern and ask what the game was. Wouldn't be satisfied with a plain statement that it was all right. Insisted on rousing the house, to have us identified."

"And then?" I said.

"We were," said Ukridge, briefly.

"What?"

"Identified. By my aunt. In a dressing gown and a revolver. And poor, little Dora has got the sack."

I COULD not find it in my heart to blame his aunt for what he evidently considered a tyrannical outrage. But as Ukridge desired sympathy rather than an austere pronouncement on the relations of employer and employed, I threw him a couple of tuts, which seemed to soothe him a little. He turned to the practical side of the matter.

"What's to be done?"

"I don't see what you can do."

"But I must do something. I've lost the poor, little thing her job, and I must try to get it back. It's a rotten job, but it's her bread and butter. Do you think George Tupper would have a chat with my aunt, if I asked him?"

"I suppose he would. But I doubt if he would be able to do much."

"Nonsense, laddie," said Ukridge, his unconquerable optimism rising. "I have the utmost confidence in old Tuppy. And he's such a dashed respectable sort of bloke that he might have her jumping through hoops before she knew what was happening to her. Yes, I'll try old Tuppy. I'll go and see him now."

"I should."

"Just lend me a trifle for a cab, old son, and I shall be able to get to the Foreign Office before 1 o'clock. I mean to say, even if nothing comes of it, I shall be able to get a lunch out of him. And I need refreshment, laddie."

IT WAS three days after this that Ukridge dropped in to breakfast with me, as was often his practice. He seemed cheerful again.

I started to open the letters by my plate, and became aware that my guest was eyeing me with a stare of intense penetration through his pince-nez, which were all crooked, as usual. "What's the matter?"

"Matter?"

"Why," I said, "are you looking at me like a fish with lung trouble?"

"Was I?" He took a sip of coffee with an overdone carelessness. "Matter of fact, old son, I was rather interested. I see you've a letter from my aunt."

"What?"

I had picked up the last envelope. It was addressed in a strong, female hand, strange to me. I now tore it open. It was even as Ukridge had said. Dated the previous day and headed "Heath House, Wimbledon Common," the letter ran as follows:

"Dear Sir: I shall be happy to see you if you will call at this address the day after tomorrow (Friday) at 4:30. Yours faithfully, Julia Ukridge."

I could make nothing of this. How Ukridge's aunt had become aware of my existence, and why a call from me should ameliorate her lot, were problems beyond my unraveling.

"What does she say?" inquired Ukridge.

"She wants me to call at 4:30 tomorrow afternoon."

"Splendid!" cried Ukridge. "I knew she would bite."

"What on earth are you talking about?"

Ukridge reached across the table and patted me affectionately on the shoulder. I seemed to fill him with honest joy, and he suddenly burst into a spirited eulogy.

"Laddie," said Ukridge, "if there's one thing about you that I've always admired it's your readiness to help a pal. One of the most admirable qualities a bloke can possess, and nobody has it to a greater extent than you. I've had men come up to me and ask about you. 'What sort of a chap is he?' they say. 'One of the very best,' I reply. 'A fellow you can rely on. A bloke who would go through fire and water to do a pal a good turn. A bird with a heart of gold and a nature as true as steel.'"

"Yes, I'm a splendid fellow," I agreed, slightly perplexed by this panegyric. "Get on."

"I am getting on, old horse," said Ukridge, with faint reproach. "What I'm trying to say is that I knew you would be delighted to tackle this little job for me. It wasn't necessary to ask you. I knew."

A grim foreboding of an awful doom crept over me, as it had done so often before in my association with Ukridge.

"Will you kindly tell me what you've let me in for now?"

"It's nothing, laddie. Just a simple, little act of kindness. It's like this. As I ought to have foreseen from the first, Tuppy proved a broken reed. In that matter of Dora, you know. Got no result whatever. He went to see my aunt and asked her to take Dora in again, and she gave him the miss-in-balk. I'm not surprised. I never had any confidence in Tuppy. It was a mistake ever sending him. It's no good trying a frontal attack in a delicate business like this. What you need is strategy. You want to think what is the enemy's weak side and then attack him from that angle. Now, what is my aunt's weak side, laddie? Reflect, old horse."

"From the sound of her voice, the only time I ever got near her, I should say she hadn't one."

"That's where you make your error, old son. Butter her up about her beastly novels, and a child could eat out of her hand. When Tuppy let me down I had a good think. And then suddenly I got it. I went to a pal of mine, a thorough sportsman—you don't know him—and he wrote my aunt a letter from you, asking if you could interview her for Woman's Sphere. It's a weekly paper which she takes in regularly. Now, listen, laddie. Don't interrupt for a moment. You go and interview her, and she's all over you. Tickled to death. Of course, you'll have to do a good deal of Young Disciple stuff, but you don't mind that.

"AFTER you've soft-soaped her till she's purring, you get up to go. 'Well,' you say, 'this has been the proudest occasion of my life, meeting one whose work I have so long admired.' And she says, 'The pleasure is mine, old horse.' And you slop over each other a bit more. Then you say, sort of casually: 'Oh, by the way, I believe my cousin—or sister'—— No, better make it cousin. 'I believe my cousin, Miss Dora Mason, is your secretary, isn't she?' 'She isn't any such thing,' replies my aunt. 'I sacked her three days ago.' That's your cue, laddie. Your face falls, you're frightfully cut up. You start in to ask her to let Dora come back. And you're such pals by this time that she can refuse you nothing. And there you are. My dear old son, you can take it from me that if you only keep your head and do the Young Disciple stuff properly the thing can't fail. It's an iron-clad scheme. There isn't a flaw in it."

"There is one."

"What is it?"

"The flaw is that I'm not going anywhere near your infernal aunt."

Stanley Featherstonehaugh Ukridge was wounded to the quick.

Mrs. Dumbly

Her Inhibitions.
"Do They Show Much?"
Psycho-Analyst Explains.
Poor Artie Has a Bill to Pay.

IF IT hadn't been for the psycho-analyst I'd never have known of the connection between that dill pickle and my husband and myself. In fact the dill pickle would never have played any part in my life if I hadn't met the psycho-analyst at a party.

She singled me out from the whole crowd to whisper to me in a tone that would have made me think my underskirt was coming off if I'd had one on. "Mrs. Dumbly, Mrs. Dumbly, I must speak to you alone!"

"Yes," I said.

"I feel that you are facing a serious problem—a crisis in your life. You are fighting a battle with a giant—a giant repression. You must be careful lest this giant triumph! You have inhibitions!"

"My heavens!" I exclaimed, glancing into a mirror. "Do they show much?"

"No, no," she whispered, "but you need help. Come to me. Won't you come to me soon?" I long so to help you."

And she handed me a card with her name and a price on it. So I went to her with five dollars and she plumbed the depths of me and discovered the pickle.

I was ashamed of the pickle at first but when she asked me if I had any dreams recently it was the only thing I could remember. I told her how I dreamed that it was floating in a great bowl of brine and that I was trying to get it and couldn't.

"Aha, I see. I see," she said, shaking her head solemnly.

"Whenever I tried to touch it," I continued, "I kept getting hold of pieces of onion and cloves which persisted in getting between me and it."

"Yes, yes, go on!" she said, eagerly.

AND so I told her how—even when I had succeeded in brushing aside the cloves and the onion and was just about to grasp the pickle—there arose between me and it two strange-looking pieces of dill that waved before me like the antennae on a bug, blearing my vision.

"Uhm, hum," she muttered, "uhm hum. Well, well! The matter has gone even farther than I thought. That dill, that dill! The pickle symbolizes the giant repression you are fighting. Can you not think of some overmastering desire that you have which you do not admit even to yourself?"

"No," I said, "I simply can't."

"Yes, it must be there," she insisted. "The symbolism becomes really striking when you think that the pickle was in the center of a bowl of salt liquid which probably is the symbol of a sea of fear with which you cloak your thoughts even from yourself. Tell me what association cloves have with your childhood memories."

"Oh, I know," I said. "When I was four years old I thought cloves meant the cloven hoof of the devil."

"Of course!" she exclaimed. "Of course. How interesting! The cloves are symbols of your fear of doing wrong. You're afraid your desire is wrong and you associate wrong with the devil. Now tell me what association the onion has with your early life."

"I don't like the smell of them," I said promptly. "And I remember when I was six years old hearing my mother say that they were expensive."

"How very clear!" she explained, delightedly. "The odor shows that there is something you dislike in connection with attaining your desire and that dislike is probably connected with expense—with the spending of money. Now, won't you tell me what the desire may be?"

But I could only shake my head and so we went on to the dill.

"YOU said the dill reminded you of antennae," she said. "Now what is there in your life that you associate with antennae?"

For once I was able to answer immediately, "My husband, Artie's, mustache!"

"There," she cried, leaning forward aglow with eagerness, "Your husband! Of course, your husband! He stands between you and your desire. Now, now tell me what it is!"

But again I could only shake my head and so she asked me what the pickle was like.

"It was smooth very smooth," I answered.

"Do you desire anything that is smooth?"

"No, I don't believe I do."

"Then we have an example of association by contrasts," she decided. "It is quite evident that you desire something rough or even fuzzy."

And suddenly a light came to me. "I know," I cried—tense in my excitement. "Oh, I know, I know. I want—I want, I want—I can't tell what—but I'll not deny myself any longer. I'll yield to my feelings and face it out with Artie afterward."

And though she begged me to tell her what it was—what slumbering fires had been awakened in me—I refused, though I did confess to Artie that very night. It was the only thing to do.

"You're the dill in the pickle jar of my life," I told him. "You've kept me from my heart's desire. You've almost kept me from having this lovely thing in my life! But today I broke away from my repressions and got it. I have it now—here in my house—my new fur coat! And if you don't like my buying it, just read this book on psycho-analysis and free yourself of your inhibitions about spending!" • • • •

Ring Lardner

A Murder Case.
Ring Is Reporter.
Writes a Great Story.
Gets Bonus From "The Rabies."

OLD-TIMERS will have no difficulty in recalling the Helsh murder, and veteran newspaper men have never ceased of complimenting me on my work in connection therewith. It was my first assignment as star reporter for The Rabies, and the fact that I was chosen for the task speaks volumes for my city editor, who was violently drunk at the time.

For the benefit of half-witted readers I will recount the Helsh case in brief. Wallace Helsh was a wealthy barn tearer in Pennsylvania. He went all over the State tearing down barns so horses could get more air. Mrs. Helsh was the former Mitzie Blaggy, prominent in Philadelphia society and the daughter of Blotho Blaggy, who was in charge of one of the switches in the Broad street railroad yards. Young Helsh and Miss Blaggy became acquainted on one of the former's barnstorming tours and were married two weeks after their first meeting.

At the time of the murder, they had been married three years and Mrs. Helsh (nee Blaggy) was expecting a baby, the child of one of her sisters. The baby was supposed to arrive on the 12:09 (midnight) train and the police first believed that the murder had grown out of a quarrel between the Helshes over which of them should sit up and meet it. This theory was based on the testimony of a neighbor, Basil Kidney, who said he had been hiding behind a book in the Helsh living room and overheard the following conversation:

"Will you sit up and meet our niece?" This from Mrs. Helsh.

"No." This from Helsh.

"Why not?"

"Because I don't water meter."

THE witness did not hear any more of the conversation because it was then time for him to go on to another neighbor's house, the Quimbys', and hide in their living room. He was an habitual living-room hider. But half an hour after his departure from the Helsh home a mysterious voice called up the police headquarters at Bryn Mawr and announced that there had been a murder at 24 Vine street. This was not where the Heishes lived, which made it all the more puzzling.

"Dig right into this!" said my city editor. "Comb Philadelphia; find out who did it, and get lots of pictures."

"How about my transportation?" I inquired.

"You can have carte blanche," was his reply.

But thinking he referred to a dog cart and an old horse named Blanche, which conveyed our society reporter to and from her work every day, I declined his offer and went to Philadelphia by rail. My mistake was profitable, for the first man I met when I rolled from under the train at Broad street was Blotho Blaggy, Mrs. Helsh's father.

"How about the murder, Mr. Blaggy?" I asked.

"Fine," he said. "They have arrested my little 4-year-old grandchild, who was on her way to visit her aunt and uncle, but they can't pin anything on her. She hates pins; says she's too old for them."

NEXT morning The Rabies made all the other tabloids look silly. Across the front page we had a streamer, "Child Murder Suspect Balks at Pins!" and under it were pictures of Lillian Gish, who had appeared on the screen at a Chestnut street theater that week, and of Chief Bender, making a balk. On Page 2 was my story of the murder, and on page 3 the first chapter of Mrs. Helsh's diary, of which I have preserved a copy and will reprint a few paragraphs:

"Oo, oo, diary, I am going to keep oo and write in oo every day and when I am a ole, ole lady bug, I will read oo and live over the days of my hon-eymoon.

"Daddy was a baddy, baddy boy today. I asked um to bwing me a ittsy bittsy diamond wing and he fordotted all about it, and when I scolded um he swang for my jaw and knocked out some toofums that my real honest to goodness daddy had give me for a wedding pwesent.

"Ooo never can tell what a red-hot daddy will do-oo-oo."

I HAVE perhaps forgotten to mention that when the police finally reached the Helsh home, Helsh was nowhere to be seen and Mrs. Helsh (nee Blaggy) was playing a game of Bemis with her little niece. Asked when she expected her husband, she said the hour of his arrival always depended on the number and toughness of the barns he had visited, but he usually got back about 6 o'clock. The police then arrested the niece and left a guard to receive Helsh if and when he showed up. Sure enough, just at 6 o'clock he reached home and found dinner ready.

On the following morning The Rabies printed pictures of Georges Carpentier, Jimmy Walker and Miss Omaha on the beach at Atlantic City and a portrait of the bathtub in which Mrs. Helsh's sister had bathed her little girl before sending her on the fatal visit. I was given a bonus of $50 and spent it and the next two weeks waiting around for some more excitement.

"You don't mean to say you're going out?" he said, in a low voice.

"I never was in."

"Laddie," said Ukridge, "I must ask you one question. Have you ever let me down? Has there been occasion in our friendship when I relied upon you and been disappointed? Not once!"

"Everything's got to have a beginning. I'm starting now."

"But think of her. Think of poor, little Dora."

"If this business teaches me to keep away from you, it will be a blessing in the end."

"But, laddie"——

I SUPPOSE there is some weakness in my character, some adamant for 10 minutes, but at breakfast committed to a step which my soul revolted. As Ukridge said, it was tough luck. Chivalry is chivalry. Four days the following afternoon found me entering a cab and giving the driver the address of Heath House, Hampstead Common.

My emotions on entering House were such as I would have had I been keeping a tryst with a dentist, who, by some strange happening also to be a Duke, had at the moment when a butler opened the door and, after regarding me with concealed dislike, started to show me down a long hall, I should have gripped of fear and humiliation. House is one of the stateliest homes of Wimbledon and it frankly overawed me. Its keynote was an expensiveness, which seemed to spring from the squashy collar and reproachful creases in my trouser legs. It brought home to me that I was one of the submerged tenth and could have done with a bath and a patch on my left shoe. I had a rather comfortable home in Ebury street, stood out like a sore thumb on the landscape. No, I was not at my ease; and when I reflected that in a few moments I was to meet Dora's aunt face to face, a sort of coma-like stupefaction filled me for the benefit of any student of human nature of one who would go through all this to help a girl he had never even met.

A Murder Case.
Ring Is Reporter.
Writes a Great Story.
Gets Bonus From "The Rabies."

OLD-TIMERS will have no difficulty in recalling the Helsh murder, and veteran newspaper men have never tired complimenting me on my work in connection therewith. It was my first assignment as star reporter for The Rabies, and fact that I was chosen for the task akes volumes for my city editor, who wa ently drunk at the time.

or the benefit of half-witted readers I recount the Helsh case in brief. Wal- Helsh was a wealthy barn tearer in nsylvania. He went all over the State ing down barns so horses could get more Mrs. Helsh was the former Minnie ggy, prominent in Philadelphia society the daughter of Blotho Blaggy, who was harge of one of the switches in the Broad t railroad yards. Young Helsh and Miss ggy became acquainted on one of the for- 's barnstorming tours and were married weeks after their first meeting.

t the time of the murder, they had been ried three years and Mrs. Helsh (nee ggy) was expecting a baby, the child of of her sisters. The baby was supposed rrive on the 12:09 (midnight) train, the police first believed that the murder grown out of a quarrel between the bes over which of them should sit up meet it. This theory was based on the mony of a neighbor, Basil Kidney, who he had been hiding behind a book in the h living room and overheard the follow- conversation:

Will you sit up and meet our niece?" from Mrs. Helsh.

No." This from Helsh.

Why not?"

Because I don't water meter."

HE witness did not hear any more of the conversation because it was then time for him to go on to another hbor's house, the Quimbys', and hide in r living room. He was an habitual liv- room hider. But half an hour after his arture from the Helsh home a mysteri- voice called up the police headquarters Bryn Mawr and announced that there been a murder at 24 Vine street. This not where the Helshes lived, which e it all the more puzzling.

Dig right into this!" said my city editor. mb Philadelphia; find out who did it, get lots of pictures."

How about my transportation?" I in- red.

"You don't mean to say you're backing out?" he said, in a low, quivering voice.

"I never was in."

"Laddie," said Ukridge, "I want to ask you one question. Have you ever let me down? Has there been one occasion in our friendship when I have relied upon you and been deceived? Not one!"

"Everything's got to have a beginning. I'm starting now."

"But think of her, Dora! Think of poor, little Dora."

"If this business teaches her to keep away from you it will be a blessing in the end."

"But, laddie"——

I SUPPOSE there is some fatal weakness in my character. After being adamant for 10 minutes, I finished breakfast committed to a task from which my soul revolted. After all, as Ukridge said, it was rough on the girl. Chivalry is chivalry. Four o'clock on the following afternoon found me entering a cab and giving the driver the address of Heath House, Wimbledon Common.

My emotions on entering Heath House were such as I would have felt had I been keeping a tryst with a dentist, who, by some strange freak, happened also to be a Duke. From the moment when a butler opened the door and, after regarding me with ill-concealed dislike, started to conduct me down a long hall, I was in the grip of fear and humility. Heath House is one of the stately homes of Wimbledon and it frankly overawed me. Its keynote was an extreme neatness, which seemed to sneer at my squashy collar and reproach my baggy trouser legs. It brought home to me that I was one of the submerged tenth and could have done with a haircut. A patch on my left shoe, which had had a rather comfortable look in Ebury street, stood out like a blot on the landscape. No, I was not at my ease; and when I reflected that in a few moments I was to meet Ukridge's aunt face to face, a sort of admiration filled me for the beauty of the nature of one who would go through all this to help a girl he had never even met.

"Mr. Corcoran," announced the butler, opening the drawing room door. He spoke with just that intonation of voice that seemed to disclaim all responsibility. If I had an appointment, he intimated, it was his duty, however repulsive, to show me in, but, that done, he dissociated himself from the whole affair.

There were two women and six Pekinese dogs in the room. The Pekes I had met during their brief undergraduate days at Ukridge's dog college, but they did not appear to recognize me. One by one they came up, sniffed and then moved away, as if my bouquet had disappointed them. I was left to face the two women.

Of these—reading from right to left—one was a tall, angular, hawk-faced female with a stony eye. The other, to whom I gave but a passing glance, was small and pleasant-looking. She had bright hair, faintly powdered with gray, and mild eyes of china blue. She reminded me of the better class of cat. I took her to be some casual caller. It was the hawk on whom I riveted my attention. I thought how exactly she resembled the picture I had formed of her in my mind from Ukridge's conversation.

"Miss Ukridge?" I said, feeling like some novice whose manager has fixed him up with a match with the heavyweight champion.

"I am Miss Ukridge," said the other woman. "Miss Watterson, Mr. Corcoran."

IT WAS a shock, but, the moment of surprise over, I began to feel something approaching mental comfort for the first time since I had entered this house. I had got the impression from Ukridge that his aunt was a sort of stage aunt, all stiff satin and raised eyebrows. This half-portion with the mild, blue eyes I felt that I could tackle. It passed my comprehension why Ukridge should have found her intimidating.

"I hope you will not mind if we talk before Miss Watterson," she said, with a charming smile. "She has come to arrange the details of the Pen and Ink Club dance. You don't mind?"

"Not at all, not at all," I said in my attractive way. It is not exaggerating to say that at this moment I felt debonair.

"Won't you sit down?"

"Thank you."

The hawk moved over to the window, leaving us to ourselves.

FIRST AID FOR DORA

"Now we are quite cosy," said Ukridge's aunt.

"Yes, yes," I agreed. Dash it, I liked this woman.

"Tell me, Mr. Corcoran," said Ukridge's aunt, "are you on the staff of 'Woman's Sphere'? It is one of my favorite papers. I read it every week."

"Well, I don't actually work in the office, but the editor gives me occasional jobs."

"I see. Who is the editor now?"

I began to feel slightly less debonair. I searched desperately for a name—any name—but as usual on these occasions, every name in the English language had passed from me.

"Of course, I remember now," said Ukridge's aunt, to my profound relief. "It's Mr. Jevons, isn't it?"

"Jevons," I burbled. "That's right."

"A tall man with a light moustache."

"Well, fairly tall," I said, judicially.

"And he sent you here to interview me?"

"Yes."

"Well, which of my novels do you wish me to talk about?"

I leaped from my seat and bounded for the stairs.

I relaxed with a sense of relief. And then it came to me that Ukridge had omitted to mention the name of a single one of this woman's books.

"Er—oh, all of them," I said hurriedly.

"I see. My general literary work."

"Exactly," I said. My feeling towards her now was one of positive affection.

She leaned back in her chair.

"Do you think it would interest the readers of 'Woman's Sphere' to know which novel is my own favorite?"

"I am sure it would."

"Of course," said Ukridge's aunt, "it is not easy for an author to answer a question like that. One has moods in which first one book and then another appeals to one."

"Quite," I replied.

"Which of my books do you like best, Mr. Corcoran?"

There swept over me the trapped feeling one gets in nightmares.

"ER—OH, all of them," I heard a croaking voice reply. My voice, presumably, though I did not recognize it.

"How delightful," said Ukridge's aunt. "One or two of the critics have said that my work was uneven. It is so nice to meet someone who doesn't agree with them. My favorite is 'The Heart of Adelaide.'"

I nodded my approval of this sound choice. The muscles, which had humped themselves stiffly on my back, began to crawl back into place again.

"Yes," I said, thoughtfully, "I suppose 'The Heart of Adelaide' is the best thing you have written. It has such human appeal," I added, playing it safe.

"Have you read it, Mr. Corcoran?"

"Oh, yes."

"And you really enjoyed it?"

"Tremendously."

"You don't think it is a fair criticism to say that it is a little broad in parts?"

"Most unfair." I do not know why, but I had been assuming that her novels must be the sort you find in seaside libraries. Evidently they belonged to the other class of female novels, the sort which libraries ban. "Of course," I said, "it is written honestly, and shows life as it is. But broad? No, no!"

"That scene in the conservatory?"

"Best thing in the book," I said stoutly.

A pleased smile played about her mouth. Ukridge had been right. Praise her work, and a child could eat out of her hand.

"I'm so glad you like it," she said. "Really, it is most encouraging."

"Oh, no," I murmured modestly.

"Oh, but it is. Because I have just started to write it. I finished chapter one this morning."

SHE was still smiling so encouragingly that for a moment the full horror of these words did not penetrate my consciousness.

"'The Heart of Adelaide' is my next novel. The scene in the conservatory comes toward the middle of it. I was not expecting to reach it till about the end of next month. How odd that you should know all about it!"

In the course of an active life I have frequently felt a fool, but never such a fool as I felt then. The fearful woman had been leading me on, watching me entangle myself like a fly on fly-paper. And suddenly I perceived I had erred in thinking of her eyes as mild. They were like a couple of blue gimlets. It was revealed to me why Ukridge went in fear of her. There was that about her which would have intimidated the Sheik.

"It seems so odd, too," she tinkled on, "that you should have come to interview me for 'Woman's Sphere.' Because they published an interview with me only the week before last. I rang up my friend, Miss Watterson, who is the editress, and asked her if there had not been some mistake. And she said she had never heard of you. Have you ever heard of Mr. Corcoran, Muriel?"

"Never," said the hawk, fixing me with a revolted eye.

"How strange!" said Ukridge's aunt. "Oh, must you go, Mr. Corcoran?"

My mind was in a slightly chaotic condition, but on that one point it was crystal-clear. Yes, I must go. Through the door if I could find it—failing that, through the window. And anybody who tried to stop me would do well to have a care.

"You will remember me to Mr. Jevons, won't you?" said Ukridge's aunt.

I was fumbling at the handle.

"And Mr. Corcoran." She was still smiling amiably, but there had come into her voice a note like that which it had had on a memorable occasion when summoning Ukridge to his doom from the unseen interior of his Sheep Cray's cottage. "Will you please tell my nephew, Stanley, that I should be glad if he would send no more of his friends to see me. Good afternoon."

IT WAS warm, but to such an extent had the recent happenings churned up my emotions that I walked the whole way back to Ebury street. I found Ukridge stretched upon the sofa.

"Hallo, laddie!" said Ukridge, reaching out a hand for the cooling drink on the floor beside him. "I was wondering when you would show up. I wanted to tell you that it won't be necessary for you to see my aunt, after all. Dora has a hundred quid tucked away and she's been offered a partnership by a woman who runs one of these typewriting places. I advised her to close with it. So she's all right."

He quaffed deeply and breathed a contented sigh. There was a silence.

"When did you hear of this?" I asked at length.

"Yesterday afternoon," said Ukridge. "I meant to pop around and tell you, but somehow it slipped my mind."

Sir Oliver Lodge, Scientist and Student of Immortality

Eminent Physicist Announces His Belief in a Vast Army of Souls of the "Dead" Groping Toward Communication With the Living.

By JOHN GUNTHER.

London, England.

SIR OLIVER LODGE is both a great scientist and a great spiritualist, but he doesn't look like either.

There is nothing stooped or shadowy about him. If you saw him walk down the street, mathematical experiments or psychic phenomena are the last things in the world you would associate with the vigorous bulk of his body. He stands 6 feet 4. He has a head like a block of granite carved by Michelangelo. He looks a good deal like portraits of Darwin, with an aggressive, white beard, eyes deeply set under craggy brows, and a nose like an exclamation in 96-point type. He talks with a deep, guttural burr and laughs as if he liked it.

It happened that I saw Sir Oliver in the London office of the Daily News. He blew in like a well-mannered tornado. While he talked he smoked cheap cigarettes from a long holder. He burned each cigarette to the last possible fraction of an inch and withdrew the shred of butt remaining with a pocketknife. Then he lit another. It was a continuous process.

He talked rapidly and incisively and listened with hand cupped to ear, explaining that he was slightly deaf. He pronounced it "deef". Dwarfing his chair and the rest of the furniture, he looked like a restless Viking caught in our little room.

SIR OLIVER LODGE had come to be interviewed. He confessed that it was an unusual experience. He said that he preferred ordinarily to write his views himself. In fact, the interview took place at all only after some written negotiation. When he finally consented to talk he decided to come to our office instead of receiving us in the formidable isolation of his Salisbury home. It was a genial thing to do. Also, perhaps, he wanted to interview his interviewers. In any case, he came.

Mostly he talked about spiritualism and his own work thereon. It was the Oliver Lodge of "Raymond" whom we saw, not the Oliver Lodge of "The Nature of Ether." Still, the two are much the same. The man of science is still the man of science. Sir Oliver has remained the only investigator of psychic phenomena who brings to it genuine scientific training and a genuine scientific attitude. He is, of course, in astronomical psychics, the most eminent elder scientist in England. There is no laxity in intention since he turned to the world beyond.

In that interview he announced for the first time his belief in a vast spirit army of "dead" souls groping beyond the veil for a means of communication with their fellows still on this earth.

He also announced his belief that research workers in psychic phenomena who have "died" are in close scientific contact with co-workers on this side the gulf.

In summarizing his views Sir Oliver very carefully explained that his own personal faith in survival had nothing to do with his researches in spiritistic phenomena. He pointed out that his only aim was the scientific examination and analysis of that mass of evidence which had come before him. As a person he believed. But that was not enough. As a scientist it was his job to chart out and elucidate and justify those beliefs.

"I may say," he explained, "that my views have crystallized to conviction on three principles:

"1. That human survival is a fact.

"2. That under favorable circumstances there is every possibility that some kind of communication takes place between dead and living.

"3. That death is only an episode in a continuous existence."

He went on to point out that only the second point is capable of scientific research under controlled conditions at the present time and that therefore it was in this direction he bent his professional interest.

He did not care to talk much about his son, Raymond. But anger glistened on his smooth, red cheeks when he recalled American rumors that Raymond was alive in a German prison camp during the war.

"A lie!" was his comment. "And a vicious lie!"

LATELY Sir Oliver has joined a third vocation to his other two. Without forgetting his new experiments in the nature of ether, without neglecting his psychic work, he has found time besides to turn to preaching, and during the winter filled various London churches to enthusiastic overflow with the simple outline of his faith. One could easily believe it, talking to him as he smoked comfortably, towering over us. He breathes magnetism. There is a positive smoke of intellectual energy about him.

He talked about 40 minutes. It was brilliant, provocative discourse. When he rose to go we discovered something else about him. We discovered him still a hearty son of his Scotch motherland. The Scot is in his bones as well as speech. For he wore no overcoat. Out into a bitter autumn day, against the wind beating across Trafalgar Square, we saw him stride, with his cheeks red and his beard blowing, as vigorous a youngster of 60 or so as anyone could wish to meet.

Also he wore an ancient stovepipe hat. It bobbed across the square with apparent disdain of earthly ills.

The Gold Coffin of King Tutankhamen

THREE coffins, nested one within another inside the pink marble sarcophagus of King Tutankhamen's tomb, contained the body of that young ruler of old Egypt. Gold adorned the outer and middle ones—the third, containing the bones of the King, which is reproduced in natural colors as the cover of this issue of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine, was beaten out of massive gold, and it is estimated was worth, in gold alone, a quarter of a million dollars. "This coffin," said Howard Carter, the American who conducted the excavations and the discoverer of Tutankhamen's tomb in the Valley of the Kings, "ranks among the world's finest works of art. It measures over six feet in length. It is magnificently engraved, both inside and outside, and is embellished with auxiliary cloisonne work in gold and semi-precious stones, such as turquoises, lapis lazuli and carnelian." The full-length coffin is shown on the cover page—on the left is the upper part, enlarged to show in greater detail the astonishing art of the Egypt of 3273 years ago.

Howard Carter.

The form of the coffin is that of an image of the God Osiris, the god of Light and Good, god also of the Nile lands and of Justice and of Love. Over the arms and abdomen are the winged, protective vulture goddesses of Nekhbet and Buto, while engraved over the legs are Isis and Nephthys. The crossed hands of the coffin image hold the flail and the crook, which were emblems of royalty.

The burial of Tutankhamen in Osiride form is curious evidence of the quick revival of the ancient Egyptian faith after the death of the young King's father-in-law, that Amenhotep who sought, in the quarter of a century between 1375 and 1350 B. C., to give his people a new religion — a religion of one god. Carefully he changed his name, because Amenhotep contained the name of an ancient god Amon. Inkhaton, "spirit of Aton," he called himself, for it was Aton, the sun god, he worshipped. Tutankhamen, while the old King lived, was called Tutankhaton, in honor of the sun god his father-in-law adored. But the new religion "did not take." Egypt returned to its many gods, and the young King changed back his name to Tutankhamen and was buried in an effigy of Osiris, who, according to the ancient Egyptian myth, came to life again when Set, the god of Darkness and Evil, killed and dismembered him.

Tutankhamen.

The flavor is like Fresh Fruit itself

"The children thought I had put fresh orange juice in it."

"I really thought I had fresh fruit jelly instead of Fruit Gelatin."

SO come the comments from delighted, enthusiastic women from all over the country, declaring that here at last is "a gelatin with the real fruit taste."

From fresh fruit alone come these wonderful flavors. Royal Raspberry, Strawberry, Cherry—from the ripe juices of the fruits themselves their flavor is made. The cool refreshing taste of Royal Orange and Lemon comes only from the oil of the fresh citrus fruit.

No synthetic nor artificial flavoring. No trace of "gluey" smell or taste. (Pure gelatin has neither!)

You can trust the purity of Royal Fruit Flavored Gelatin just as you have always trusted that of Royal Baking Powder. Ask for it by name at your grocer's. The red package the same color as the Royal Baking Powder can.

Film—Enemy of Teeth

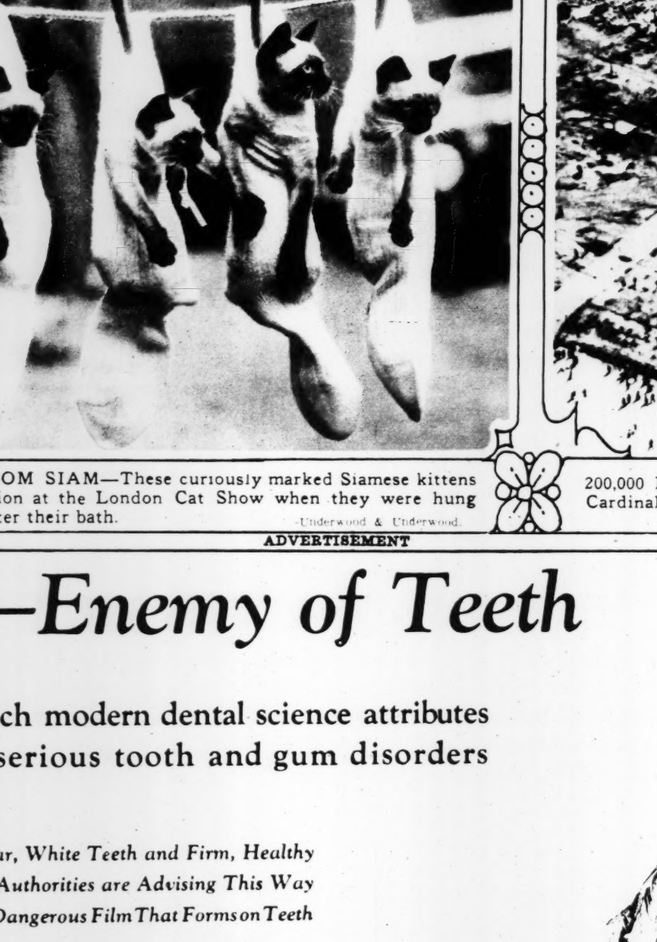
To which modern dental science attributes many serious tooth and gum disorders

To Attain Clear, White Teeth and Firm, Healthy Gums, Many Authorities are Advising This Way to Combat the Dangerous Film That Forms on Teeth



Fame?—if not now, it should be very soon in store for Miss Marion Strasmick, she of the lovely smile and pretty teeth; proof undeniable of what correct daily care of the teeth, as supplied by Pepsodent, can do for one.

...t to show how alluring a smile can be—that is, with the aid of Pepsodent tooth paste—Miss Muriel Taylor stopped long enough the other morning to allow this photograph of herself and her escort, Mr. Ted Irwin, to be taken.

THAT many of the commoner tooth and gum troubles, and most cases of so-called "off-color" teeth, are due to a film that forms on teeth which ordinary brushing does not successfully combat, is the consensus of today's dental opinion.

Run your tongue across your teeth, and you will feel this film—a slippery sort of coating. Film absorbs discolorations and thus makes teeth look dull and dingy. It breeds germs and bacteria and invites tartar, decay and pyorrhea. It is a menace to tooth and gum health that must be constantly combated.

Thus dental authorities now seriously urge that film be removed at least twice every day—in the morning and at bedtime. One can't expect glistening teeth and proper gum protection unless this program be followed regularly.

To do so, obtain Pepsodent—a special, film-removing dentifrice most dentists favor. It curdles the film, then removes it and polishes the teeth to high lustre in gentle safety to enamel. It combats the acids of decay. It acts, too, to firm and harden the gums; thus meeting, in many ways, the requirements of modern dental findings.

ADVERTISEMENT

As film coats disappear, teeth whiten and brighten; gums become firm and healthy; smiles become more charming. Thus Pepsodent, advised by leading dental authorities because of its important therapeutic and prophylactic action, is a great aid to oral hygiene as well as to the beauty of teeth.

Old-time dentifrices did not adequately fight film. That is why this modern protective way as a twice a day habit in your home, and at least twice a year calls on your dentist, are being so widely advised today.

Accept this Pepsodent test

Send the coupon for a 10-day tube. Brush teeth this way for 10 days. Note how thoroughly film is removed. The teeth gradually lighten as film coats go. Then for 10 nights massage the gums with Pepsodent, using your finger tips; the gums then should start to firm and harden.

Misses Gladys and Nona Philbin, who ought to know about such things, if their popularity in the debutante set goes for anything, say that the art of smiling charmingly is the art of caring properly for one's teeth. Which is one reason why Pepsodent, aside from its high placed scientific properties, is so universally used as an important beauty aid.

FREE—Mail coupon for 10-day tube to The Pepsodent Company, Dept. 1524, 1104 S. Wabash Ave., Chicago, Ill., U. S. A. Only one tube to a family.

"Wait till your father sees those shoes!"

(For which conference we offer Father a little preliminary information)

LIKE most businesses, the business of being a normal boy, or girl, has its excessive costs in some department or other. And it takes Mother to discover them! Usually she finds that it is costing entirely too much for the children's shoes. So Father is called into consultation. . . . What does he suggest? These facts may help him:

Endicott-Johnson specialize in putting wear in footwear. We say to our Workers: "Consider the natural carelessness of children; their untiring energy; the constant battering their shoes get. Design shoes to fit those conditions. Find out where children's shoes wear out quickest, then strengthen them at those points. Make shoes that give the longest possible wear per dollar. That's what parents want. Then add style and finish."

Such are Endicott-Johnson shoes. . . . Shoes based on actual wearing tests, on rugged boys and girls. Shoes made of leather specially tanned to withstand grinding and scuffing, leather produced at a big saving because tanned in our own huge tanneries.

But most unusual of all is the workmanship that goes into Endicott-Johnson shoes. It reflects the team-work of 17,000 skilled tanners and shoemakers, living, playing and working together under ideal conditions. An "Industrial Democracy," we call ourselves—where direct incentives to each Worker make it definitely to his interest to help build "Better shoes for less money."

DANDRUFF?

Here's good news for you—

IT'S a fact: Listerine, the safe antiseptic, and Dandruff simply do not get along together. Many were incredulous when we first announced this. But the word is fast going around from the lips of those who have found how wonderfully it works.

As you probably know, dandruff is a germ disease and that annoying white shower on dark clothes is a warning of more serious scalp trouble—falling hair, possibly baldness.

Try Listerine for, say, one week, every night and learn for yourself how remarkably it works.

The use of Listerine for dandruff is not complicated. You simply douse it on your scalp, full strength, and massage thoroughly. The effect is wonderfully refreshing. And you will be amazed to see how this treatment, followed systematically, does the trick.

Moreover, Listerine will not discolor the hair nor will it stain fabrics. And it is not greasy or smelly.

Many of the better barber shops are now prepared to give you this treatment. Try Listerine for dandruff. You'll be delighted with the results. —Lambert Pharmacal Co., St. Louis, U. S. A.

Billiards will make a House a Home

UNTIL you have a billiard table in your home, you will never realize what genuine interest, fascination and enjoyment there is right by your own fireside. Your house becomes a home—a center of attraction and entertainment—the rendezvous of good friends—radiating good fellowship, cementing lasting friendships.

For billiards—a gentleman's game—is rare sport. It is a challenge to skill, nerve, coolness and all the elements that make sport interesting. And it is a sane, rational form of exercise.

And now the new Brunswick Home Billiard Tables have brought this fascinating sport within the means of the most modest purse. Mail the coupon for full descriptions, prices and easy terms. The Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co., Est. 1845. Branches in All Principal Cities of U. S. and Canada.

THE Brunswick Playmate illustrated above is a modified standard billiard table with sturdy metal folding legs, size 3½ x 7 ft. It has a genuine slate bed, assuring an absolutely level playing surface, and the reduction in size has been determined scientifically and with mathematical precision, providing the exact same angles and playing qualities as the professional size billiard tables. Comes complete with full playing equipment, balls, cues, etc.

Can be set up anywhere—no special room is needed. It comes to your home, fully equipped for pocket billiards, only $26.50 down. At a slight additional cost interchangeable cushions will be provided, making it possible to use the table for either pocket billiards or carom. Smaller tables for pocket billiards only, sizes 2½ x 5 ft. and 3 x 6 ft., may be had at still lower prices.

NOTE: The Brunswick-Balke-Collender Company are equipped to manufacture billiard tables and equipment to conform with any special ideas or decorative plans.
